Commercial Club Banquet

spirit of co operation that was being fostered between the college and the city, and clearly pointed out the advantage of the university to the city.

Chas. O. Roe philosophized that as it was growing late, and as other better talkers (the inferior thinkers) were still on the program he had decided to have his carefully prepared speech printed, and in that form the people could take plenty of time to propound its propensities, and he would yield the remainder of the evening to the remaining speakers.

Boasts County Fair

J. W. Hughes, like the true auctioneer that he is, raised the value of the Washington County Fair stock far above par in an enthusiastic speech in its behalf. He said that while the directors have assumed the entire responsibility of the first fair and had not asked a single donation from the public, that now in order to get the support of the entire community, and to relieve the great responsibility now thrown upon a few individuals, that the committee would soon be out after liberal contributions, to insure a permanent success of the association. He told of the great benefits of a fair to the farmers, to the merchants and to the community at large.

Gives Straight Talk

With the evening far spent, Tom Richardson, of the Oregon Development League, the king of all boosters, took the floor and for fifteen minutes told hard truths, intermingled with deservng compliments about our people and county.

A Good Religion

Introducing himself by remarking that he had never before seen such an ugly lot of men in the custody of so many beautiful women, he started into the doctrine of his religion. "Boosting and development is my religion, the sweetest and best and purest religion ever known, the religion of accomplishment. The commercial club in a community can be a tremendous power in utilizing the gifts of God toward the advancement of the community.

"The Willamette Valley is the poorest place in the world for a new comer, be a use the people fail to mix with strangers and make them feel at home. Altho a man comes to a community and gets started well and begins to become acclimated, yet if the neighbors fail to call on his wife and take her in as one of them, they will soon long for the home ties of friendship, of the people they have left, and the society they have lost, and will drift back to a less profitable, but a more congenial environment. Gain is not the whole of life by any means, and we people in Oregon must realize that we must hold out as inducements in addition to the wonderful opportunities of gaining a livelihood, the satisfaction of neighborly friendship and cultural enjoyment. In this respect the chief duty falls upon the women, who must do more than simply sending a formal invitation to join their club, but must make personal and informal neighborly calls, borrow a cup of sugar and lend a half dozen eggs."

Tom explained that Oregon was the worst situated state in the Union as far as traffic is concerned. "People go from city to city, from port to port, without ever getting into the country. When a new comer gets to Portland he is practically out of the state, and that is generally the only stop made by tourists. In order to get a fair percentage of the immense traffic due on the Western coast in 1915, the various towns must begin an advertising campaign and induce prospective new comers to buy their tickets with stop-over privileges in Forest Grove and other country centers.

"The most effective boosting literature is personal letters. What we want is common sense in advertising. Honesty is the factor in business that pays, and advertising is the most sensitive business of this day. Have a little pamphlet printed telling of the actual resources of your community and of its many advantages. And remember that many colored inks and exaggerated statements are an insult to the Creator who has so wonderfully blessed this community.

"Never before have financial conditions been so favorable to Oregon. The farmers have had excellent crops and have received top notch prices and are facing the best indications for future years of prosperity. I urge you to get together and accomplish the great possibilities of your community."

Hillsboro Wet 60 Years, Dry

The county seat of Washington County will be without saloons for the first time since 1852. The vote of 999 on the liquor question polling 481 "dry" to 458 "wet."

The five liquor dealers of Hillsboro had a conference, and it is openly stated that the legality of the election will be questioned in the Circuit Court. Women figured largely in the election, and it is estimated that not more than a half dozen prohibition voters remained away from the polls.

Sherwood Long Wet, Dry

After being wet a score of years Sherwood by four votes turned the tables and went dry in a bitter and closely contested fight.

Hood Asks Exhibit Space.

Hood River.—To make an estimate of the funds that it will be necessary for the county court to appropriate and include in next year's budget, the Hood River Commercial club has been endeavoring to find how much space can be obtained for Hood River exhibits at the International Panama exposition at San Francisco. It is the purpose of the club to aid the court in making two exhibits, one in the Oregon building and the other in the palace of horticulture.

Judge Says Election Will Not Hold.

Roseburg.—Judge Hamilton, in the circuit court, has declared void an election held in school district No. 5, October 13, at which 3000 was voted for the purpose of building a new school house. The court held that October 13 was Columbus day and therefore a legal holiday, and that an election is a quasi-judicial function and not merely an administrative one.

Oregon Boy's Cow Wins.

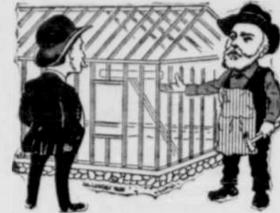

Monmouth.—According to a telegram received here from Chicago, a yearling Jersey cow, belonging to Johnny B. Stump, 12-year-old son of J. B. Stump of this city, carried away the sweepstakes against cattle from all parts of the United States at the National Livestock show.

WEST ON SCHOOL SURVEYS

Predicts Trouble for Interior Department if Certain Conditions Continue.

Salem.—Declaring that the interior department will find itself in hot water if it attempts to hold up title to all surveyed lands passed to the state at the time the surveys were approved, and such lands are not valid as bases for indemnity selections when they are within a federal forest reserve, Governor West has given out a statement presenting the view of his office in the matter.

The question has come up before the department in Washington, where Miss Fern Hobbs, the governor's private secretary, is endeavoring to get a number of state land matters settled for the benefit of the state. About 15,000 acres are involved in the controversy, but the governor states that less than 1000 acres are surveyed. So if the department makes the ruling contemplated it will not seriously affect this state, but will largely affect other states.
