

CHAPTER II-Continued. -3 The Dowager Dragon glanced fore

and aft; but there were no other passengers within earshot, and the ports behind them, though alight, were shut and sound-tight. "Betty Merrilees," she said.

"You're warm-as the children say in hide-and-seek.'

"Aha!" the lady cried in triumph. "Well, then ! Betty doesn't mean to try to beat the customs. She told me so herself. The row that man Loeb has kicked up about smuggling has scared her so that she's made up her mind to declare every blessed trinket. So you see, Quoin, you're simply wasting your time trailing Betty Merrilees."

Quoin smiled vaguely at his finger tips. "No, I'm not," he contradicted. Mrs. Beggarstaff sniffed suspicious-

ly. "I've guessed wrong?"

"For once in a way. The truth is, I don't care whether Mrs. Merrilees defrauds the government or not. It's over a year since I left the secret service. I don't like the work-too tame-and having learned all it could teach me, I quietly dropped out and returned to my old field."

"Private investigation, eh?"

"There's some fun in that," Quoin said with mild enthusiasm, "Odd jobs-I love 'em. They're generally so very odd-unexpected besides."

"Quoin," the lady inquired with a change of tone, "you remember the Joachim collection?"

"Do I remember it !" Quoin protested with reproachful sincerity. "I wish I might hope ever to be repaid for the sleep I lost on that case !"

"You never got a clue?"

"Never one. That was a masterly job."

"Has none of the stuff ever turned up?"

"Oh, plenty of it, here and theremostly in Europe. In fact, I'm told that Joachim has reassembled most of the collection; but it has cost him five times his original outlay."

"There are, of course, pieces still missing?"

MRS. BEGGARSTAFF DISCOVERS THAT LUCY CARTERET OWNS A BEAUTIFUL NECKLACE WHICH HAD BEEN STOLEN FROM A VALUABLE COL-LECTION SOME TIME BEFORE

A beautiful, well-bred English-woman, nervous and suspicious, finds when she boards the steamer Alsatia, bound from Liverpool for New York, that her stateroom mate is Mrs. Amelia Beggarstaff, a fascinating wealthy American widow of about sixty years. The girl says her name is Lucy Carteret and that she is going to America to meet her father, who has lived there many years. Something about the girl's manner makes the widow wonder what's the trouble. She is much surprised to find Lucy possesses a magnificent necklace which the girl said her father had given her for Christmas, is asleep-and I want to replace it | before she wakes up."

"One minute, if you don't mind. Perhaps you can tell me something-" "On one condition," the old lady stip. to him." ulated firmly. "You must let me in on the ground floor. I'll not lift my hand to help you in anything that's a mystery to me.'

"I don't mind telling you in the least. This isn't a case-just simple curlosity on my part. Did you ever know anybody by the name of Hicks-Lorrimerin London?" "Bless my income!" exclaimed Mrs. Beggarstaff indignantly, "No! Who is he-or she?"

"I don't know; that's why I asked you-who know everybody. One question more: What do you know about your friend Mr. Craven?"

"Tad Craven?" exclaimed the Dowager Dragon in blank amazement. What's he been doing?"

"Nothing very desperate: only making love to Mrs. Merrilees. Think she'll marry him?" "Couldn't say. She's a flighty creature, and Tad's tremendously amusing. What concern is it of yours?"

"None whatever. You haven't told me what you know about him."

"Why-of course !- what the world knows. He's an entertaining little man who came out of nowhere to cheer us up about fifteen years ago. Never was heard of before one fine morning when we all woke up to find he be-

"Craven, of course! Now you mention it, a distinct resemblance."

"This Miss Carteret says her father gave it to her because of its likeness

"What did you say the name was, in full?"

"Lucy Carteret. But when she told me she tripped and stumbled over something that sounded suspiciously like 'Lid.' 'Lid' for Lydia, ch?" "Lucy Carteret-Lydia Craven," the detective mused aloud.

"Help me up," the Downger Dragon demanded excitably. "I'm going downstairs this minute and have a good look round that cabin, if the girl isn't awake. Quoin," she added with animation, as the detective gave her his hand, "If it turns out as we think-" "Hope?" he suggested, smiling.

"For my part, hope. If it turns out as we hope, this voyage is going to be most amusing. And I was afraid of being bored !"

"Then," Quoin reminded her, "you ought to be very grateful to me.' "I love you for it !' Mrs. Beggarstaff declared ardently.

CHAPTER III.

Long after dark Miss Carteret wakened. For some minutes she lay in dreaming into obscurity. The stateroom was dusky with shadows; but of you-" deck lights beyond the open window ports pointed wan squares upon the white interior woodwork. The sweep of clean sea air through the room was as sweet as fresh cool water to a parched throat. Feeling stronger and to the port. more herself for each delicious breath, humbly the girl gave thanks; for it seemed that, with the passing of the gale, the ghastly incubus of mal-demer had been exorcised.

Presently, conscious of a pang of hunger, she touched the repeating spring on her bracelet watch-an exquisitely small, jeweled extravagance, her father's gift of the previous Christmas-and bent an attentive ear to its elfin chime. Eight o'clock. It was too late to dress and dine in public. But is she lay in doubt, trying to decide whether she was really as hungry as she felt, or would do better to deny a trisyllable hiss of which each part was longer and more emphatic than its predecessor. Unmistakably of human origin, though as odd and alarming as the warning of a serpent, it brought the girl from her bed to her feet with a start.

Her movement was a noiseless one. The man who had sounded that strange call she discovered stealing immediately outside the window; his back was to it, so that she could see little more than the concave line of his dark, lean, shaved cheek, and the back of a long, narrow head beneath a steamer cap with vizor well down over his eyes.

Almost immediately the hiss was answered by quick, light footsteps, and the voice of one as yet invisible, a voice of guarded accent but vibrant with indignation, "What the devil do you mean by buzzing me like that?" The girl trembled, Ualess her senses If you wake up with a bad taste, were untrustworthy, she knew that furred tongue, nasty breath or stomvoice better than her own. It seemed impossible that she could be mistaken. It was again audible, the response of the man outside the window having tant, also the most abused and neglectescaped her. "Yop infatuate ass! Don't ed organ of the body. Few know its you know better than to take such chances?"

"Oh, it's all right. He's up on the "Oh, it's all right. He's up on the boat deck, chianin' with some skirt, which can only be used occasionally I made sure of that before I laid for you. Trust me."

"Trust you to play the fool! Don't you know every word you utter can be overheard in those staterooms?"

Instinctively the girl crouched in the shadow of her bedstend, in deadly terror lest she be detected at her involun-

But her fears were quickly dissipated, the interview terminating as abruptly as it had begun.

volce continued incisively. "And for and any pharmacist will sell you a the last time I warn you: Don't approach me again aboard this ship!" "But-listen," the other pleaded lazy content, unstirring, wide eyes and threatened in the one Breath. "We got to get a straight answer out

> "I've given it already-twice. For the third time-no!" With this the last speaker strode briskly forward.

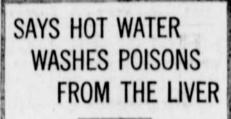

Rising as silently as any shadow, Miss Carteret again turned her face

The man who had hissed was still there, watching the other way.

She fancied something sullen and menacing in the lowering inclination that it is the standard skin treatment of his head, the stoop of his narrow shoulders.

Suddenly, with a mumbled word, Inarticulate with anger, he turned and went swiftly aft.

Do you believe that Lucy Carteret is telling the truth and Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in It, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. ach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexions, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanli-Your liver is the most imporness. function or how to release the dammed up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; tary eavesdropping-so strong upon thus cleansing, sweetening and fresh her sensitive perceptions the psycho- ening the entire alimentary canal belogical effect of this surreptitious pas- fore putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not re strict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It "Good-night!" that well-remembered is inexpensive and almost tasteless, quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

If Your Skin Itches Just Use Resinol

No remedy can honestly promise to heal every case of eczema or similar skin allment. But Resinol Ointment, aided by Resinol Soap, gives such instant relief from the itching and burning, and so generally succeeds in clearing the eruption away for good, of thousands and thousands of physicians. Sold by all druggists.

Getting Used to It.

"Turkish women muffle the entire lower part of the face with a veil, leaving only the eyes exposed. Queer costume, eh?"

"I thought so until our girls began wearing their furs that way."-Louis-

"Oh, naturally !" "Well, then," said the lady dellberately, "I don't mind telling you that there's one piece I distinctly remember, on board this ship-a magnificent sardonyx cameo."

"Truly?"

"Would you care to see it? Thenlook !"

Mrs. Beggarstaff unclosed her left hand. In its palm lay Miss Carteret's Almost Immediately the Hiss Was brooch!

With a wondering exclamation, Ouoin bent forward to examine the cameo, while Mrs. Beggarstaff regarded with a triumphant smile his bent head. It was something to have startled the greatest living detective, which was precisely the distinction the keen-witted old woman accorded this man.

"Take it to the light and have a good look."

"Thank you," said Quoin, rising instantly and moving forward to the lighted companionway, where he lingered a long minute, intently inspecting the brooch with a small magnifying glass.

"Unquestionably one of the missing pieces," he declared flatly, returning, "and, if I'm not mistaken, one of the finest in the collection. How did you come by it, please?"

"It's the property of the young person who shares my cabin; name, Lucy Carteret. She's an American, about twenty, and has lived abroad all her life. Now she's going to New York to interposed hastily; "but keep it to more. join her father, who-she says-gave yourself. Yesterday afternoon, when her this on her fifteenth birthday."

pere?"

objected. "The woods are full of Car- and ran something like this: 'Lydia had been annulled by the church. Life terets; but I know none that this child disappeared. What shall I do? Awaitresembles in any way. Besides, she ing advice before notifying police.' country of Monaco-noted principally has denied every relationship I've sug- Signed, 'Hicks-Lorrimer.' And after for its great gambling resort, Monte gested so far."

found, this paternal Carteret will lice. If girl doesn't return, wire me a divorce. probably prove to be a perfectly honest bourgeois who picked up the cameo 'Hicks-Lorrimer, eleven King Charles' casually in some out-of-the-way shop, at home or abroad. I've often thought that the widespread distribution of that loot might be taken as pretty good evidence in support of something I've his wife; for he refers to her in his always contended was a popular chi- reply as the 'girl.' If his daughter, clothes are pleasant to look upon, but tries of the present belligerents are longed. No money, so far as I knowor just enough to enable him to live well without working too hard. Nowadays New York teems with just this type of unaccountable persons-de an to enjoy the distinction-and suffer cent, diverting, well-bred, and three- the disillusionment-of being the wife quarters idle. That's all-except I of a sovereign, was born in New Orlike the man."

Answered by Quick, Light Footsteps.

"You never heard he was married?" "He isn't!" Mrs. Beggarstaff exclaimed, dumfounded.

"I don't say so. I only wonder. Of Louisiana family. course, if you never heard he was married, you never suspected him of having a daughter-you're too pureminded."

"Thank you for nothing. What are you driving at?" "And if he hasn't a daughter, who in thunderation is Lydia?"

"Quoin," said the Dowager Dragon solemnly, "I warn you, if you keep me on tenterhooks another instant-"

I was killing time in the wireless "The question is, Who is Carteret house, a message came in which I read over the operator's shoulder as "I'm not psychic," Mrs. Beggarstaff he wrote it down. It was for Craven, Douglas Hamilton, an Englishwoman, a while Craven's reply was brought in Carlo-was not a bed of roses, and she "But we mustn't forget that, when for transmission, 'Keep away from po- soon tired of it. The prince was given

New York Saturday.' Addressed. court, London, West.' Now who is 'Lydia' to Craven if not wife or daughter, that wireless messages must advise him of her disappearance? Not herself food until breakfast, she heard a sound from the outer deck so singular that in a twinkling it focused her drowsy, errant wits. The sound was "Psst-pssst-pssst,"

AMERICAN WEDS A RULER

Alice Heine, Who Enjoyed Unusual Distinction, Soon Tired of Life as Princess of Monaco.

Alice Heine, the only American womleans fifty-nine years ago. Her father was Michael Heine, a Jewish banker, and her mother Miss Amelle Miltenberger, who came of a prominent Having made a fortune in New Orleans, Michael Heine settled in Paris after the Franco-Prussian war, and rose to be a noted financier. His daughter, Alice, became the bride of the duc de Richelleu, scion of an ancient French line. She bore him a son and a daughter, after which he died. The son inherited the title, and a few years ago followed the example of his father by taking an American wife, "Here you are, then," the detective Miss Eleanor Douglas Wise of Balti-

> Alice Heine, duchess of Richelleu, remained a widow many years before she was won by the prince of Monaco, whose prior marriage to Lady Mary with the sovereign prince of the tiny

Lesson of the Tug.

There's nothing dishonorable in being a tug. In times of need a tug is that she is an honest, high-class girl; or do you think she is one of a band of shrewd crooks? The next installment brings important developments.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

to stand the strain. They are not

beautiful but they are mighty efficient when the right kind of power gets inside of them. And you are no less a gentleman because they fit you. That man is honorable who makes himself respected by his conduct and the work he does. No amount of polish can atone for a mean ideal. And no amount of toll can lower the man of honor to the level of the beast. The tug may be insignificant beside the lines, but its work is just as honorable and often requires just as much brains and skill to accomplish it .- Pennsylvania Grit.

"What Makes It Stop?"

The following communication has been received by the Galveston News: "Sparksville-Gents: The gas engine you sent me stops when there's nothing the matter with its that the trouble. It wouldent bee so bad if it stopped for some reason and anybody knows theres reasons enough for it to stop. I received the book which you sent me which is named what Makes the Gasoline Engine Go. I ain't read it yet because what's the use reading it when I dont care what makes the gasoline engine go as long as it goes which mine dont only occasionally.

"What I want to know is What Makes the Gasoline Engine Stop. If you got a book called that send me one. I want to know what makes my gasoline engine stop when everything is O K and nothing is the matter except that it must be a rotten engine. "HIRAM DIGGS."

Santa Turns Spanlard.

The whole toy industry of the world worth a thousand pleasure boats. It's is undergoing readjustment because of what a man is able to do and does the war, and countries that formerly that tells what his worth is. Good imported their stocks from the counmera—the existence of a regular or-ganization of social freebooters. You're going?" he added as Mrs. Beggarstaff stirred and sat up, preparatory to ris-ing. he must be a widower." After a thoughtful moment the Dow-date of distress. Kid gloves may have a place in the family pew and social functions, but the ways of the world demand tougher stock in labos. It takes overalls, corduror and buckskin of Latin-America,

Philadelphia, Pa.-"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides at periods and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I soon noticed a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."-Mrs. THOS. McGOM-IGAL, 3432 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

Reduces Strained, Puffy Ankles, Lymphangitis, Poll Evil, Fistula, Boils, Swellings; Stops Lameness and allays pain. Heals Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Boot Chafes. It is a SAFE ANTISEPTIC AND GERMICIDE

Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Pleasant to use. they are often a hindrance in times now either looking to new sources of $2.00 a bottle, delivered. Describe your case