The postoffice department has sent circulars to postmasters informing them that it is not permissible to take upon third or fourth class matter or its wrapper, or to print or wrap upon second class matter or its wrapper directions relative to the delivery thereof, inconsistent with the postal regulations; consequently circulars or papers addressed to any "straggler" or the "leading newspaper" or addressed to "John Doe real estate dealer, or if he is a non-resident to deliver to any real estate dealer," will be thrown in the waste basket. Postmasters are directed to inform their patrons to this effect and that after March 1, 1898, matter addressed in the foregoing manner will be held to be unmailable.

On Wednesday night of last week Father G. J. of South Tualatin wrestled alone with death. He lived with his son who farms the George James place and on Wednesday evening he started to a near neighbor, Mr. Myers. The old man did not return by his time, but that evening no alarm as he sometimes stayed with his friend for the night, but next morning when he did not return his son Myers became anxious and called his son Myers. The father had not been there. This thoroughly alarmed the young man and a systematic search was begun. Soon the dead body of the father was found by a fence that he had attempted to pass. It is supposed that he climbed the fence and fell off. There were no evidences of a struggle, so death must have been instantaneous or nearly so on the evening before. The deceased was about 63 years of age.

The most money is made on cheap things. Beware of cheap baking powder. It contains alum and other things bad for you; or it is weak and wastes money.

If Schilling's Best could be made and sold for the price of the cheap baking powders, we should be only too glad to make it and sell it so; for the whole market—yes the whole world—would be ours.

No window in town was more handsome than that of Hoyt the jeweler. The display was simple, tasty and elegant, and perhaps in simplicity is where the attractiveness was. Mr. Hoyt is an artist as well as a skilled mechanic and richly merits the success which he is meeting.

The subject of discourse in the morning at the M. E. Church by the pastor is "The rich in the fields to make a dollar or two more per thousand of rose buds with a fine and large collection of the best of Armageddon or when will the last war be waged.

The Southern Pacific Company is distributing some very fine advertising matter or calling attention to the Golden Jubilee celebration in San Francisco, January 21. Passes are now on sale and travel offered for a rate of $5 from Portland to San Francisco is as low as one desiring to see the big celebration can ask.

The winter so far has been a hard beyond expectation. True we had a trace of snow in November but it did not last a day. Since then there has scarcely been a frosty night. Indeed yesterday, Jan. 6, our little friend Margaret Redmond presented the office with a fine and large collection of rose buds picked from her mother's rose garden. The trees grow in the open air. Mrs. Gant, too, has thrifty pansies blooming in the open air. The winter in the fields is making a phenomenal growth and there is nothing to hinder an immense crop at harvest except a cold snap of ten days in February which may find the ground bare. There has been one such event in the last 50 years, that of Feb. 1883.

The M-foel church and the congregation are feeling well this week and they have reason for self congratulation. A month or more ago a debt made up of small sums here and there, but aggregating $120, confronted the organization. An effort to pay off this incumbrance was successfully made, and now the church enters the new year free of debt, a condition that has not been for a decade before. Foremost in this move have been the ladies' society, Mrs. W. H. Connel, president and the Epworth League, Miss Zala Warren president. The ladies by their winning ways and good cheer realized a handsome return for their New Year's day dinner. They were well patronized and were grateful to friends for the liberal support bestowed.

The Hillsboro M. E. Church has published a little church directory of 28 pages, that besides being a business booklet presents a complete view of church work. The officers of the church and all auxiliary societies are carried, as well as the names of the church members. The church roll contains the names of 177 members. The Epworth League has 52 members, active and associate, and the Junior League has ten. The Sunday School employs ten teachers and six clerics, but the names of the scholars are not given and in this it seems that the Sunday School is made to take a second place to the League. Indeed lately all the churches seem to be excelling the League and the Y. P. S. C. E. above the old fashioned Sunday School where our older ones realize we were so efficiently instructed in bible literature and religion.
