Circuit Court

The case of Henry Dorbaugh vs. the S. P. company, in which the plaintiff was suing to recover damages for the motor truck and produce which was destroyed by a freight train a few miles north of Hillsboro last fall, was nonsuited and the defendants were ordered by the court to pay the expenses of the court action.

Earl Ringle, one of the two men who were successfully looting the Hillsboro Mercantile store and selling the loot over the counter of the Ringle meat market, was given sentence by Judge Bagley Tuesday morning. Attorney H. T. Bagley made a plea for leniency and presented a petition signed by prominent Hillsboro businessmen, favoring a parole for Ringle. Prosecuting Attorney Tongue presented the state side of the case, giving a short review of the facts, and suggested that the present day tendencies were for giving the convicted man the best of the deal. Ringle was then sentenced to serve not less than 3½ years in the penitentiary nor more than 32. He was paroled on condition that he make his residence in the state of Oregon, and is to violate no laws of this state, and pay a fine of $150 and make restitution to the Mercantile Company of $250.

Fritz Doehler who actually committed the thefts, was fined $500 and paroled to Washington and Multnomah counties on condition that he pay the fine and refund to the Hillsboro Mercantile company $500. He paid and is at liberty.

The State Industrial Accident Commission has brought a suit against O. G. Carnahan to get a judgment for $42.05, due from an alleged failure of Carnahan to comply with the Oregon laws in regard to the accident funds. The defendant conducts a saw mill and logging business near Banks.

Will Haase is foreclosing a mortgage held against Elmer Pease, et al, for the sum of $1800.

Viola M. Burgett is seeking a divorce from her husband, Roy Burgett. The husband is charged with cruel and inhuman treatment, and failing to provide for the plaintiff.

In the case of Austin L. Cash vs. Josef Meiter the plaintiff is suing to get a clear title to certain property which he purchased from the defendant.

Probate Court

In the estate of Frank C. Orth, Minnie Orth is petitioning for the appointment of herself as administrator. The value of the estate is placed at $9,500.

C. F. Tigard is petitioning for the appointment of himself as administrator in the estate of Martin Knudsen, deceased. The estate is valued at $5,000.

In the matter of the guardianship of Ruth O'Conner, William Hare is petitioning for the appointment of himself as guardian of the girl, who is a minor and heir to an estate of $1,500.

Miscellaneous

The term of the November grand jury has been ordered extended to include the March term and the members have been ordered to report. Several investigations were left after the fall term and this is given as the reason for their return.

Mariam Alexander, a woman living on Oak Hill, near Forest Grove, has the distinction of being the first woman prisoner in the county jail since Sheriff Applegate took the office. She is charged with pouring boiling water down the back of her step-son, a 14-year-old boy. She is held to the circuit court under a bond of $1,000, furnished by her husband, Robert Alexander, after she has spent one night in jail.

Seven indictments are said to have been returned against Stettler, the Mountindale winemaker, whose place was raided by Sheriff Applegate some time ago.

The members of Rosewood camp, Royal Neighbors of America, last Friday evening enjoyed an official visit from Mrs. Gertrude Simmons of Portland, state deputy, who gave the Neighbors a very interesting talk on the good of the order. Six new members were initiated and in honor of the event, the members had planned to have tea and wafers, but about the time to put on the tea a deliveryman brought in a freezer of ice cream, a present from E. U. Cate, so the lunch was a little more elaborate than at first planned.
