Sup. Dame of a Tacoma electric car when about four miles out of the city was ordered by a masked man to hand up his hands, which he did, but he did not keep them up. The robber had ordered Dame into a press compartment of the car and thought him safe. The superintendent slipped out and got behind the robber whom he shot and instantly killed, but he was however before he received a bullet in his own arm. Dame is a young man and well known by Hon. H. V. Gates who says he is a college graduate and a graduate of an electrical engineering school. Besides these accomplishments he also has been an expert in the use of a pistol since the only two shots he fired went through the lungs and heart of his man. The identity of the robber has not been established, though it is said that he was one of the parties concerned in the Hoburg train robbery several months ago.

Mr. Anton Pfanner has completed his private telephone line between Forest Grove and Hillsboro and placed two instruments in the Court House—one in the Clerk's office and one in the Recorder's office. The line is substantially constructed. The posts are saved cedar full size and length and the arm carrying the wires are insulated. The line is about two miles at 2400 ft. The circuit is metallic. The instruments used are very sensitive and seem to be inferior to the O. T. & T. instruments only in the matter of the adjustable arm for the transmitter. Mr. Pfanner has not yet opened the line for commercial business, nor decided to put in an exchange here.

Congressman Tongue yesterday, May 27th, sent the following dispatch to his wife here in Hillsboro. "Up and dressed yesterday. Bandage removed. Cuts nearly healed. Leave hospital today. Will send no more telegrams." This is not only pleasant news to his family but also to his many friends here and throughout the state. From the length of time he was confined to his room and bed, it seems probable that he was worse than he at first would have us think.

Our young people are becoming well grounded in some branches of Zoology. A few evenings ago one of our society young men was, in the dusk of evening in the outer edge of town, merrily bowling along on his wheel accompanied by two of his lady friends also cycling. He saw a little dog in the road and called out "I am going to run it down." He is not riding his wheel any more this week because he has buried it for a few days. His clothes are in the same pit.

Dr. Linklater turned his peacock and the hen out on the lawn this week where also ranged a Denney turkey cock. The gallant peacock, this smaller bird completely alienated the affections of the peahen so that she deserted the company of the guady bird. Spread his tail as he would he could not call her back. Finally the vain bird dropped his feathers and for the rest of the day sulked among the shrubberies. The doctor next day removed the pheasant, when the family estrangement was harmonized.

The paragraph published last week in regard to the boys' catches of a "coon brought to the mind of a friend the time when druggist Brown of the Pharmacy caught Dr. Linklater's pet owl. Dr. L. saw six or more years ago had a pet owl which he kept in his barn. This owl, he nor lost his appetite for chickens and occasionally got out of the barn and raided neighbor Waggenner's hen roost. The boys about the drug store always caught the bird and returned him to his quarters till the lady found the owl. Brown slipped along so that he was just ready to drop his hat over the owl's head, but he was a moment late and all the while of a well stock-ed skunk pharmacy were emptied on Brown. His name would not be put into his room for several days but three changes of clothing out of the window. That owl was never caught.

There is nothing of the kind in town. Will sell at very low price or might consider a trade for a good, improved farm in the Willamette Valley.
