

G. A. R. AND WOMEN OF RELIEF CORPS INSTALL

Joint Annual Ceremony And Dinner Enjoyed by 100 Heroes and Heroines

The Grand Army of the Republic and the Women's Relief Corps of this city assembled in the Knights of Pythias Hall, for their annual dinner and joint installation last Thursday.

Around the three long tables were seated about 100 boys in their blue, their wives and friends, and the affair was a very happy occasion, the guests telling stories of war times. Talks were given by James Butler and Patrick Cronin and there was informal music.

The officers of the Women's Relief Corps are: Pres. Mrs. Butler; Senior, Mrs. Whitney, Junior Vice, Rebecca Tewart; Secretary, Sophia Smith; Treasurer Nettie Austin; Chaplain, Magie Stephenson; Conductor Emily Anderson; Guard Mary Smith; 1st color-bearer, Mrs. Cornelius; 2nd Colorbearer Mrs. McNamer 3rd Colorbearer Anna Crabtree Jr. 4th Colorbearer Anna Crabtree Sr. Installing Officer, Nettie Austin.

John Stribich Will Build

John Stribich has bought the lot at the corner of First Avenue South and A Street, through the Good Investment Co., and will erect an up-to-date wagon and repair shop as soon as the weather clears up sufficiently, and John recovers from his indisposition. It is rumored that he recently sold his property on Main Street, where his shop is now located for $4000.

Philip Schneider has been appointed executor of the last will and testament of Charles Schneider, who died at his home near Cornelius, January 6. There are seven children to share the estate with his widow, the probable value of which is $12,000. F. Herring, C. Hulman and W. Cooke have been appointed appraisers of the estate.

Joseph Kingsley has filed his final report as administrator of the estate of Mary Hingley, showing that the estate has been divided among the heirs. The estate has been closed of record, and the administrator discharged from further liability.

There Will be a Hot Time

There will be a hot time in basket ball circles when Newberg High School comes to this city January 30th for a game with the local lads.

Newberg has one of the very best teams in the state and if they are beaten Forest Grove will no doubt get the state championship. The game a few days ago in the Quaker City would indicate that the towns are neck and neck variety—our team won there by one point and they are living on a diet of raw eggs and beef steak so as to do a little better when Ye Brethren quiet comes here.

There will be no game here next Saturday but Jan. 21 St. Johns will send a boy's and girl's team to try for honors with the locals

Cartoonist Murphy Married at Verboort

Slipping quietly away from Portland, Cartoonist J. E. Murphy, of the Oregon Daily Journey, was quietly married yesterday afternoon at Verboort. The ceremony was performed by Father LeMiller in the presence of P. H. McHenry and L. A. Fernsworth, newspaper men and the Misses Mary Cappoen and Pauline Hermens of Verboort. The bride is Miss Tillie Catherine Crane of Portland, recently of Selma, Calif.

Revival Meeting at the Free Methodist Church—Rev. Wilbur N. Coffee district elder will hold the quarterly meeting commencing January 25. Rev. Coffee is an interesting speaker and a strong clear teacher of Bible truths. All are invited to attend these meetings.

Cow Causes Suit—In the suit of Jackson vs. McIntyre, in Judge Beach's court here yesterday, over the sale of a cow, Jackson received judgment.

Social Hygiene Meeting

The Social Hygiene Society has arranged for Parents' Meetings to be held Friday night, January 16, at the Central and High School buildings. Topics of vital interest to the health of the individual and perpetuity of the race will be discussed by Drs. Kauffman and Simones, Prof. Bean and Rev. R. E. Dunlap. A second meeting will be held January 21 at Marsh Hall. All adults are invited.

A NARROW ESCAPE

By SAMUEL E. BRANT

When young Mrs. Marshall came to L., knowing that the start one makes socially in a place counts for a good deal, she made herself agreeable to every one, became familiar with only the best, was careful that her costumes were cut in the latest fashion, and, since the dominant circle admitted of cavaliers for their prominent members, she rather encouraged the attentions of Huntington Dabney.

It must be admitted that keeping Mr. Dabney up to his duties as her cavalier was hard work. His main accomplishment was leading a cotillon, and he was not known to have any secondary one. Mrs. Marshall could stand to be put in a straitjacket costume and listen to society gossip, including private quarrels and the mishap of the last social climber who had fallen from an upper round of the ladder to the bottom, but found it tiresome, indeed, to pretend to be flirting with Huntington Dabney in a solitary corner at a function in order to maintain a reputation for being one of those ladies to whom husband and children are a bore. And it was the harder for her because she was devoted both to her husband and her children. As for Mr. Marshall, she told him in the beginning what her designs really amounted to, but he didn't take sufficient interest in the matter to remember the explanation.

Among the other penalties Mrs. Marshall must pay for effecting an entrance into L. society was the sitting in tight slippers for several hours at dinner parties. Her feet were tender, and for this reason her footwear was made of light material, but even silken slippers, made very small, binding the feet for hours on a stretch, will at last cause pain. It was sitting thus at a dinner party for an unusually long period that brought about a mishap to Mrs. Marshall that came very near plunging her to the foot of the social ladder and rendering her fall so unfortunate that she would not have been able to begin to climb again.

At the dinner in question Mr. Dabney was assigned to take Mrs. Marshall out. Mr. Marshall having been honored by being assigned to the hostess. Mrs. Marshall's shoe pinched, and after enduring a long period of suffering she slipped it off. Mr. Dabney, who was a restless man, must needs kick his legs about under the table till he sent the slipper off to parts unknown. When at last the innumerable courses had been finished and a pouffe cafe put a close upon the feast the diners arose to go into another part of the house for a cotillon.

Mrs. Marshall, who had for some time been feeling with her toe for the missing slipper, finding that without some expedient she must go with the others in a stocking foot, so to speak, when the party were rising, kept her seat, talking very hard to her cavalier, pretending to be so wrapped in her subject as not to notice the movement. Of course the gentleman kept his seat, too, and was all attention. The lady watched out of the corner of her eye the retiring guests and saw that no especial notice was taken of her remaining behind. As soon as the others were all gone she informed Mr. Dabney that she had lost her slipper under the table and had lagged behind to recover it. Dabney started to get it getting down, groped for the missing article. It was dark down there, and Mrs. Marshall was nearsighted. She hunted some time without success. Then Mr. Dabney's gallantry got the better of his discretion, and down he, too, went under the table to help. The host had scarcely left the dining room before he proposed that the men return for a pony brandy. Several of the ladies whose heads were not easily overturned by spirituous beverages declared that they, too, wanted "another." Suddenly the dining room door was thrown open, and a merry party entered. Mrs. Marshall, realizing the horror of the situation of being caught under the table with her cavalier, whispered to him:

"For heaven's sake be still!" Mr. Dabney obeyed orders. What else could he do? The host poured the liquor and all were standing around the table ready to drink when "those under it" heard him say:

"What the deuce became of Dabney and Mrs. Marshall? They didn't leave the dining room with the rest of us." "They must have gone out by another door," suggested one of the women. "Drink her down," said the host, "and we'll go and look for them. They must have gone up that stairway. I don't allow any scattering in my house," he added jocularly.

The revelers tossed off the brandy and ran laughing up the staircase. As soon as the last one had disappeared Mrs. Marshall scrambled out and ran like a deer to an unoccupied music room, followed by Mr. Dabney with the slipper. Then Mrs. Marshall sat down to a piano and began to run over the keys. This brought those who hunted for them, and all exclaimed:

"How did you do it?" When Mrs. Marshall that night before going to bed told her husband of the narrow escape she had had he looked at her in holy horror. "Great Scott, mummy," he exclaimed, "that's the nearest thing to a catastrophe that ever happened in this family!"

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

NOW FOR MUSHROOMS.

MUSHROOMS may now be found in the country, and the city housewife will find them in the markets.

If they are available for your table you are fortunate, for they may be used to vary the flavor of other foods or made into many dainty dishes alone or in combination with other foods.

An Appetizing Dish.

Baked Mushrooms.—Prepare the mushrooms for stewing. Place them in a baking pan in a moderate oven. Season with salt, pepper, lemon juice and chopped parsley. Cook in the oven fifteen minutes, baste with butter, arrange on a dish and pour gravy over them. Serve with a sauce made by beating together a cupful of cream, two ounces of butter, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a little cayenne pepper, salt, a tablespoonful of white sauce and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Put in a saucepan on the fire. Stir until thick, but do not let boil.
