STUNG!
 Yes he is stung.

I, the CYCLE EXPERT have told you every week, what a good Bicycle consists of, and in spite of it, this Man put his confidence in nice Pictures, sent his money to a Mail Order House and paid the Freight for Something that looked like the Bicycle in the Catalogue. Now I am not a Knocker, but I warn you against sending out of town for anything and especially for Bicycles. They may be cheap—but they are only cheap Frames, cheap Tires and cheap Fittings, and the repairs will cost you more than they are worth. When you buy from G. C. Danielson, Pacific Ave., Forest Grove, you see what you get, and he is right here at home to make good or replace any defective part, for every Bicycle that comes out of this store is backed by the quality endorsement. Watch for me next week.

The Littlest Watch—Lady Elgin

THE smallest watch made in America and one of the most practical. Made, just like the larger size Elgin watches, of interchangeable parts. You can walk into any good jewelry store in the world and get it satisfactorily repaired, for extra parts are staple stock with jewelers everywhere.

The Misses Norma and Bessie Hope and Messrs Jim Rasmussen and Percy Bellinger went to the Rose City, Saturday to see the wind-up of the Rose Carnival.

Extra coaches were put on during the past week by the S. P. and O. E. railway companies, but even then the large number of persons who attended the Carnival taxed the seating capacity of the cars.

EMERSON'S FAILING MEMORY.
He Was Conscious of It, but His Amiability Never Wavered.

EMERSON'S FAILING MEMORY.

I had as a fellow guest a man who had long been intimate with Emerson and whom the poet was very glad to see. Talking with me after tea in the library, Emerson said:

"I want to tell you about a friend in Germany. His name I cannot remember," and he moved to and fro uneasily in his effort to recall it. "This friend with whom we have taken tea tonight, whose name also I cannot remember"—here again came a distressed look at the failure of his faculty—"I cannot remember his name either, but he can tell you of this German friend whose name I have also forgotten."

It was a sorrow to see the breaking down of a great spirit and his agitation as he was conscious of his waning power. And yet, so far as I could see, it was only the memory that was going. The intellectual strength was still apparent and the amiability of his spirit was perhaps even more manifest than in the years when he was in the full possession of himself.

This came out in little things. He was over-anxious at the table lest the hospitality should come short, troubled about the supply of butter and apple sauce, and soon after I saw him on his knees on the hearth taking care that the fire should catch the wood to abate the evening coolness that was gathering in the room.—From "The Last Leaf," by J. K. Hosmer.

UNCONSCIOUS OF FAME.

Grote, the Famous Historian, Was a Man of Great Simplicity.

George Grote, the famous author of the "History of Greece," long the standard on that subject, was a man of great simplicity and was wholly unconscious of his own celebrity. Several anecdotes illustrative of this fact are given in "Some Famous Women of Wit and Beauty," one of whom is Mrs. Grote.

While Mr. Grote was walking in the park he would perhaps notice that one or two persons looked at him with some attention. He would at once turn to his wife in alarm.

"Have I got any dirt on my face, Harriet? Is there anything the matter with my hat?" and he would clutch his headgear with both hands. "Why are those people looking at me?"

Mrs. Grote's proud answer was, "Because you are George Grote, that's all!"

Once when he was on a visit to Cambridge Grote wished to see the professor of natural history, but was told that the professor was so busy dissecting something that he could not be interrupted, "strong magnifying power, powerful light, shirt sleeves up, cannot be bothered with anybody." The modest historian would have retired," but his wife persisted that it was Mr. Grote who wished to see the professor.

"What?" he cried. "Mr. Grote? Give me my coat. I must wash my hands." In a minute he had transformed himself and would not let them go for two hours.

Animals Don't Need Eyes.

Animals do not depend upon their eyesight in the same way as human beings. Cats and dogs could get along very well without eyes. A cat can find her way with the aid of her whiskers. These are the same width as her body and connected with nerves which cause her to feel the slightest touch.

Dogs can be entirely guided by their sense of smell. Blind dogs have been known to scent and find their way to the most inaccessible places. Their hearing is also preternaturally sharp.

Rats can see very little and depend chiefly upon their noses, muscles, touch and hearing. In the case of most animals the senses of smell and touch are more highly developed than that of sight, and they do not require to depend upon their sight nearly as much as do human beings in regard to safety.—London Globe.

His Willing Tribute.

"Judge, we are getting up a little book to be made up for the most part of voluntary testimonials from distinguished citizens who honor us by carrying their life insurance in our company. We shall be very glad to have one from you. Would you mind telling me in a few words how you came to insure with us?"

"Not at all, sir. Your agent was hounding me nearly to death. For six weeks he had made my life a burden. I gave him my application for life insurance just to get rid of him."—Chicago Tribune.

Clever Girl.

Mother—What's that I hear? Franz actually kissed you at the railway station? And what did you do, pray?
 Daughter—Well, so as to make everybody think he was a relative and so prevent a scandal I kissed him too.—Berlin Journal.

Knew How to Work It.

Lady—You are about the worst looking tramp I ever saw! Soapy Sam—Madam, it is the precincts of uncommon loveliness that makes me look so 'orrible. Lady—Jane, give this poor man something to eat.—Sydney Bulletin.

Putting It Stronger.

"I guess she loves me, all right."
 "Why so?"
 "She vows she'd rather be miserable with me than happy with anybody else."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The man who gambles is a deluded fool, but the man who gambles when he continues to lose is a colossal fool.—Henry Sutphin.

It Was His.
 A small boy was telling his mother of a mishap which had occurred to a playmate of his. The youngster, it appeared, had been regaling himself with one of those large, marblelike candles which are a particular delight of childhood, and in a moment of excitement it slipped down and stuck in his throat. But, said the narrator, they succeeded in relieving him.
 "Oh," said his mother, "you got it out, did you?"
 "Naw," was the impatient answer. "We shoved it down. It was his, wasn't it?"—Harper's Weekly.

How She Loved Him.
 A quarrelsome couple, having exhausted many subjects, came to discussing tombstones, and the husband asked, "My dear, what kind of stone do you suppose they will give me when I die?"
 "Brimstone," was the reply.—St. Louis Republic.

Ah, Yes!
 Mrs. Brooks—What operation in dentistry do you consider the most painful? Mrs. Rivers—My husband says paying the bills is what hurts the worst.—Chicago Tribune.

It Was Never Used.
 When Scones was at Oxford he was a most excellent fellow and had only one enemy—soap. He was called "Dirty" Scones. One day the wag Bolus went into his rooms and, remarking with him on the untidy, slovenly and dirty state of everything, said:
 "Upon my word, 'Dirty,' it's too bad! The only clean thing in the room is your towel."—London Tatler.

Cause For His Fright.
 "Hamlet Fatt is timorous about appearing in this town."
 "Stage fright at his age? Why, he's been on the boards for years."
 "But this is the first time he has ever billed for two nights in one place."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Does This Explain Term?
 Bix (with newspaper)—Here's a parcel of land for sale. Dix—A mortgage on it probably. Bix—Why do you think so? Dix—A parcel is generally tied up, you know.—Boston Transcript.

Warning Minnie.
 "What is your name?"
 "Minnie, mum."
 "All right, but we expect a maximum of work out of you."—New Orleans Times Democrat.
