The article on Arthur Henry Hallam, by Mr. Gladstone in the New Year's number of The Companion is one of the most fascinating literary papers ever written by the great English statesman. It carries one back to a past full of charm. The remainder of this number abounds in interest. There is the beginning of a new serial story by C. A. Stephens, a good story of a reporter's interview with the late Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil, several other short stories of exceptional merit, and the usual rare selection of miscellany.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church was held last Thursday evening. The reports showed that the church is in excellent condition. The church is out of debt in all departments and it felt itself strong enough to attempt to go alone next year. The revenue that the church will require is for pastors salary $800 and incidentals $60. Last year the ladies' society helped on the salary account, but this year they expect to use its funds in repairs about the church. Besides these there are benevolences but in this, the church's year of greatest effort, they may fall behind the amounts contributed during previous years. All things considered the church is to be congratulated upon the fine showing made.

Supt. Gardner of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society was in Hillsboro last Monday. He reports that the ten sacks of seed potatoes donated by Mr. O. G. Barlow of Glencoe, this county, and two sacks donated by a friend living near Cornelius, the record of whose name has been lost, were planted and tended by the boys of the society, on a piece of land set apart by the Hawthorn estate. Last fall 175 bushels were dug from the patch. W. M. Ladd loaned a team and plow for preparing the ground. All labor was performed by the boys.

A few of us on the local telephone exchange were treated to a musical concert on Monday when Miss May Imbrie was at her piano accompanying her uncle Thos. Mauzey, on his violin. The music came clear and distinct to all the instruments connected on the exchange. Each of the employees at the INDEPENDENT office took his turn at the receiver and at the close vociferously applauded which disturbance was not lost to the performers.

Lincoln's birthday in February will be observed this year by the ladies of the Congregational church. An effort is making to entertain the public with a patriotic drama, the talent being chosen from our local elocutionists. The proposition however is handicapped by having to telegraph east for books enough to complete the set required which may necessitate a postponement for a few days.

Washington county has allowed a monthly stipend of $10 to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society. The work of that institution has been much hampered for lack of funds since no state aid is now available. The society now has on its roll 24 children from this county. And the county court thought it economical to care for pauper children this way. Multnomah county pays $45 per month and even sparsley populated Klamath county with not a chick in the institution voluntarily pays $5 per month. In this way it is sought to bring the income of the society up to $300 per month.

W. H. Welsh, lately a member of the Portland police force has returned from Klondike. He reports that our J. J. Morgan, Gurtin and Montivill are working claim No. 37 A, Eldorado on the shares. This claim runs from $6 to $9 per pan of earth, and the party will make this winter $25,000, each. An acquaintance of Morgan's came in a few days before and reported that because he had a supply of food he had leased a good claim for the winter and would do well. The owner had gone to Circle City where he could get food. J. J. had been careless and had his feet frosted, though not serious.

Miss Mammie Pittenger met with a painful accident last Friday morning. She was in the second story of her mother's residence and started down stairs. A loose rug at the top caught her foot so that she fell and pitched headlong to the bottom of the stairs. Some where on the route she broke a bone in her right arm just above the wrist. At the time she was alone but after a few minutes of quiet she was able to get to Mr. Pence's house. A telephone message soon brought Dr. Tameisie to her assistance. He adjusted the fractured bones and bound them in place but not without the aid of chloroform. The swelling has been a bit troublesome but she is now doing well and will before many days be at home to her friends.

THE COLLEGE DEBATE

Interesting Arguments on Both Sides.

"SHALL HAWAII BE ANNEXED"

Pacific University Representatives Argue with Men from Portland University—The P. U. Men Win.

On last Friday at Portland University a very lively debate occurred between a team from Pacific University and one from Portland University on the question, "Resolved that the United States would be benefited by the annexation of Hawaii."

At just eight o'clock the Forest Grove delegation, with their team in the lead, entered the chapel and were received with hearty applause. Five minutes later the Hesperus champions made their appearance.

The teams, seated at tables in the front part of the hall on opposite sides of the room, glanced anxiously at each other as if to anticipate what they might expect. But they had little time to calculate the ability of their opponents for Judge Moreland, of Portland, who acted as chairman of the occasion, after a few preliminary remarks, read the question and introduced C. W. Tenney, of Portland University to open the debate for the affirmative. Mr. Tenney, in an oration, meritorious in its composition and delivery, dwelt at great length upon the history of Hawaii closing with a vehement appeal for the annexation of the Island and a gratification of the wishes of the people of the United States. His speech though, contained no good sound argument, and Mr. Miller, who followed as principal for the negative, simply ignored it, no doubt deeming it unworthy of any attention. Miller was cool and collected. He began at once to argue and crowded the twelve minutes, which was alloted to him, full of ironclad statements, tending to show that the people of Hawaii are unfit to become citizens of the United States; that there is now no system of government existing in the United States, which is at all adapted to the island; and that the climate is entirely unsuited to the Americans, making it impossible for them to go there and engage in any kind of manual pursuits. In conclusion he presented the fact that nearly one-tenth of the population of Hawaii are affected with leprosy.

Mr. Weed, by far the best debater from the Hesperus Society, came forward as first colleague. He certainly fulfilled the most sanguine expectations of his friends and considerable disconcerted his opponents, by the manner in which he replied to Miller's speech. After his rebuttal, he made a strong argument for the value of Hawaii both as a commercial, and as a naval and coaling center.

But Kirkwood, our Abe Lincoln of the west, was more than an equal for his opponent. Just as "Kirk" has been accustomed to meet his antagonist in the center of the line on the football field, so in this case, with coolness and deliberation, yet full of earnestness and force, he attacked the arguments that arrayed themselves, sweeping all before him. The course which he pursued was to prove that Hawaii is entirely unnecessary to the welfare of the United States. In refutation of Mr. Weed's speech, he showed in figures, which the affirmative never attempted to disprove, that by annexing the island the United States would be at a loss financially; that it was of no importance as a coaling station, since a merchant vessel can carry sufficient amount of coal to run 25,000 miles and that it would be of no value whatever as a naval defense, for with one-tenth the money necessary for the fortification of Hawaii, we could make our coast line so formidable that no nation could stem it successfully.

Morgan, who followed in support of the affirmative, ennumerated the different reasons proffered by his principal and colleague, while he in addition insisted that the negative had no authority for saying that a vessel could sail 25,000 miles without recoaling, claiming that every steamship line that sails from our coast across the ocean runs through Hawaii where it has to diverge 200 miles from a direct rout. He closed by supposing a war with some European country, pointing out the advantage that we would have, if Hawaii were well fortified for our defence.

Mr. A. D. Shock, second colleague for the negative, recurred to the arguments used by his principal and colleague, making extremely plain to the Judge what the negative were striving to prove, adding many statements in corroboration of what had already been presented. Shock showed to the great detriment of his opponents, that they had not well comprehended the question, since they had labored under the supposition that Hawaii must be annexed or lost. But he went further and claimed that the island is better off just as she is than she could be if annexed to the United States, from the fact that the government which she now has is better than any which we could give. He proved, by a letter from the navy department, that a vessel can sail 25,000 miles without recoaling and also, upon the authority of the leading steamship lines in Portland, that vessels do not go well ten miles out of their way to stop at Hawaii.

Then came the closing speeches, Weed deserves great praise for his rebuttal; for although he had weak support from his colleagues and hardly any ground upon which to stand, nevertheless he made a stronger close than Miller.

At about 9:30 o'clock the question was submitted to the judges for their decision on the merits of the arguments.

After a few minutes deliberation Judge Sears gave his vote for the affirmative; A. L. Veazie, for the negative; Lydell Baker, for the negative. At this decision there was loud acclamation by the audience; but no selfish demonstration of delight by the friends of the victors.

Mr. DeForest gave a few closing words, offering his hearty congratulations to the young men of Gamma Sigma, expressing a desire that the Universities might in the future be drawn more closely together.

As soon as the audience was dismissed, a very cordial reception was given the Forest Grove people.

During the entire evening there was a most friendly feeling manifested; no envy, no dejection on the part of the defeated; no boasting, no yelling on the part of the victorious. Anything just like it neither institution has seen before. Such a contest is far more edifying than football, far more beneficial to the intellectual faculties than oratorical contests.

Inter-collegiate debating has for many years been in vogue among eastern schools, but has only just reached our coast. It is predicted by many that debating will in time displace oratorical tournaments.

As usual, he who gains a victory, only increases his responsibility. So with Pacific University, she must now prepare to meet Willamette, and if reports are true this next struggle will be much harder than the last.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional desease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
