A ONE MAN CRUSADE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press

Just before graduating for the ministry Bruce Stevens spent four days in the town of Newbern as a part of his vacation.

Mr. Stevens found a political boss and a political ring in the town. He found one-half too many saloons for a town of its population.

He found the sheriff of the county and his deputies and the constable in cahoots with the tough element.

The justice of the peace was the keeper of a saloon and passed drinks over the bar, and he protected his own sort when it came to legal troubles.

"Why don't you do something?" he asked of a merchant of the town who was a representative of the better element.

"And get boycotted and driven into bankruptcy?" he asked in return. "Is it as bad as that?"

"The gang has us by the neck and has us scared. We have no leader." A few weeks later, when ready to take up his ministerial duties, Mr. Stevens asked to be sent to Newbern.

"But we have a minister there," was replied. "But he has lost nearly all of his congregation."

"Yes, the reports from that parish are not at all cheering, and I believe Brother Baker would welcome a transfer. You know it's one of the hardest towns in the state."

"I have spent four days there." "The cause of religion is reported as very lukewarm."

"I didn't know that there was any there at all," smiled the minister. "Well, you'll be appointed to the place. I hope you may stir things up."

The Rev. Mr. Stevens arrived. He started out with a sermon that jolted and jarred. He spared neither Christian nor sinner. While he criticized the former for lack of backbone, he plainly told the latter that the crisis had come. The crisis meant decency and reform without any shame about it.

After the sermon he lingered to talk with members of his congregation. He found them looking forward with great timidly. If he started a crusade he must not expect any active help from them. They were thoroughly cowed.

"This is to be a one man crusade," he answered them. "I did not expect your aid, and so I'm not disappointed."

Monday morning the crusade opened. Mr. Stevens visited the sheriff, and, without any beating around the bush, he said:

"Sheriff, I am the new minister." "Yes?" "I am going for your crowd tooth and toe nail."

"Why do you call it my crowd?" was asked. "Because it is. There are violations of the law every hour of the day, and you stand by without interference. You drink in every saloon, and you count on every lawbreaker. It's the same with your deputies and the constables. It's got to stop. You have got to do your sworn duty."

"Another reformer struck the town, eh?" was the insulting reply. The sheriff went from saloon to saloon and laughed at the reformer and said there should be no interference from him. Within two weeks he was removed and another man named by the minister was in his shoes. The citizens of Newbern were stunned. It seemed incredible.

The Rev. Mr. Stevens visited the justice in his saloon and said:

"It's for you to enforce the law, and here you are among the lawbreakers! The others are depending upon you to dismiss any complaint made against them. What course are you going to take?"

"None of your business!" The next day the minister complained of nine saloons which had violated the law. Each one of them was dismissed. Inside of twenty days the old justice was out and a new one in.

There were ordinances against Sunday sports. They had not been enforced in five years. They came to the front now. No more baseball or horse racing.

"Beat the meddler up!" was whispered, and a shake purse was made up to reward a scrapper for doing it.

He started out with great ardor to make a two minute job of it, but it lasted only half that time. The minister knocked him out with a jab on the jaw and then had him arrested and fined for disorderly conduct.

Then a public meeting was called at a hall, and the minister did some tall talking. He put heart into the decent citizens so strongly that they came out boldly to his support, and the opposition saw that their cause was lost.

One thing more. The Rev. Mr. Stevens from his pulpit raked the citizens of Newbern as they had never heard a minister talk before. They owed a duty to God and to man. They must show up at church, whether they were Christians or not. The Sunday school must be resurrected. There must be church work. Religion and politics must mix until every office in the county was filled by a decent man. The devil had had possession of Newbern long enough. Now he must be knocked down and dragged out. There was no devil there a year later. A stranger stopping at the Inn of a Sunday would have looked around him and mused:

"A clean town—a nice town—a respectable town. Everybody seems to be going to church, and I guess I'd go along too."
