

THE END OF TREASON

(By W. J. R. Beach)

The time may come when rank disloyalty
Can play into the Kaiser's blood
stained hand,
When hissing snakes, of high or low
degree,
Can spread insidious venom over the land;
And yet may come the fateful day
when all
Who bear the brand of treason in the herd
May trembling stand with backs against a wall
While firing squad in front await the word—
When long forbearing hand of Justice shall
With crushing, vengeful weight upon them fall.

Poets Sticks Pins In Kaiser's Carcass

American rhymesters fired with indignation at German atrocities, are sharpening their shafts for the Great Atrocious One. Mr. Johnson of this city brings in a poem written by a Pennsylvania girl. It is too long for reproduction in full, but a portion of it follows.

LET HIM LIVE

As long as the flowers their perfume give,
So long I'd let the Kaiser live;
Live and live for a million years
With nothing to drink but Belgian tears;
With nothing to quench his awful thirst
But the salted brine of a Scotchman's curse.
I would let him live on a dipper each day,
Served with things on a golden tray,
Served with everything—but things to eat.
And I'd build him a castle by the sea,
As lovely a castle as ever could be;
Then I'd show him a ship from over the sea,
As fine a ship as ever could be,
Laden with water cold and sweet,
Laden with everything good to eat.
Yet scarce does she touch the silvered sands,
Scarce may he reach out his eager hands—
Than a hot and molten shell
Should change his Heaven into Hell
And tho' he'd watch by the wave-swept shore,
Our Lusitania would rise no more.
In No Man's Land, where the Irish fell,
I'd start the Kaiser a private Hell,
I'd jab him, stab him, give him gas,
And in each wound I'd pour ground glass,
I'd march him out where the brave boys died,
Out past the lads he crucified,
In the fearful gloom of his living tomb
There is one thing I'd do before I was through—
I'd make him sing in a stirring manner
The wonderful words of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Burnworth--Story

Mr. Leroy Burnworth of this city and Miss Geneva Story of Pasco, Wash., were married last Saturday at Vancouver, Wash. The wedding was a quiet one, being attended by but a few of the closest friends of the high contracting parties. Mr. Burnworth is one of the most expert stenographers in the state. He entered the service of the Government and was sent to New York some time ago, and expected to go to France at once. But Uncle Sam discovered his value as a stenographer and sent him back to Portland, where he now has headquarters. His duty it is to take down the speeches of the orators sent out by the Government and to prepare the same for publication.

The bride lived in Pasco many years. Last year she spent in Seattle, where she attended college. She is well fitted to make a congenial and inspiring helpmate for her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnworth will make their home in Portland. They will visit friends in Forest Grove next Sunday.

Reeher--Scobee

Mr. Max M. Reeher of this city and Miss Mildred H. Scobee of 973 East 10th street North, Portland, were married last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the officiating clergyman being Dr. Bates of the Pacific University. The wedding was a quiet one, the guests being only the closest friends and relatives.

Mr. Lester Jones well known in this city was the best man, while Miss Ruth Halvorson filled the position of bridesmaid. After the ceremony refreshments were served.

Mr. Reeher is one of our best young men. He graduated from the Leland Stanford University last spring and since then he has been a field man in the service of the Agricultural Department, with headquarters at the station in this city. Waiving exemption he has enlisted for the Great Adventure across the water. He expects to go on the 26th inst to Camp Lewis.

Mrs. Reeher will continue her studies in Pacific University this fall. She is a senior in the institution. She is known as a woman of sterling worth and admirably adapted to become the light of a household when the war shall be over and her husband shall return.

A Last Word

Remembering how hard it was for him to find the news when he first came to Forest Grove, the retiring editor is going to ask his friends to help the new editor until he gets his bearings. If each subscriber would call up the Express office (phone 821) once a week, say Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, and tell the editor the news of his or her neighborhood, these subscribers would be surprised to know what a load they could take off the shoulders of the busy editor. Just remember that the editor cannot know you all; that he has no way of knowing when you go away on a visit or entertain company unless you tell him. So take pity on a stranger and don't be so stingy about the news you know. And when you meet the new editor, say "Hello" to him; make him feel like you were glad he came to Forest Grove. If you do this, he'll be glad he came. From what the writer has seen of Mr. Rawson, he has no hesitation in recommending him and his family to the people of Forest Grove. Be good to these people, as you have been to the retiring editor and family. Respectfully,
W. C. Benfer.

Reeves Visits Forest Grove

J. E. Reeves, who operates a farm south of Cornelius, and who was one of the best sheriffs this county ever had, was in town last Monday. Mr. Reeves is planning to be sheriff again. His friends are glad of it and are predicting that if he puts up a good fight he will have a regular walk-away.

The number of men and women of this city and vicinity that are spending the week in Portland is too great for enumeration. Of course, the attraction are the meetings of the G. A. R. and W. R. C.

Miss Littler, daughter of our well known druggist, will leave in about two weeks for Richville, Washington, where she will teach school during the coming year. Miss Littler is a graduate of the State Agricultural College at Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Littler and daughter returned from Tillamook Monday evening. They report bad roads and rainy weather.
