

GENES OF PATRIOTISM.

Congressman Cousins of Iowa recently delivered a speech at Omaha that abounds with glowing periods and sentiments expressed so beautifully that they have been gathered together and are here presented for the admiration of readers farther to the westward.

Time is so noiseless that it awakes us very few.

Most of the flowers of genius have blossomed from bleeding hearts.

There never was a strong and handsome face without some little line of care.

I believe there is a good reason for everything that happens in the universe.

Whoever gets to greatness or success without meeting opposition goes in an air castle.

Most all greatness and nearly every original idea has come out of some kind of trouble.

Let the future buy from you according to that same standard by which you have bought and by which your toil is measured at the present.

Industry and nature have made the state of Iowa a creditor.

Probably the purest time in the history of governments and of men is when they are painfully intent upon the labor of their own development and defense.

The American flag shall be visible and revered away from home as it is loved and venerated here, and under it a free people shall thrive and multiply in peace.

The women and men who settled the Hawkeye state were not those who expected to go back "in the fall," or as soon as they could prove up on their claims.

In the formation of character there are always two elements the inherent and the advantageous—that which we bring with us into the world and that which our surroundings give us.

While we are yet shaking hands with the events of yesterday geniuses tap us on the shoulder and introduce a stranger, and we exclaim, "What imposition is this?"

The tendency of the times is to get rid of long-established humbugs as soon as their copyrights expire.

The wisdom of the past shall be retained but the wings of progress shall not be turned by its evil and stupidity.

And in our coming century there will be tumult, strife and riot, but there shall be no ruin.

America shall be ruled by law. She will not forget the lessons that her patriots have taught. She will abide by the pilgrim covenant—the legally expressed will of the majority.

If anyone would learn the true genius and exemplifications and philosophy of self-government, government of and for and by the people let him study the records of pioneer life, the institutional beginnings and the evolution of the law.

You labor today and accumulate thereby. You may want to rest tomorrow. Your accumulation should be secure. You have been selling all these years. You may want to buy or build tomorrow.

The credit registered by your toil, frugality and prudence should be forever sacred.

So long as toil shall bend the back of man his brain shall question science for its mysteries, and so long as mystery remains to form the boundary line of knowledge the scientist will strive and climb and reach beyond those bonds.

They will make the electric current turn the wheels of all the world.

We shall not always take our melodies from old operas nor our designs from ancient frescoes.

We shall not always dig our achievements from the ruins of the past nor get our fiction from the brains of dead men.

The same conditions that bred the genius of dead empires shall find the muses and the artists for Columbia and a greater glory shall await them, for they shall all be born in freedom.

There is one thing reasonably certain, America will have a place to land and coal her ships in every quarter of the globe.

There has been the age of marble and of bronze; ours is the age of commerce and of iron. Commerce will not stop, it undermines the mountains, lays its cables underneath the billows of the sea across the fury of its crests.

RIGHT TO WORSHIP GOD ACCORDING TO THE INDIVIDUAL CONSCIENCE.

The third section declares that courts of justice shall be open to all, and that no private property shall be taken by the government without compensation.

The fourth section, dealing with criminal trials, invests the accused with the right to be heard himself or by counsel, and to have compulsory process to secure the attendance of a witness in his behalf.

The fifth section says no person accused of crime shall be compelled to give evidence against himself.

The sixth section declares that no person who is once acquitted of the charge brought against him, shall be tried again for the same offense.

The seventh section provides that all persons charged with crime shall be entitled to bail, except in cases of capital offense, and that the writ of habeas corpus may not be suspended except the commanding general of the department deems it advisable.

The eighth section says that excessive bail shall not be required, and that no excessive fine, nor cruel or unusual punishment shall be inflicted.

The ninth section provides that in order to secure the people against unreasonable search, there shall first be established under oath a presumption of guilt.

The tenth section guarantees to all the right to write or print freely on any matter, subject to responsibility for abuse of the right.

The municipal laws are to be administered in accordance with these declarations of rights, subject to modifications which, in the judgment of the commanding general, would be beneficial and promote the principles of enlightened civilization.

SHATTERED IDOLS.

The Louisville Courier Journal publishes a special news paragraph that will rudely shake the opinions formed by some people.

The statement is compiled from a dry official document in the navy department.

Some interesting correspondence will be found in appendices to the annual report which will be submitted by Capt. A. S. Crowninshield, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, the least important of which will be details of the movements of the flying squadron from the time it left Hampton Roads.

Upon arrival at Key West, Commodore Schley's command was joined by the battleship Iowa and then consisted of the Iowa, Massachusetts, Texas, Brooklyn, Scorpion and Collier Merrimac.

It was believed that Corvera's fleet had gone to Genoa, where Commodore Schley was ordered, and he remained there several days, believing the enemy's fleet was lying in that harbor, notwithstanding information received by the Navy department and transmitted to him, announcing that Corvera was at Santiago.

Commodore Schley finally left Cuba on peremptory orders from the department and sailed for Santiago, where the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul which was scouting off the harbor entrance, announced that Corvera was scouting off the harbor.

Although aware of the importance of this information, Commodore Schley sent the Eagle to Jamaica with a dispatch, announcing that he found it necessary to go to Key West to coal, and started for that point.

Twenty miles away the machinery of the collier Merrimac, which had 5,000 tons of coal aboard broke down, necessitating the lying to of the fleet.

Before these injuries were repaired, the navy department had called Rear Admiral Sampson and the Eagle to intercept Commodore Schley, order him back to Santiago, and sink a ship across the entrance of the channel of the harbor, if necessary to keep Corvera in the harbor.

"It was due to this action of Commodore Schley in leaving the mouth of the harbor that Rear Admiral Sampson was ordered by the navy department to proceed at once with the New York and Oregon to Santiago."

Three Doctors in Consultation. (From Benjamin Franklin) "When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place, what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e., Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place.

But if you can get Dr. Inclination, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."

When you have a bad cold Dr. Inclination would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure.

Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles, and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. For sale by Delta Drug Store.

How to Prevent Croup. We have two children who are subject to attacks of croup. Whenever an attack is coming on my wife gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always prevents the attack. It is a household necessity in this county and no matter what else we run out of, it would do to be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. More of it is sold here than of all other cough medicines combined.—J. M. NICKLE, of Nickle Bros., merchants, Nickleville, Pa. For sale by Delta Drug Store.

On the 21st instant Gen. Wood, military governor of Santiago, Cuba, issued his proclamation in 10 sections for the government of his province. It has the right ring:

"The first section guarantees to the people the right of assembly for the common good, and to apply to those in power by petition or remonstrance for the redress of grievances.

The second section guarantees the

INTERNATIONAL LAW WEAK.

The London speaker in the course of a long article discussing the American-Spanish Peace Commission, now in session in Paris and its work, particularly the contentions of the two commissions touching the Cuban debt remarks:

"The reluctance of America to annex Cuba is mainly due to a desire to escape the burden of the Cuban debt. At the same time the doctrine of international law by which a debt incurred by a ruler binds his successors rests upon slight foundation."

It is monstrous that a tyrant should be able to burden future generations simply because he is in possession of the material government. If investors felt that in international law loans incurred against the will of the people would not attach to the country in the event of a change of government, there would be less of that monetary support of misgovernment which has disgraced the high finances of the 19th century.

"For 50 years Spain has ruled Cuba in defiance of the will of the Cuban people, and in spite of the constant protest of the United States. The cost of her military operations there has been met by loans, specially chargeable to Cuba, in the first place, in order to punish the Cubans and in the second, in order to arrange for a cheap retreat in the event of being driven out by America. In a word, the debt has been charged upon Cuba largely with the object of saddling it upon the United States. The bond holders were encouraged to look to the supposed doctrine of international law as part of the security while they were lending to Spain against the will of both Cubans and Americans. It is to be hoped that the United States, while assuming sovereignty over Cuba, will refuse to pay any part of the debt except the money used in the development of the island, thereby setting a most useful precedent of which tyrants and financiers will do well to take note."

The democratic leading papers, unfortunately of what has become known as the yellow journalism stripe, have been hurling pantheasms against President McKinley because they assert he has been making political capital out of the improvement in times, in his recent speeches.

The Chronicle acknowledges the fact and says that a "review of his speeches will corroborate this idea, it will disclose that the president has actually been calling attention to the facts that are constantly being repeated in the columns of these incendiary trade journals, Dan's Review and Bradstreet's. He is telling his hearers that gold is flowing into the country, instead of out of it; he is asserting that bank clearings are constantly increasing, and that they have frequently of late mounted higher than the high-water mark of that prosperous year, 1892; he has also had the temerity to call attention to the fact that our exports are largely in excess of our imports, and that, as a consequence, we are rapidly paying off our debts and converting the United States into a creditor country; he has also alluded to the fact that our output of pig iron and of the manufactures of iron and steel has enormously increased this year, and that we are now exporting large quantities of machinery and instruments of precision; if we are not mistaken he was even indiscreet enough to direct attention to the fact that the protective tariff had resulted in calling into existence a tin plate industry, which is now supplying the domestic demand at a lower price than consumers paid when they were dependent upon foreigners, and, worse than all, he backs up his assertions with facts and figures."

Of course in the eyes of the class of journals referred to, such a course on the part of the president is unpardonable, for their only hope in the political field is to make people believe the facts alluded to. If the minds of the people can be bedazzled and they be made to believe the plain facts which President McKinley has only incidentally alluded to, there might be some hopes for them in getting their nefarious scheme to work.

Bobby—"Cause they make folks better."

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.
