

WHO WILL INVEST?

A good Location for an energetic sawmill man.

ON RAILROAD AND CREEK

One mile from Hillsboro on Dairy Creek and right on the S. P. Railroad.

Some months ago the Independent called attention to the point on Dairy Creek where it is spanned by the railroad bridge as a suitable place for a saw mill. The same subject is again urged to the attention of sawmill men. The lumber industry is reviving and it is believed that it will be leading for many years. The place pointed out is ideal. It is on the railroad and the entire product of a small or a large mill can readily find market. The larger the mill the better. It has been hinted that a common point rate with Portland can be made to points east. Already Washington county mills are invading the Chicago market. They are also to do this when a haul of logs or wagons is necessary. The transportation problem therefore seems to be solved in advance. The supply of logs at a cheaper rate than on the Columbia is possible. Dairy Creek is practically clear of obstructions and the body of timber in the foot hills tributary to the branches of this stream is the finest of the very fine timber in Oregon. Driving logs down the creek would be an easy thing. There are no bottoms where logs could be lost or no bars for logmen. One mill man high upon the creek says it costs him from the time he selects his tree on the side hill till he piles the lumber in his yard just $2.25 per thousand. This does not include taxes and interest on his investment or sinking fund for repairs. To get to the railroad the takes what is left of the selling price after paying interest and repairs. Floating down the river is a more economical way of getting the lumber to the railroad than on a wagon. Then at the Dairy Creek bridge there would be some by products that will bring revenue. Slabs make good blocks for laths and what are not used for that are always available for wood. Then there is the saw dust which is like liquid air—as much as half of it is used for making steam to saw the logs. The surplus cannot be dumped in the stream but must be burned or otherwise carried away. At the proposed mill this could be profitably used to furnish steam to operate an electric dynamo. This in turn would furnish power for the light of both Hillsboro and Forest Grove together with power for the two flouring mills at Hillsboro, one at Cornelius and one at Forest Grove. These power uses require 200 or more horse power all of which could be more economically furnished from a central station on Dairy Creek than as now supplied yet that would be a benefit to the station in that byproducts would be used that are now wasted. The Independent can see nothing but profit in this enterprise for the men who are bold enough to embark.

BEAVERTON.

The Drainage District has commenced the cleaning of the Beaverton ditch.

Miss Cora Henry was delightfully surprised, Thursday evening August 17th the occasion being her 18th birthday. Dancing was the order of the evening.

A number of Beavertonites went to Hillsboro Saturday afternoon to attend the volunteer's dinner. All enjoyed the affair a grand success.

Rev. S. W. Potter and Gus Fanno left Monday for a fishing trip to the Grand Ronde river. They expect to be gone about 10 days.

Miss Virginia Grace Dudley of Newburg visited friends here last week.

In order to secure the best possible exhibit of grain and grasses at the next meeting of the Portland Industrial Exposition which opens Sept. 26, and will be open to visitors for 30 days. The management offers three premiums. The first to go to that county making the best exhibit of grain and grasses is $100. The second $75 and the third $50. The competition is open to any county in Oregon, Washington or Idaho. Eastern Oregon is moving in this matter. Washington county must meet them in this friendly rivalry and bring that coin here. The Southern Pacific is active in helping. All exhibits will be carried free to Portland, and more the company will send a man to the farms to get the exhibits. From each station 100 packages will be taken, 50 of wheat, 25 of oats, and 25 of grasses. Timothy, clover or vetches. The bundles should be 6 inches in diameter cut full length and closely tied together in such manner so as to permit handling without damage. All bundles must be in Portland by Sept. 1st so as to give time for arranging. Who has anything good to show? (We can, by enterprise win, and we ought to do it.)

A careful estimate of the land in this county planned to hops amounts to 650 acres. The crop this year is what is technically known as a top crop, and as growers allow but two vines to the pole it will be lighter than when three or four vines were permitted to grow. The quality will be better than this. This county will produce 800,000 pounds the some estimate. The hop producing sections of the United States are Oregon and New York. These two states will put on the market more hops than is used in America but not enough to supply England. There is a shortage this year, but no one here knows what reserve may be on hand. A good price is expected to rule, but no disappointment should be felt if the fancy price that makes rosy visions shall not obtain.

On Monday last Miss Lollie Baggerly living in the eastern part of the town while out horse-back riding was thrown from her horse, and had the right arm broken near the wrist. Dr. F. A. Bailey attended the injured girl.

Mr. T. W. Hayes of North Yamhill was in Hillsboro last Wednesday on business.

Orange, elder at Gates' Seta, glass Mr. E. B. Tongue is a visitor at Astoria this week.

Detective Ford of Portland spent Tuesday here, on business.

L. E. Wilkes returned Monday evening after a three weeks absence.

Miss Mattie Abbott has been visiting in Yamhill county the past week.

Miss Matlock of Hopper is a visitor this week at Congressman Tongue's.

F. J. Barber and wife, and father spent a few days on the slough this week fishing.

Wanted—To trade a good driving team for a team weighing about 25 hundred. Inquire at this office.

G. W. Seelye has completed his grubbing contract entered into with Mr. Steeples. He is now ready for more stumps.

Wm. G. Hare is a visitor at Astoria this week where he is hunting out some of the nooks and corners familiar to him as a small boy.

Married at Tillamook, August 15th by T. H. Gayne, J. P., Miss Carrie E. Lovewell of Tillamook and William P. Board of Greenville, this county.

Mr. Dennis Dalrymple who owned a good 100-acre farm near Redville, sold it this week to Mr. Philip Hersh for $1750 cash in hand. The price is satisfactory, tho it is in favor of the purchaser.

The pastor of the Congregational church has returned from his vacation and will occupy his pulpit morning and evening of next Sunday. At 11 a. m. the theme of the discourse will be "The Standard of a Special Life."

Wm. Mohr makes boots at his shop on Second street, Hillsboro, for $5.00 per pair, sewed shoes for $3, and gives special attention to repairing. He uses only first-grade stock which enables him to guarantee his work.

Annual bicycle parade, what about it? The good people of the county had a successful meet last year and it could be enlarged upon this year. Let the bicycle club take the matter up and give us entertainment for an afternoon and evening.

Dr. Bailey was yesterday out among his patients when he saw two threshing machines at work and twenty binders. The grain that was standing was in fair condition for cutting but it is feared that what is in the shock is too soft for threshing.

W. R. Hoyt got several good negatives from different points during the reception exercises last Saturday evening. Two are exceptionally fine, one with the tables and decorations and the other from the same point but after the guests had gathered about the graining mahogany.

Mr. Wm. Clarke of the Gervais Star was in Washington county gathering wheat, hop and fruit statistics to be used in some special articles on those subjects in the Oregonian. He had but an hour's time in Hillsboro, but by finding the right men he was quite thorough with his investigations.

Mr. Karstetter on the Redville farm has not lost confidence in farming operations. Last Wednesday morning he had two seed drills at work in a field of summer fallow on the north side of the railroad track. The ground is in fine condition and farmer Karstetter will have fine fall pasture for light stock.

Hillsboro is the most important station on the S. P. road between Corvallis and Portland. The station agent receives the largest salary hence he must handle most freight to earn it. The traffic has grown wonderfully within the past year. Good roads will be built here this year. The light extended over the fields like a poisonous fog from the Willamette reaching as far as Scholls. Last year 30,000 sacks were gleaned from the same land that this year is ruined. It is to be hoped that the ruin is not as bad as represented.

The world do move. Fifteen years ago no college man would have been selected by a committee of hard practical men to superintend an industrial proposition such as C. E. Bradley will have in hand for the next six weeks. The training of our schools is being recognized as a fitting preparation for life's work. Mr. Bradley is a graduate of Pacific University Forest Grove and while he was getting Greek and Latin, he was getting skill in the management of men on the athletic field. He was a successful foot ball player and the severe discipline that he there had comes not amiss now that he meets an opportunity for broad winning.

Dr. James Withycomb left of this county but now vice-director of the U. S. Experimental station at Corvallis has been appointed by Sec. Wilson to prepare a U. S. bulletin on the sheep and wool industry of Oregon. This is a selection that rarely comes to a man in a state experimental station, but is usually assigned to a specialist from the Department at Washington. When Sec. Wilson was in Oregon he spent several days with Dr. Withycomb and was so impressed with his ideas that he wished to put them in a form to be widely circulated. The bulletin will call attention to several facts that will further advance Oregon as a wool growing state.

The crop situation is summed up by Dr. Bailey who has made careful investigation, under these heads: 1. Wheat standing is unimpaired save the few straws that may be thrown down. 2. Wheat in shock is injured. Occasionally a grain has sprouted and is just beginning to show the green. 3. Bundles that are laying on the ground either that have not been shocked or that have fallen down are practically ruined. Late grain has been taken from the ground and is estimated at 20 per cent. The gain for late grain is 10 per cent. hence the net loss is 10 per cent. If we can get a freight rate to Astoria as favorable as that to Seattle, the price of wheat will be stiffened so that the damage by rain will not be felt.

VOLUNTEER'S SUPPER

The Reception last Saturday Afternoon and Evening was a Success

A LARGE CROWD PRESENT

Complicated the Soldiers on their good work during the war in the Philippines.

Everything happened properly last Saturday for the county reception of the volunteers. The weather was perfect but the time since the rain ceased had not been sufficient to allow the grass to dry hence there was leisure for the farmers to take a half holiday in town. They took it. Early in the afternoon the streets filled and by five o'clock, the time for forming the parade, there was a surging mass of humanity about the parade ground. Without much trouble Dr. George Cornelius, as marshal, formed the parade. It was led by the Hillsboro band. The veterans of the G. A. R. followed after them was the squad of boys dressed in an imitation uniform of the rough riders, then came the volunteers who served with the Second Oregon. The native sons guarded the rear, with citizens generally following. Out of deference to the volunteers who had had a lot of marching and parading during the past eight months, the line of march was a short one, and the column soon entered the court house yard which never before presented so gay an appearance. Green arches had been built over each entrance to the grounds. Inside each bolt of hunting were stretched from the band stand in five directions so that the idea of an immense five pointed star was in the mind of the visitor. This was further emphasized by the arrangement of electric lights. The Light and Water Company stretched wires for a hundred feet from the band stand and installed incandescent lamps at intervals of a few inches. When night fell her curtains down there were five hundred lamps twinkling from these wires and shedding a bright light over the grounds that was seated on temporary benches arranged to the south of the stand. The supper tables were north of the stand.

All the volunteers that enlisted in the 24 Oregon from this county were present except Jasper Watson, Co. A, Sherwood; E. A. Street, E. Hillsboro; G. H. Cronkite, F. Hillsboro; Eugene Scully, H. Hillsboro; C. P. Oliver, H. (deed) Hillsboro; J. C. Buchanan, H. Cornelius; Pete Spencer, H. Beaver-ton; John Spierings, H. (deed) Green-cille; W. A. Russell, Gaston; J. M. Jones, H. Forest Grove; Arthur Pike Beaver-ton; Otto Richter, G. Hills-boro; Archie Luster, engineers, Glen-wood and Frank Buck, E. Dilley.

The address of welcome was made by Mayor Barrett. Mr. Barrett's address was short but to the point. He said he recognized the fact that the returning soldiers had heard many a shout of welcome since they had struck the influence of the American continent. Even the land breezes as they neared the Golden Gate breathed a balmy welcome. Then San Francisco with glad acclaim had taken up the sentiment. All along the railroad it had been welcome; at Astoria, at Roseburg, at Eugene, at Salem as well as at the smaller stations between a glad greeting had been extended. At Portland more was done. Now at home, another reception was tendered which the speaker thought would be more dear to the weary veteran than any of the others, because the well earned word was shouted by father, mother, sister, brother as well as by old associates. Here are the plains, the woods, the pastures, the fields of childhood. It is home, peace, quiet, rest. The speaker had been glad to hear the words go to the boys' hearts, and now he was doubly glad to see them return. He saw them go and cheered because there was so many in Washington county who for love of country had been benefited. There were several thousand sacks have been produced before, there will be none but this year's yield. The blight extended over the fields like a poisonous fog from the Willamette reaching as far as Scholls. Last year 30,000 sacks were gleaned from the same land that this year is ruined. It is to be hoped that the ruin is not as bad as represented.

Word comes that a mold or fungus growth has struck the onions of the lower Tualatin bottom in the neighborhood of Tualatin postoffice, and that the crop is nearly or quite ruined. Where several thousand sacks have been produced before, there will be none but this year's yield. The blight extended over the fields like a poisonous fog from the Willamette reaching as far as Scholls. Last year 30,000 sacks were gleaned from the same land that this year is ruined. It is to be hoped that the ruin is not as bad as represented.

it up in a few words: They proved themselves to be soldiers and men in every respect.

Congressman Tongue was induced to speak a few minutes over the allotted five. His remarks appear at length at another place.

Dr. Bailey was glad the young men because they were our loved ones but especially because they had met the enemy they had sought and in his presence they had conducted themselves with honor and displayed a valor that had done credit to the state and the nation.

Sixteen centuries ago Constantine had marked out the boundaries of his new capital which he fondly hoped would bind together the Orient and the Occident; for that purpose he made wide the boundaries, but it remained for a young nation from a new world to plant the true boundary and locate the line between the influence of the two hemispheres.

The second Oregon had an active part in surveying that line, and the chain riders, under his command, had driven the stakes and erected monuments which would not be removed but would be defended by the treasure and valor of this government forever. There might be new lines marked but they will be beyond where you have marched, not this side. No established American frontier line has ever been contracted. The fences are always moved out.

Dr. Linklater's thought was for those patriots who have not returned. As far as human sight extends they could not have died had they stayed at home, but love of country was a passion they could not, would not resist. They went, but they are not there today, they are a willing sacrifice on the altar of country. They are now dying for men. No greater sacrifice of holier, can be made. Our duty is to keep them in memory and commend them to strangers. John Spierings and Percy Oliver the absent in body, have worked out a great example and remain with us in memory.

Hon. W. D. Hare called attention to that other reception the county had given its soldiers in 1856 when the full company this county had sent to the Yakima Indian war, with Capt. Cornelius as their leader. Before brought back by Colonel Cornelius. You young men have displayed the same spirit that sustained those men in the long ago, for if you had to eat hardtack and canned roast beef, they had to eat mule meat without salt. They were volunteers, but they displayed your possess. Their reception was gracious, so is yours. Wives met them; mothers met you. On grounds only a few rods from here venison and best meat with native pheasants and grouse were served. Before you will soon be set roast turkey, chicken salads, fruit, jellies and cake and pastries. Times and surroundings have changed but humanity is steadfast. Defend the war, strive for the noble, uphold honor. But the noblest of all is the record is the best commendation of what you have done. We rejoice and clasp hands in a glad greeting.

Speakers from other parts of the county had been expected but they were detained. Patriotic airs were played and were interpreted and at the close of the remarks of the last speaker the soldiers with invited guests were seated at the finest open air table that has ever been spread in this county. The ladies who superintended the decorations and arranging the table deserve great credit for their work. The cooking was perfect and from the kitchens of homes where the farmers grange has trained the cooks for just such emergencies.

Judge Cornelius presided and at the close thanked those who had so ably assisted the committees in arranging for the exercises. Then by the light of the full moon all dispersed to home and to sleep.

The annual teacher's institute assembles next Monday morning and will remain in session till Friday evening. It will be a busy week for teachers, but profitable. Three teachers have been secured for the institute in the branches which they are to present. Supt. Ackerman will give a popular address Monday evening when the public generally is invited to be present. An attractive program has been prepared. On Tuesday evening the president of Portland university will be the lecturer, and on Wednesday Pres. Newlin of Pacific College, Newberg will meet the people of Hillsboro. Recognizing that subdued humor is permissible in popular lectures, Co. Supt. Ball has arranged for the presentation of a new song for the opening number at this evening meeting. The public may also attend the day sessions, but the exercises there may not be attractive to the unprofessional.

Capt. Collins is laying a plank walk from the gate at the corner of Main and Second street to the court house. This will shorten the winter road to the hall of justice. Speaking of improvements in the court house yard it is proper to write further and commend Capt. Collins for the uniform present appearance the yard has presented since he has had charge of the building and grounds. The grass is kept mowed and all litter is disposed of before it becomes a decaying mass.

The past ten days have been busy ones with farmers who had a large hay crop. Two and three carloads a day have been shipped from the Hillsboro station. Some of this hay has gone to the dairies this side of Portland while most has gone to points on the lower Columbia.

W. H. Bucker who has been a continuous resident of Hillsboro for so many years has gone to Portland where he will engage in the real estate business in company with a gentleman named Patterson.

CLEANING THE CREEK

Work will be commenced soon on Dairy Creek to Clean it

A HELP TO THE COUNTY

When Work is Completed it will drain all land within reach and will be a Great Benefit to Farmers

A fund has been subscribed by interested property owners and a committee appointed to exp and it consisting of Hubert Bernard, Wail Marsh and John Ireland to remove all drift obstructions in Dairy Creek from the mouth of Lousignout lake to Centerville bridge. Work is to be commenced immediately. C. E. Bradley of Forest Grove has been employed to superintend the work. A survey of that stretch of the creek has been made. Between the two points named there is a fall of 19.7 feet. This will give, when obstructions are removed, good drainage to the lake and the bottom below. From Centerville bridge to the Hillsboro bridge there are a few more logs that ought to be removed, which being done, would leave free flow of the current to the dam on the lower Tualatin.

CROP AND WEATHER BULLETIN

WESTERN OREGON.

Weather.—Rain fell on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Sunday, and a few showers occurred to-day, the total for the week ranging from 0.36 of an inch to 1.45 inches. Since the rain began on the 9th from 1 to 2 inches have fallen. Rain has fallen on nine days of this month, a greater number than in any previous August. The pleasant weather prevailed on Thursday Friday and Saturday.

The mean temperature for the week, 59 degrees, is 2 degrees lower than for the corresponding week last year. The maximum temperature ranged from 68 to 72 degrees and the minimum from 50 to 60 degrees. Since August 1 the maximum temperatures have been below 80 degrees except from the 3th to 6th, inclusive when in a few sections they were from 80 to 84 degrees. There has been a marked deficiency in the amount of sunshine.

The records of the Weather Bureau cover period of 29 years, and those records fail to show any weather ever approximating that which has prevailed this month. In August 1896, from the 1st to the 6th, rain fell on the 13th and 14, and again from the 20th to the end of the month; in 1879 rain fell from the 20th to 28th inclusive. These are the only years record having any unusual weather; hence, this year is an unprecedented one.

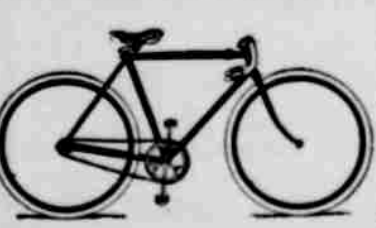

Crops.—Harvesting fall-sown grain is practically at stand still. Reports vary as to damage to the shocked wheat. Telegraphic reports received to-day state that springing has commenced in the shocked wheat as yet uncut. No serious or general damage has yet occurred, though should current conditions continue, which is not probable, much damage will result. The fall-sown grain is all ready to be cut, and the rains have caused it to fall and lodge. Some loss will result, no matter how soon fair weather again sets in. The rains have been of great benefit to spring-sown grain, and especially to that which was late sown. Within a week after fair, warm weather set in, the spring grain will be ready to harvest. The rains have put the soil in good condition and plowing has already commenced.

Grass which has commenced to dry up, has been revived, making the second crop of clover as promising as the first crop turned out to be. Potatoes have an excellent growth and a large crop appears to be assured. Garden produce of all kinds has been greatly benefitted by the rains and good garden crops are assured. The onion crop of Washington county is superior to that of for many years.

Hop growers report their hops in better condition than ever before. There are fewer late than for years. The vines are clean and healthy and well filled with burrs or cones. The rains have increased the size of the burrs, so that unless adverse conditions prevail, and extra good, clean hop crop will be secured. Late hops are fewer than they were one week ago. Peaches are ripening in the south-eastern counties. Watermelons, apples and pears are slowly ripening. The rains have cracked a few plums. The prunes are reported to be of better size and of a more marketable appearance than usual.

Fair weather will probably prevail within 36 hours, and should such be the case, it will be found that the benefits derived from the rain will more than offset any injury that may have occurred.
