

The Star Theatre treated its patrons to "Rock of Ages," Thursday night, showing the films to two packed houses. Special organ and vocal music accompanied the film. For next Thursday night the Star has secured one of the greatest picture plays ever produced in this country—The Siege of Petersburg. Over 2500 soldiers and 1200 horses participate in this production of war time events. The portrayal of the battle scenes are as exact as history can make them, as the films were taken upon the actual battle ground.

vs. James Harper, Jr., et al Defendants.

LEGAL NOTICE

THE STATE OF OREGON TO,

William Harper and Jane Doe Harper, his wife, first name unknown; Elbin Thomas and Jane Doe Thomas, his wife first name unknown; The unknown heirs of Loma Harper, deceased, and Jane Harper, his wife; the unknown heirs of Marion Harper, deceased; Glenn Hunter, 21 O'Brien and Jane Doe O'Brien, her husband, first and true name unknown; Josie Ann Pratt; Lettie Cham and John Doe Cham, her husband, first and true name unknown; R. T. Robinson; Charles S. Naylor and Nettie Naylor, his wife; Milton G. Naylor and Emma N. Naylor, his wife; the unknown heirs of Andrew Harper and Eliza Harper, deceased, and all other persons or parties unknown claiming any right, title, lien or interest in the real estate described in the complaint herein not given as defendants in said suit, Defendants GREETING:

In the name of the State of Oregon, You are hereby required to appear in a suit brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the above named Court at Hillsboro, in Washington County, Oregon, on or before the 25th day of December, 1912, said date being the last publication of this notice as provided by the order of Court in said suit made and entered by the Judge of said Court on the 15th day of November, 1912, directing publication of this notice, the first publication of which should be dated, and is dated the 21st day of November, 1912, and the last publication of which shall be the 25th day of December, 1912, to answer the complaint filed therein and unless you so appear or answer or demur or plead to the said complaint default will be taken against you and judgment rendered according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said suit is brought to determine a claim made by said defendants adverse to the plaintiff to the following described land situated in Washington County, State of Oregon, viz:

Beginning at the Southwest corner of the Donation Land Claim of Andrew Harper and wife in section 12, Township one, South, Range Four West of Willamette Meridian, and running thence North 71 degrees East 5.34 chains; thence North 19 degrees West 15.46 chains; thence South 84 degrees West 3.75 chains to the west line of the Andrew Harper Donation Land Claim; thence South 10 degrees East 20.45 chains to the place of beginning, containing seventeen acres, more or less, and to compel the said defendants to set up and establish their claim, if any they have, to said premises, and that the same and the pretended claim, right, title, lien, interest or estate of said defendants, or any of them in and to said premises and every part thereof may be adjudged and decreed to be invalid and void; that the said defendants and each of them may be barred of and from all right, title, interest and estate in and to the said premises and each and every part thereof, and that said defendants and each of them may be forever enjoined and restrained from interfering with the plaintiff's title and her peaceable possession and occupancy of said premises; that the said plaintiff's title may be adjudged and decreed to be a good and valid one as against the said defendants and each of them, and all persons claiming under the said defendants and each of them, and for such other and further relief as may be just and equitable as the nature of the case may require, as will more fully appear by the complaint on file herein to which reference is hereby made, and for her costs of suit.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

The Locket

By HENRY D. STANLEY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A young man and a girl of twenty were dancing together in a ballroom. A locket of peculiar material and workmanship flew about from her bosom as she whirled. On the third finger of her left hand was a ring with an inexpensive stone. When the music ceased she took the man's arm, and they strolled away into a side room, where there was no one except themselves. Seating herself on a sofa, she said:

"That's our last dance."

"You don't care to wait?"

"While waiting my chances in the matrimonial market would be passing away. In ten years I shall be thirty and my opportunities for marriage reduced at least 75 per cent. at thirty-five say 90 per cent. and at forty I won't have one chance in a hundred that I have now."

"You will always have me whatever be your age."

"I wouldn't trust to your constancy. We girls as we grow older become either fat or skinny. And I know you too well to believe that you will ever love either kind."

"I swear—"

"Don't swear. Go out, as you propose to, to the mining districts and when you return, if unmarried and I am unmarried and you want me, you will doubtless get me. But you won't want me."

She took off the ring on her finger, unclasped the locket from about her neck and handed them to him.

"Keep them," he said, "not as typical of an engagement, but as trinkets."

"Goodbye. I leave by an early train. I must go. I have things to do yet before going to bed."

"Goodbye and good luck be with you."

Twenty years passed. The man during all that time had all he could do to keep his head above water; then he struck a bonanza. Returning to his former home for the purpose of organizing a mining company, he reached it in the winter season, when the gayety was at its height. On his way from dining with a friend he passed the building where two decades before he had parted with his love. Seeing the place lighted up and hearing the strains of music, he entered. Couples were dancing, and there was the lady from whom he had parted whirling, while on her bosom was the never resting locket.

How she had managed to preserve her youthful looks and her beauty he was at a loss to know. She must be unmarried, for no woman who had the care of a family could look so young. As she danced by him, the locket flirting as of yore, their eyes met, but he saw at once that he was not remembered.

"Who is that lady?" he asked of one who stood near.

"Miss Clarkson."

"I thought so," he said, then to himself: "I must have changed much more than she."

He concluded not to make himself known then and there, but announce his return by note the next day and ask permission to call. This he did and received a very gracious note in reply, stating that Miss Clarkson would be happy to receive him. The same evening he went to her residence. She was living in the same house, and on being ushered into the drawing room there sat a woman so fat that her first effort to rise was a failure, and instead of making a second she held out her hand to him.

"Pardon me," she said. "It's very hard for me to rise. I told you when you went away that we women must expect to grow fat or skinny, and you see that I belong to the first class."

He controlled himself sufficiently to conceal the shock, but as to acting like a returning lover he found it impossible. As soon as he became composed he said:

"The first thing I wish to know upon my return is have you still the ring and the locket I gave you."

"The ring is now locked in my bureau drawer upstairs. The locket I lent to my niece, Julia Clarkson, to wear at a ball which she was to attend last evening."

He was satisfied with the explanation and knew why he had been led into an error.

The lady made it very easy for him. She had not expected that they would begin where they had left off twenty years before. Indeed, it was evident from the expression on her former lover's face that he had no mind to keep his pledge that, though she were fat and forty, he was still hers. She asked him what he had been doing all those long years, and he told her that he had been struggling with adversity. He failed to acquaint her with the fact that he had come home to form a company that would give him an enormous income. Instead, he left her to suppose that he was still struggling. Before leaving he tried to stammer something like his words when they were half their present age, but failed.

"Don't," she said, interrupting him. "What I told you has come to pass. Go marry some woman between twenty and thirty years of age and be happy."

He said "Never!" very faintly, but the next day hunted among his old friends till he found one who would introduce him to the younger Miss Clarkson. Again the locket flashed, but this time while he danced with the niece, whom he finally married.
