STUNG! Yes he is stung.

I, the CYCLE EXPERT have told you every week, what a good Bicycle consists of, and in spite of it, this Man put his confidence in nice Pictures, sent his money to a Mail Order-House and paid the Freight for Something that looked like the Bicycle in the Catalogue. Now I am not a Knacker, but I warn you against sending out of town for anything and especially for Bicycles. They may be cheap—but they are only cheap. Cheap Tires and cheap Fittings, and the result will cost you more than they are worth. When you buy from J. C. Daniels, Pacific Ave., Forest Grove, you see what you get, and he is right here at home to make good or replace any defective part, for every Bicycle that comes out of this store is backed by the quality endorsement. Watch for me next week.

The Littlest Watch— Lady Elgin

THE smallest watch made in America and one of the most practical. Made, just like the larger size Elgin watches, of interchangeable parts. You can walk into any good jewelry store in the world and get it satisfactorily repaired, for extra parts are staple stock with jewelers everywhere.

John Ihrig, of the Fir Holm section, was a business visitor to this city Saturday.

Bernard Ortman, of Thatcher, was in this city Saturday morning on his way to Tillamook over the P. R. & N. railroad. It was a sort of flying trip, as Bernard came back the next day.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watkins and children, of Greenville, were visitors to this city, Friday. They formerly lived in Forest Grove, but now make their home on a farm. Roy has a half-dollar piece which is very valuable because of the year in which it was minted.

Pete Vanderzanden, of Verboort, was a business visitor to this city, Friday. Pete deplored the loss which would result to clover that is down by the recent rains, but said the value of the moisture to other growing crops would far outweigh the clover hay loss.

Boxing at Beaverton.

The smoker to be held at Beaverton on Saturday night June 28, promises to be a great affair. The Club has some of the best boxers in Portland on their card and already ringside seats are selling fast to a big number of fans who will be there from Portland.

A large crowd from Hillsboro, Forest Grove, Cornelius and surrounding country will also be on hand. This is the first Amateur Boxing Contest ever held in Washington county and the Beaverton Club is surely going to have a big crowd. Preparations are being made so the affair will be well handled and everyone made comfortable for a good night's sport.

DOOMED TO A LIVING DEATH.

French Convicts Leave Hope Behind When They Enter Cayenne.

Cayenne—red pepper to the world at large, hell to the few thousand of convicts transported to this isolated northeastern corner of equatorial South America. Here, it was rumored, existed one of the world's most antiquated and revolting penal systems, where thousands of men are exiled and doomed to a living death. Men from French Guiana had intimated conditions which vied with the cruelties of the old convict ships.

Groups of convicts lounged about or lay sick and incapacitated on the verandas. At night the barred iron door of each dormitory is locked, and outside paces a guard, revolver in hand. Sometimes under cover of darkness the inmates settle feuds. Occasionally to establish leaders rival gangs fight with cudgels, knives and even paving stones. Some disabled, others dead, the most indomitable are reconciled and form a tyrannical secret society.

Many a poor wretch dreads the night hours, and one suspected of informing may be set upon by an enraged pack. Occasionally murder is committed in profound silence, and daylight finds a dead or dying convict in the passageway or entrance. Questioning is useless, and few guards will risk life in entering the barracks when smothered cries and cursings warn them of internal strife.

All the men I talked with were well disposed toward me, one in particular—a tall, well educated man with a pair of dark rimmed glasses and large eyes fearfully strained through inability to secure proper lenses.

"You must not lose hope," I told a group and almost swallowed my own words. "Hope!" burst out the rich, tremulous voice of the tall man. "It is always the same; there is no hope here." "No; no hope here!" was the echoed murmur of his comrades.—Charles Wellington Furlong in Harper's Magazine.

VARICOSE VEINS.

Their Causes and Effects and the Treatment They Require.

A varicose vein is an enlarged and twisted vein, generally in the leg. It is caused by stagnation of the blood. Often the patient has a hereditary predisposition to varicose veins or he has a weak heart, with a consequent tendency to sluggish venous circulation.

Anything that interferes with the flow of blood through the veins may bring on an attack. Pressure from a tight garter and very severe muscular exertion are often exciting causes. Persons who are obliged to stand for several hours at a time, like policemen, washerwomen and saleswomen, are often subject to this trouble. Under ordinary conditions the blood in the legs must run up hill constantly in order to regain the heart. In the case of those who stand most of the day the blood has to work hard hour after hour in order to overcome the force of gravity, and as a result the veins gradually enlarge and harden.

In mild cases of varicose veins, especially in young and otherwise healthy people, the symptoms are very slight. There is a feeling of weight in the leg and a dull ache toward the end of the day. The ache is soon relieved by the patient's resting with the leg somewhat raised so that the blood can flow back more easily. Sometimes painful cramps complicate the trouble, and the cramp is likely to return again and again until life becomes a burden.

More serious complications are thrombosis (or the clotting of the blood in the vein) and phlebitis (or inflammation of a vein). Often a form of eczema appears in the skin of the leg, or an ulcer may arise. When varicose veins are very troublesome surgical treatment is advisable, but the milder cases can be much relieved by rest and proper bandaging.—Youth's Companion.

Varlet and Valet.

"We have only ourselves, or, rather, our forefathers, to blame for the trouble about the pronunciation of 'valet,'" says the London Chronicle. "If they had stuck to 'varlet' there would have been no difficulty. 'Valet' and 'varlet' are the same word, meaning originally just a boy, the diminutive of 'vassal,' a man. Unfortunately when our ancestors applied a word meaning a boy to signify a servant they went on to make it bear a scornful sense. And so 'varlet' degenerated hopelessly, just as did 'knave,' which is simply the German 'knaabe,' boy."

Indisputable Evidence.

"Say, father," said little Fred, "did you ever have another wife besides mother?" "Why, certainly not," said the father. "How do you happen to ask such a question, my boy?" "Well, father," continued the boy, "I saw in the family Bible that you married Anne Domini, 1892, and I know that wasn't mother, for her name was Mary Parsons when she was a girl."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not Too Pushing.

"Madam, I must congratulate you on having such a pushing young fellow for a husband." "Yes; George does very well with the lawn mower, but I have a time with him about the baby carriage."—Baltimore American.

COLOR BLINDNESS.

It Takes Some Peculiar Twists in the Matter of Heredity.

Professor Bateson in lecturing before the Royal Institution on "Heredity of Sex" related some curious facts which had been discovered as the result of examining several generations of a family in which color blindness appeared.

A color blind woman was very rarely found, and she was always the daughter of a color blind man. Her sons and daughters would be normal, but if her daughters had sons they would be found to be normal and color blind in equal numbers.

A curious anomaly with reference to color blindness appeared in twin girls. They were exactly alike in appearance, but one girl was color blind and the other not. No explanation of this exception has been found.

Professor Bateson said that there was a popular belief that sons in certain respects took after their mothers and daughters after their fathers. Within a reasonable range of speculation this was so. As to sons taking after their mothers, they saw this in the experience of their own families.—London Cor. New York Times.

Defining the Oyster.

"Now," asked the teacher, "who can tell me what an oyster is?" Silence for a moment, while small brows were knit in strained effort at remembrance. Then little Tommy's facial muscles relaxed, and eagerly he raised his hand.

"I know!" he triumphantly announced. "An oyster is a fish built like a nut."—Everybody's.

She Smacked of Books.

"They tell me you kissed Miss Sonnet, the poetess, on yesterday's automobile excursion." "Yes, that is true." "Indeed! And how did you—ah—find her?"

"Miss Sonnet has a marked literary taste."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Exaggeration.

"You told me you were worth a million, and I find that you have only a paltry $10,000," said Blathers' partner. "Well $10,000 is 1,000,000 cents," said Blathers.—Harper's Weekly.

Commercial Valuation.

"Politeness costs nothing." "Yes," replied the gentleman of the old school. "Perhaps that's why people have so little respect for it."—Washington Star.
