Misrepresentation Is Expensive

By HOLLAND.

DECEPTION or attempted deception is wrong. It is also foolish. Attempted deception, deception that does not deceive, is still more foolish.

Successful business men are not foolish. They do not attempt deception. Aside from its being wrong, they know that it is foolish, that it is expensive, that it will not pay.

That is the reason that advertising is truthful, that it is dependable, that you and other readers of this paper have confidence in it. That is the reason that advertising pays.

Even Ananias never paid money for newspaper space in which to circulate his assaults on truth. He was a deal of a liar, if his reputation is deserved, but he wrote no false advertisements. If that ancient purveyor of canards has a modern successor the present day exponent of prevarication is not an advertiser.

Goods that are advertised persistently must have merit. Advertising that is continuous must be truthful. You can protect yourself by buying advertised goods of merchants who advertise. There is too much at stake for them to attempt to deceive.
