THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1918

--- This paper has enlisted with the government in the cause of America in the period of the war ---

The employes of the Foundation and Standifer ship yards of Portland have agreed that they will adopt a war orphan for every ship launched from their yards. There's real patriotism, alright.

Because Oregon, Nevada, California and the District of Columbia have furnished more than their share of soldiers, they are exempt from the call of 233,000 men to be drafted during the next two weeks.

Women do not have much to do with war; they only bear the men who go to fight, nurse the ones who are wrecked while there, live with the ones who come back, and mourn for the ones who do not.—Life.

Last winter there was a sugar shortage but sugar prices did not reach a shortage scale—because the war government did not allow refiners a hog's profits. Somebody at Washington please tell us why the meat packers shouldn't be treated the same way?

Some time in June mothers over the United States will know that the boy "over there" remembers. May 12 has been set aside as Mothers' day by the boys in France and will be celebrated by writing letters home. These letters will arrive some time in June.

The Winchester Arms company is making thousands of sawed-off pump shotguns for the use of Pershing's Yanks in the trenches. They will kill at 40 yards and each shell contains enough OO buckshot to slay a half dozen Huns. Yankee ingenuity is busy these days.

If you haven't read Henry Irving Dodge's story, "The Yellow Dog," in last week's Saturday Evening Post, get a copy of the Post and read that story. It has to do with Hun propaganda in the United States and suggests how every loyal citizen can do his share in swatting the curs.

The prohibition forces of Oregon recently asked all candidates for the legislature if they would vote for the prohibition amendment, if elected to the legislature. Two of Washington county's candidates (L. M. Graham and E. W. Haines) answered in the affirmative, but at last accounts the other two candidates had failed to reply. Of 122 candidates, 82 declared for prohibition.

FIGHTING HOMESICKNESS

Overseas, where American soldiers are facing the enemy, a letter from home is most welcome. It is the strongest home-tie. It helps to keep the morale of the American soldier at the topmost point. Next in point of importance is the old home newspaper. From this he learns what is happening among his friends. It is most important that the home newspaper should follow him across the seas.

Persons who wish to get this work of cheer to the boys from this community may do so by subscribing to The Express and having it addressed to the American Y. M. C. A. 12, Rue d'Aguesseau, Paris, France. The national war work council of the Y. M. C. A. will see that the paper is forwarded to the soldiers at the front. It will be sent to the camp where boys from this state are stationed.

War work secretaries in Y. M. C. A. huts overseas state that the hardest thing they have to combat is homesickness. The lads are yearning for news from their loved ones. The letter is first in importance, the old home newspaper fills the void in the absence of a letter. You can help to maintain the morale of the American troops in France by sending him this paper. Think it over.

WHERE GERMANY EXCELS

(From the Indianapolis News)
There is one place where the Germans excel. One has to admit that, no matter how much argument to the contrary might be presented. Undoubtedly the Germans excel in killing women and children. Also they are experts in hitting churches. It never was thought necessary in training an American army to fight that a make-believe church should be constructed so he could practice firing at it. It never was believed a part of the proper program to have dummies dressed in female clothing so the American fighting men could become adepts at murdering mothers and slaying sisters. Such things were unthinkable until German culture came into public notice. Now the kaiser, who claims to be the senior partner in the firm of "Me und Gott," seems to take a special delight in destroying God's own places of worship and God's own worshipers. How proud the father and mother must feel when Fritz comes home for a little period of rest! They ask him what he has been doing, and their faces light with pleasure when he says: "I had a fine day yesterday; blew up three churches and killed I don't know how many women and children. Hoedder kaiser!"—Portland News.

A Hint to Jess Willard

Nobody is getting up any great enthusiasm over the ambition of Mr. Jess Willard to clean up some money at this time by fighting Mr. Fulton. What is going on in France is rather absorbing attention in the fighting line. But if Mr Willard really wishes to stir up some enthusiasm he could do it quite handily. All he need to do would be to offer his services as boxing instructor at one of the training camps.—K C Star.

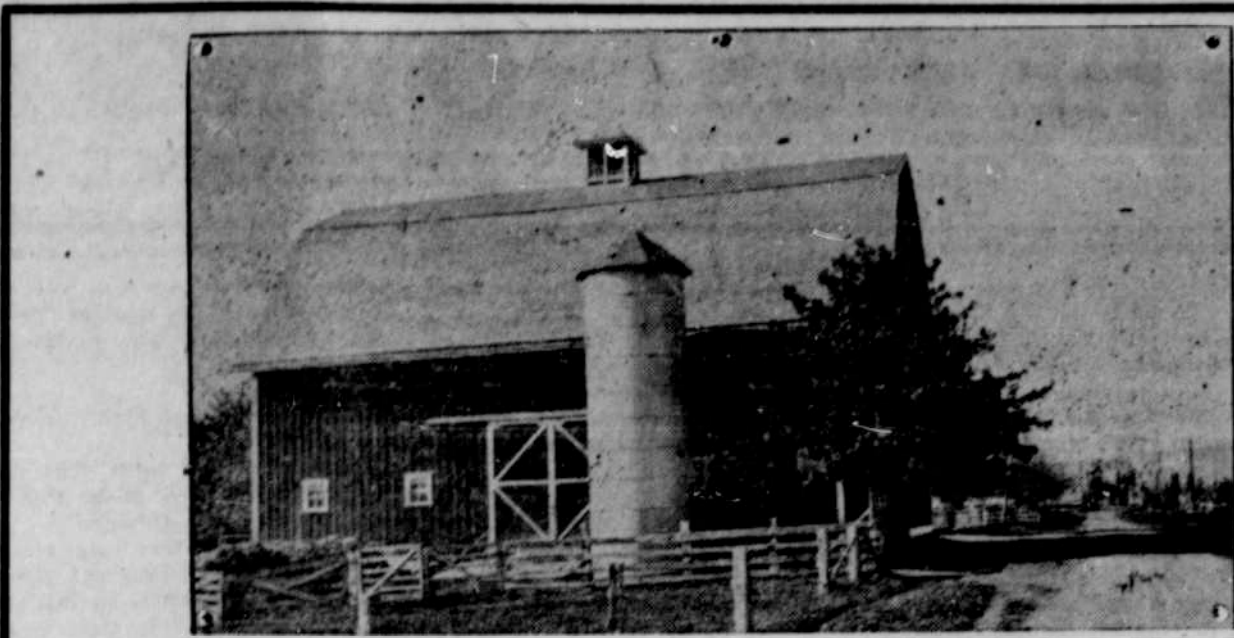

Dilley Does Honor to Popular Soldier

(Written by Hugh Sparks)
Old glory, bathed in sunlight and tossed by the breeze, floated at half mast at the little town of Dilley Friday in honor of its soldier son, Levi B. Dixon, who gave his life to his country. This is Dilley's first lad to die in the service and in their community service flag a blue star will be changed to gold.

A telegram to Levi's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dixon of Dilley, was received Friday from Washington, D. C., announcing their grandson's death from disease. It is not known whether he died in England or France, but it presumed that he died in England, as he sailed with his artillery company for there March 26.

Levi B. Dixon was aged 22 years and was born on a farm between Forest Grove and Dilley. He attended school at both places. When the lad was 12 years old his father died and he went to live with his grandparents.

His schooling was cut short of graduation, but wherever he went, to the farm or logging camps, Levi always studied. He took a correspondence course and secured technical books from the government. He volunteered last fall as an engineer and was transferred to

MICKIE SAYS

THE EVENING STAR

The evening star a child espied,
The one star in the sky.
"Is that God's service flag?" he cried,
And waited for reply.
The mother paused a moment ere
She told the little one,
"Yes, that is why the star is there.
He gave his only son!"

You can help our boys at the front by voting for Grant Mann, Republican Candidate for Sheriff, who pledges all the traveling expenses of the office, within the county, to the Red Cross auxiliaries of Washington County. The honor of your support at the Primaries May 17, 1918, will be appreciated. (Pd. Advt.)
