A Candid Opinion.

Mr. Harris had been considering for some time the advisability of approach ing his son's schoolteacher in regard to that young man's studies. He was sure William was not getting along as fast as he should, and this fact worried the father greatly.

He was greeted kindly by the teacher, and after a few preliminary questions the father inquired:

"What branch do you consider the most profitable for my son William. Mr. Flint?"

"I can hardly say, but I think a good, stout blue beech or a long, sinuous birch would do him as much good as any."-Lippincott's.

Idealism.

Nothing is more essential than the courage, the joy and the insight which grow out of idealism, and no spiritual possession is so easily lost. The spiritual depression of a reactionary period, the routine of work, the immersion in the stream of events, the de cline of moral energy, conspire to blight this noble use of the imagination. and to chill the faith which makes creative living and working possible. The familiar companionship of the great idealists is one of the greatest resources against the paralysis of this faith and the decay of this faculty.-H. W. Mable, "Books and Culture."

The Best Fortune Teller.

The quest of noblemen for wealth in America has been talked about for decades, but few, if any, can rival Baron Assezcash in being witty in a practical way.

Miss de Millyuns, his prospective wife, was entertaining the baron one evening and apropos of lovers' nothings she asked:

"Did you, baron, ever go to a for tune teller?"

"Yes, mees, many times. But the last time was best.'

"Where did you go?" "I went to the probate court to find out about your grandfather's will."-New York Tribune.
