The republicans organized the senate by conceding the balance of power on the finance committee to the populists, and now, just in the pinch, they are thrown down.

All acknowledged that it would do it. On the heels of this, a new bill authorizing a sale of bonds for pressing emergencies was also sent to the senate. All this the house did without taking the usual holiday recess. The two bills went to the senate.

There the bond bill was first taken up and amended so that instead of of bonds to meet an emergency, it was changed to a free silver coinage bill providing for the unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1; providing for the immediate coinage of the seniorage lying in the vaults resulting from silver purchases under the Sherman bill; providing that mai tional banks shall not be permitted to issue bank bills in denominations less than $10; providing that the secretary of the treasury may redeem greenbacks, in either gold or silver, at his option, and providing that such redeemed greenbacks may be again issued.
