Unjust Criticism.

It is really surprising, the riots of imagination which some people will allow their minds to indulge in. Everyone has the right to form an opinion, but no one has the right to judge unheard. The latest laughable comment on the Forest Grove Training Park was given voice to recently, and by one who is generally credited with careful thought upon all subjects pertaining to good and evil. It is now rumored that the club house, which is rapidly nearing completion, is to be used as a den of iniquity and vice; that gambling in all its many varied forms will be openly conducted; that liquor of many hues and degrees of taste will be freely dispensed; that the building will be the resort of all the bums and tin horn sports of Portland, and the Lord only knows what else. Awful state of affairs to be foisted upon the unsuspecting public of Washington county. Call out the Sheriff, clean up the community. If necessary, get a hose and a bucket of soft soap, but clean up and clean up quick. Captain McCann should be ashamed to foster such disgraceful possibilities and before matters have reached a stage where the genial Governor will feel impelled to issue a bundle of proclamations, make a clean up. WE SHOULD WORRY.

The excellent weather conditions of the past week has acted as a spring tonic upon all of Nature's wonderful family. Fruits of all kinds are in bloom, and strawberry plants especially are having a wonderful growth.

The thrift-urge makes ad readers of many people. While others read the ads more with a view to knowing "what's what" in fabrics, furnishings, utilities and luxuries than from the economy motive. And both classes of ad readers are wise, logical and prudent!

What Are You Doing?

You are hurt by anything that takes men and money out of your community and leaves no equivalent in their place.

By any influence that teaches the younger generation to look elsewhere for opportunities.

By the decadence of local pride that permits any man to say "This is a dead town."

What are you doing about it? Are you an idle spectator, letting things go to ruin around you, or have you rolled up your sleeves and begun the fight for new life?

Are you "putting it off till tomorrow" or are you doing it this week because there never will be a better time?

Are you a believer in prosperity? If so just nail these questions on the front door as a reminder that you can't afford to let a day go by without taking a whack at some fellow who is trying to undermine your community. You will find plenty of heads to hit, and remember it's a just cause.

is a business responsibility of no mean sort. The ad reading housewife realizes this—and the housewives who are "too busy" to read the ads, do not not,

Why Not You?

Why not take your boy into partnership with you? Is your business too small? If so, hustle and make it bigger. He has just the youth, energy and enterprise that your business needs. Isn't it good enough? Don't you consider it as honorable as any business or profession your boy could find in the large city? And don't you think you could give your boy as good a chance and as square a deal as he would get from a stranger?

Why send your boy off among strangers to begin all over again where you began? Why not let him begin where you leave off? Perhaps you think the chances of success—big success—are greater in the large city or in some other business or profession than in your own. But is your opinion based on knowledge or on mere hearsay evidence?

If your life as you live it is a drudgery who is to blame? Isn't it worth while to stop and study as to how you can make it the happiest, healthiest and most prosperous life of any who live in your community? Do not look at life with a squint. Square back your shoulders and see to it that the boy appreciates the fact that not only you do know cash, comfort and contentment, but that you want to share it with him.

If advertising pays it doesn't cost anything.

It isn't bad luck to go back if you have left your purpose.

Most of us think a little more of ourselves than we are willing to admit.

A lot of people who pray would be surprised if their prayers were answered.

The first step toward success is to arouse criticism; the next is to ignore it.

The only thing that can afford not to advertise is a scandal—and it does more of it than anything else.

Decide about whether or not you can "afford to buy it" just after you have studied the ads. To be the "buyer" for a home

Many a housewife manages a home so well on an "inadequate allowance" that there is no air of uncomfortable economy, or deprivation, ever in evidence in it. These are the ad watching housewives—those wise women who "take the time" to keep informed about thrift chances in buying.

DEVOTED TO THE W. C. T. U.

Edited by Mrs. Katherine R. Kerr

The Mother's meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday at the Free Methodist church. We had a pleasant meeting in charge of Supt. of Narcotics. An interesting talk on cigarettes and their moral effects was given by Mrs. Morgan. Mrs. Kerr quoted from the writings of Judge Lindsley and Supt. Olcott, of the Iowa College. The union appointed a committee to help the Boys' Club obtain some necessary chairs for their club rooms. A motion was made to send a communication from the W. C. T. U. urging the mayor to sustain the Temperance people in Cornelius in their fight for a dry town. Meeting adjourned at usual hour.

A number of the W. C. T. U. listened with great interest to an Anti-Saloon league representative fresh from the battle in West Virginia—His address was full of fire and enthusiasm and well worthy of applause.

It is said "the boy is father of the man," and so I think the greatest kindness we can show our children is to cultivate in them the spirit of thoughtfulness, love and respect for the rights of others, which will go with them through life and make them an honor to their parents and a blessing to the world. Whose fault is it when some of the boys of our town steal, lie and use terrible profanity, and are a terrible menace to the best life of the town? The only reply is—The parents' fault. Those parents who know no Sunday and do not even respect the neighbors' wish for "a truly Sabbath day," and I claim the parents should have to stand the penalty and not the general public. Do not wait to punish as some towns have till a tragedy shocks us all.

One evening in November a captain of a steamboat started from Portland. The wind was blowing a gale and he was asked not to go. But he would go. The wind soon rose into a tempest, and in a short time steamer, passengers, captain and crew went down and all were lost. Now, boys and girls are told not to touch liquor, and are pleaded with, but like the rash captain, do not heed and soon become drunkards. Now, young people, let me tell you, everything depends on the right start in life. Start with the solemn resolve to obey your parents, to pray for God's help, to be sure to keep the Sabbath day holy, to read your Bible, and never, no never, touch intoxicating liquor. Dr. Cuyler says: "I have been glad many times I signed the pledge at ten years of age."

No evil habit, however small, shall have dominion over me.—Frances E. Willard.

In a little town back east after the saloons had been closed, a merchant tells this true story. A woman poorly dressed and very timid came into his store one day. She looked as though she had not been used to buying much. "What can I do for you?" said the merchant. "I want a pair of shoes for a little girl," she said. "What number?" "She is twelve years old," was the answer. "What number did you buy when you got the last pair for her?" The answer came, "She never had a pair in her life, you see, sir, her father used to drink when we had saloons, but now that they are closed he does not drink any more, and so this morning he said, 'Mother, I want you to go to town and get Sissy a pair of shoes, she never had a pair in her life,' so you see I thought if I told you how old she was you would know just what size to give me." Mothers and fathers, think and ponder on it and help for state wide prohibition by your votes.

Two boys met at the railway station, and one said to the other, "Say, John did you sign the pledge? I hear you did." "Yes, Harry," answered John, "I did sign the pledge and have joined the Loyal Temperance Legion." "What made you do it," asked Harry. "Oh!" said John, "it will help me to withstand temptation to drink or smoke cigarettes, and I do know the best people I know are the total abstainers." A minister sat near these two boys in the station, also a policeman stood near with a prisoner with handcuffs on. The minister said to the officer, "Now we have listened to the boys, what, sir, have you to say on the temperance question?" "Well," said the policeman, "all I have to say is that I never took a total abstinence to prison in my life, nor to the house of correction." The policeman's reply speaks for itself. A thought from one of the Gem leaflets, S. S. department W. C. T. U.

It has always been a surprise to us, why people will pay traveling agents $75 for a sewing machine when they can buy the same machine at Staehr's Bazaar for $40 or $45. 22tf
