How to Can Chicken Told by Specialists

O. A. C., Corvallis, June 11.—Here is how lots of Oregon people are canning chicken during the "Can the cockerel" campaign, as recommended by the College home economics specialists:

Draw the fowl soon after it is killed, wash carefully and cool; then cut into convenient sections. Can by either of these methods:
1. Place meat in wire basket or cheese cloth and boil until meat readily parts from the bone; lift from boiling liquid and remove meat from bones; pack closely into sterilized jars; fill with hot liquid after it has been concentrated one-half, add level teaspoon salt per quart of meat, put rubber and cap in place tightly; sterilize as per time-table.

2. Sear meat in hot oven or hot frying pan, and steam or simmer until it can be torn apart. Pack meat in jars, fill the space with stock and add a teaspoon of salt to each quart of meat. Sterilize according to time-table.

3. Free meat from bone and cut into pieces to go into jar easily; pack raw meat into tested clean glass jars to within 3/4 inch of top; add teaspoon salt to each quart of meat, but no water. Celery leaves, onion, pepper or other seasoning may be added. Sterilize according to time table.

Time-table for canning chicken:
Water bath, 3 1/2 hours.

5-pound pressure cooker, 2 1/2 hours.

10-pound pressure cooker, 1 hour.
A fowl weighing two pounds dressed should make a pint jar of solid meat and a pint of stock thick enough to jelly.

Canning surplus cockerels saves feed, provides substitute for meatless meals next winter, and makes a convenient food for unexpected visitors.

A delightful little occasion was enjoyed Friday evening at the home of Carol Phillips when a number of her girl friends gave her a surprise rose bud shower. After the roses had been removed from the baskets, revealing the dainty and useful gifts beneath and all the unwrapping was done the girls joined in singing songs after which opera sticks were passed and the girls departed with good wishes and leaving music in their wake. Miss Phillips left Sunday for Chicago where she will be married to Richard Spring.

Kreso Kills Cabbage Maggots

"I have had excellent results in control of maggots on radishes, turnips, cabbage, kale and cauliflower by use of kreso No. 1 sheep dip," reports a Corvallis grower. "I diluted at the rate of 1-to-50 as you recommended, and for the first time in years produced plants free of maggots, in unprotected places." "We are getting many favorable reports such as this while other growers report injury," says Prof. A. L. Lovett, entomologist at O. A. C. "Sheep dips vary in concentration and where other dips are used it is probably well to begin with a dilution of 1-to-125."

Prof. Clark, Dr. H. L. Bates, Misses Willard, Waggener, and Hall of this city and Miss Dorris Mace and Miss Margaret Bates of Portland viewed the solar eclipse from the apex of Larch Mountain last Saturday. They had a fine view and enjoyed the outing immensely. At 9 p. m. they were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Mace of Portland. Mrs. Clarke and babies went as far as Portland, but did not make the highway trip.
