County Agent Talks Garden

A fair-sized crowd gathered at Langley hall, Monday afternoon and listened with attention to a talk on home gardening by Neal Jamison, county agent. Mr. Jamison told of the best methods of preparing the soil, fertilization and his methods for exterminating maggots, worms and slugs. As a poison, he recommended a mixture of 16 pounds of bran, one quart of cheap molasses and one pound of Paris green, mixed with warm water. If left in the open, this mixture is fatal to birds. Another remedy is five parts of sulphur and one part Paris green. As a spray he recommended "Black-leaf 40." He emphasized the importance of good seed and stated that government seeds should be tested, as they were not always reliable. He advised against mixing ashes with chicken droppings to be used as fertilizer. He stated that if there was a demand, he could get a bee expert to come to the city and deliver a talk on bee culture. He has in his office at Hillsboro a supply of bulletins on gardening that may be had for the asking.

DEATH'S TOLL

John Vanderzanden Dead

John VanDerzanden, one of the most prominent pioneer farmers of Washington county, died suddenly at his home in the Verboort community Friday evening. Mr. VanDerzanden was born in Holland, July 29, 1842, and came to America in 1868. He first settled in Wisconsin, coming to Oregon in 1881, locating on a farm near Banks. When the family moved on to this farm it was covered with heavy timber, but the sturdy Hollander and his stalwart sons took off their coats and grubbed out every tree on the place. It is now one of the most productive farms in the county, and is run by one of the sons.

While Mr. VanDerzanden was of a quiet disposition, his judgment was sound, and his neighbors from far and near sought his advice on important matters. He always lived an honorable life and was loved and respected by all.

Mr. VanDerzanden was twice married, his first wife dying in Wisconsin, and his second wife passing away at Verboort two years ago. He was the father of 18 children, 12 boys and six girls. Nine of the boys and four of the girls are still living, all of them grown to manhood and womanhood, and most of them located on farms in Washington county. Funeral services were held at the Catholic church at Verboort Monday, being largely attended. Burial took place in the Verboort cemetery.

Mrs. Martha Rebecca White

The hand of death Tuesday noon touched the heart of Mrs. Martha Rebecca White, widow of the late Francis M. White, and the remains were laid beside those of the departed husband yesterday afternoon, in the Gales Creek cemetery, after services by Elder J. S. Lucas of the Adventist church of Portland.

Martha Rebecca Copeland was born in South Carolina on May 19th, 1836, and was married to Francis M. White June 10th, 1869, coming to Oregon the year of their marriage. Three children blessed this union, one of whom, Francis, survives. The husband and father died at the family home, near Gales Creek, in 1910. Ever since coming to Oregon, the family has lived on a farm up Gales Creek, until two years ago, when Mrs. White and her son moved to this city.

Deceased was a very devout and charitable woman and the world is much better for her deeds of kindness to her neighbors.

Oregon Pioneer Called

Mrs. Charles Hines was Saturday called to Ruch, Jackson county, to attend the funeral of her father, John Devlin, who died that day at his farm home, aged 83 years.

Deceased was born in Ireland and came to American when but seven years old. During his early life he was attached to the American navy, having served under Commodore Armstrong in Oriental waters, having been in the battle of Wampon, when American war vessels reduced the forts and spiked the enemy guns. He came to Jackson county 50 years ago.

He is survived by a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Chas Hines of this city, Mrs. Miles Central of Ruch and one son, J. H. Devlin of Portland.

Funeral services were held at the Ruch Catholic church Tuesday.

Grandma Owens, mother to Mrs J. W. Kyle, passed away Tuesday at the Kyle home and the funeral was held at Gales Creek at 3 this afternoon.

E. E. Jones, aged 57, succumbed to dropsy at his home in Gales Creek town early last Monday morning and the funeral was
