Mrs. Walter Baldwin and children visited relatives at Kelso, Wash., during the week.

George G. Hancock, real estate, farm loans and fire insurance, new Anderson block. 50

Henry Wahl, living near this city, and Rose Maitland of Gaston were united in marriage at Vancouver one day last week.

For men's shoes that fit well and wear long, talk to John Anderson. He especially recommends the William Marvin shoe.

The new Round Oak combination range burns gas, wood and coal. It must be seen to be appreciated. See it at the Gordon Hardware store.

Wm. VanAntwerp reports the sale of twenty acres belonging to Chas. Crane of Cornelius to Frank Cleveland, late of the Thatcher district.

The local Odd Fellows will have work in the initiatory degree next Monday night and all members are urged to attend, even if they do not take part in the ceremony.

Joe A. Wiles would like to write you insurance. Will give you service that will be to your advantage. West side Main St., north of Tucker's garage.

Mrs. Roy Mayea and little daughter returned last week from a five months' visit in Michigan. The thermometer warned them it was time to seek a warmer climate, so they came to good old Oregon.

There will be a meeting of farmers of the Tualatin valley at Beaverton next Monday to discuss methods of turning what are now waste products into profit. With the fertility of the soil decreasing, farmers feel that waste must be eliminated.

A certain church congregation at Beaverton has gone on record against dancing and has asked the city council to prohibit public dancing in that village. The council passed the buck by tabling the resolution and now the church people are angry at the councilmen.

Word comes from Portland that many counties in the state have been slow in sending in their share of the Red Cross funds. If any body in Washington county is in arrears, they will please dig up, so that this county can look Portland in the face and tell her to look to her own collections.

Leo J. Gray of Orenco, who failed to appear when called for military service, has been in the county jail for several days, having surrendered to the sheriff on Nov. 2d. Gray claims he was working at Hood River and did not receive notice to appear for examination. An opportunity to show the truth of his claims will be given him.

Peter Blazin of Spring Hill, who was painfully injured by a Southern Pacific switch engine on June 15th, this year, when the engine struck and demolished his buggy on South A street, last week brought suit in the circuit court of Portland against the said railroad company for $20,000 damages.

The Hillsboro Masonic lodge Saturday night conferred two degrees on Wade Killin, the candidates father, S. C. Killin, taking the leading part in the ceremony. A special dispensation was obtained to permit the conferring of two degrees in one night. Wade Killin's regiment (the 44th U. S. infantry) is under orders to move, hence the desire to hurry up the conferring of degrees.

Vincent Sweeney, who at one time owned the farm now owned by Nick Bothman, up Gales Creek, but who left this section nineteen years ago and is now living at Grants Pass, visited the John Fletcher family and other old friends last Friday. He went to the old farm, viewed familiar scenes and some that were entirely new to him, including the new railroad that is being built through that territory.

Wm. Engels of Kennewick, Wash., visited the first of the week in the W. H. Greer home.

Ed and Albert Ahlgren of this city Bill Kappel and Irving Bailey of David's Hill and Al Dilley of Gales Creek left Sunday morning for a week's fishing on the Wilson river.

As will be seen by a notice on another page, the well known law firm of Hollis & Graham has been dissolved, but without anger, as both gentlemen will remain under the same roof.

The starch factory at Beaverton is now buying cull potatoes at 50c per 100 pounds, with a portion of the sale price of the starch added to the price of the spuds. Six hundred tons are desired at once.

L. Purcell, who was badly bruised and shaken up a week ago Sunday when an auto struck the bicycle on which he was riding, was around town again the first of the week. He is a veteran of the civil war, even if he doesn't look old enough, and made a quick recovery from his accident.

Hill-boro's Commercial club has gone out of existence and a few of the old members and some new ones have started a new organization, to be known as the Hill boro Carnation club, the name being selected as a compliment to the milk condenser at the county seat. The new club will pay the debts of the old and take what property the old club owned.

Geo McGee, civil engineer, former county surveyor, and Alvin Hoffman, roddman and transit man, both of Hillsboro, have enlisted in the 23rd Regiment of Engineers for Highway Construction and will soon leave for the East. There will be 10,500 men in the regiment, one of the largest in the new army being sent over to Europe.—Hillsboro Argus.

John McNamer's friends are having a lot of fun at his expense, all because he didn't know the bag was open at both ends. John bought a couple of pigs last week and in some manner they escaped. One returned and the other was, after much trouble, caught on the Vic Brown place. With a sigh of relief, John dumped piggy into a gunny sack he had brought for the purpose, but when he lifted the sack to carry the infant porker home, he only lifted the sack, for the pig dropp'd out the bottom and again ran away. What John said dare not be published in this highly moral journal, but he is taking extra precautions that piggy doesn't escape again.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stout last Saturday attended the funeral of the former's grandmother, Mrs. Jessie M. Blakesley, who passed away at Emanuel hospital, Portland, on Nov. 8th aged 71 years, leaving four daughters and a number of grandchildren. The mother of deceased was the first white woman born in Oregon City, so Mrs. Blakesley may well be considered among the pioneers of Oregon.

That the late Louis P. Kerman, who died Sunday, was a lover of dumb animals is shown by his will, which was filed Thursday. It bequeaths to Fred Rufner tools, household furniture and $50 in cash and then directs that real and personal property be sold and after just debts are paid and a monument erected over his grave the residue be deposited in a bank and be known as the Kerman endowment for the protection of domestic animals in Washington county. A trustee is to be appointed by the county judge and the income devoted to detecting violations and enforcing laws for the protection of domestic animals. The will was made Oct. 8, 1917, and E. I. and David Kuratli are named executors.—Hillsboro Independent.
