THE RED CROSS

I wear a Cross of brilliant red That stands for rescue from the dead; It also stands for sacrifice, When men and women pay the price. It shows the world the debt of love That must have come from heaven above.

For no reward do we receive Who wear the Red Cross on our sleeve.

The Red Cross means a royal gift Of self; or means that we may lift Humanity to higher place And elevate the human race. Like sentinel, we wait the call And give the best we have—our all. And with it just that tender smile That makes the gift—well, worth the while.

What does the Red Cross mean to you? Oh, friend of mine, what will you do? For, great or small, no matter where, May find a place and do their share. Oh, wondrous badge of honor dear, The emblem of the volunteer, That wondrous Cross of brilliant red, Whose deeds of love the world has led.

—John DeWitt.
