Congressional Candidate in Town

Mark V. Weatherford of Albany, democratic and prohibition candidate for congress from this (the first) district, was in town Tuesday, looking after his political interests. Mr. Weatherford says that, since 1396 of his friends thought enough of him to write his name on the primary ballots, he is going to try to be elected. The prohibitionists have promised him 40,000 votes and he says if they give him 30,000 he will be the next congressman from this district. Mr. Weatherford expects soon to start on a speaking tour of the district. He is an attorney of more than ordinary ability, a pleasant conversationalist and the writer believes he would do his constituents some good in congress.

Mr. Weatherford travels in an auto and was accompanied by Prof. O. V. White, an instructor in Albany College, chairman of the prohibition congressional committee and a son-in-law to Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Gordon, living near this city. Clyde T. Ecker, publisher of the Independence Monitor, was the third member of the party and both he and Prof. White are predicting Mr. Weatherford's election.
