TWICE AND AGAIN.

The Argus is again with the Oregonian charging Mr. Tongue with having held different financial views at one time than he does now. Lets see. He helped in 1892 frame the Minneapolis platform, the most advanced position that any party at that time held. In 1894 campaign, he denounced free silver coinage and stood radical for sound money. Nov. 4th that same year he wrote that letter which certain persons have always persisted in attaching a meaning it did not contain. Three days later, viz: Nov. 7th he wrote anaddendum saying in so many words that he did not endorse free silver and that his letter does not bear that construction. In that short time a man cannot change much. In 1896, state campaign, he was recognized as a sound money man. Even the Oregonian held him up as such. The republican party nominated him for congress and elected him, not by a large majority 'tis true, but on the gold platform. He went to congress and began voting with the republicans, the only party that stood for the gold standard. In 1898 he was again, on the gold platform, elected to congress by a large majority, a majority that surprised the politicans of both parties everywhere. The republicans are going to nominate him again on a gold platform and elect him too. His party is satisfied with his record. The demo-pops are the only ones who seem to be complaining. Perhaps that is proper for he never did a thing to advance their peculiar rag money, free silver dogmas, either outside or in congress.

But the financial condition of the country in 1894 was not in the best condition and it is not clear why the Argus desires at this to call attention to it. Now it is recognized that the debtor does not need quite so much sympathy and attention as he did then. He is better able to take care of himself. At that time when he got money at all, he paid 10 per cent interest and probably a bonus. His property was frequently being sold under execution; values had gone out of it. The money in the country was decreasing—going to foreign nations to buy cloths and merchandise which we consumed and wore out. Everybody was getting poor and this all on account of the administration of a government which the editor of the Argus helped to place in power. Now that same debtor is probably paying no more than six per cent interest. The price of most of his property, cattle, sheep and wool, fruits and vegetables, as well as his land, has increased during the republican administration with a rapidity never before heard of. The debtor does not need Mr. Tongue's sympathy. But he has been fortunately placed in a position where he can render the debtor some very material help. Mr. Tongue has done his shere in doing so during the present administration. For this his republican constitutants propose to again avail themselves of his abilities his steadfastness to purpose and his training.

The republican central committee for Washington county held an important committee meeting on Tuesday last. The county convention was called for April 5th as appears at length in the official advertismen in another place. The demand for one convention came from the country and was adopted this time though two years ago the same question was voted down. The convention may not complete its work in one day, but the committeemen judged that it would be best to have but one convention. A long canvass has some advantages and particularly this year when there are some questions that need deliberate study.

PORTO RICAN LEGISLATION.

has been bought up by speculators who purchased it upon the price based on full tariff duties. You know the surplus crop has found a market in the United States after paying full tariff rates. Now these speculators have held this crop waiting for free trade. They will make an enormous amount of money even with 15 per cent of duty. But the house and the committee of Ways and Means thot that this industry could well afford to contribute some from these immense sums to be used for the benefit of the people of Porto Rico. Under this bill, Porto Rico will contribute nothing to the support of the federal goverament, not a cent. Why they keep not only the duties collected on that side of the water, but we give them all we collect on this side upon Porto Rican products. It will be the easiest way possible for Porto Rico to raise the revenue necessary for its support. No state or territory in the union was given such held or assistance as this, and yet, on the face of that, people are talking about robbing Porto Rico, discriminating against Porto Rico, tnd all that sort of a thing. To illustrate the ignorance on the subject, the Oregonian that I got today, has a cartoon representing Uncle Sam as feeding free trade soup to fat Hawaii, while poor, lean hungry Porto Rico does not get a spoonful. The fact is, that Hawaii is paying all of the Dingley tariff duties. Not 15 per cent, but 100 per cent is in force between the United States and Hawaii. Of course, this does not apply to sugar, because that has been free from Hawaii for a great many years, but it does to the other products. Congress enacted this law soon after the annexation of Hawaii and it is in force yet. Nobody howls about its constitutionality or its oppression and they are not howling now. Porto Rico clamors for territorial government. But we cannot hatch out a government in a day; we cannot fit them to live under one in a day. They never had free government, and will have to be led up to it gradually. One wild fool, wants relief for the coffee industry. I suppose he thinks there is a tariff on coffee. Why we have relieved the coffee industry all we can by exempting the people engaged in that from all form of taxation. The same goose insists on free trade with Cuba. Cuba is for all intents and purposes, in her fiscal arrangements, a separate nationality. We are administering Cuba for the benefit of the Cuban people.

The Ways and Means committee are responsible a little for this excitement. When the bill came to the house, there was no adequate explanation of why this 25 per cent duty should be imposed. It looked like an attempt to protect the sugar growers and tobacco growers from Cuban competition. They were clamoring for it, and apparently this clamor had been yielded to. There was nothing in the bill to indicate that it was to be temporary, or that it was for the purpose of raising revenue for Porto Rico further than the fourth section of the bill that was unnoticed. A great many republicans were opposed to it, myself amongst them. But when we learned the real purpose of the bill and the needs of Porto Rico, we said to the Ways and Means committee: "Make these things apparent upon the face of your bill, change your title, so it shall be a bill to raise revenue for Porto Rico, and make it on its face, temporary in its nature, so that it won't be misunderstood and taken as a precedent for enacting a protective tariff against Porto Rico." When that was done, I was perfectly satisfied with it.

There is a lot of howling about trusts in the silliest manner. The sugar and tobacco trusts buy raw material and wanted free trade, so they can get it cheap. They own largely the raw products now, and they are the ones who are polluting the fountains of news very largely and helping to keep up this clamor. They have scored a triumph in getting the house to change the duty from 25 to 15 per cent. What irony of fate. This concession to trusts of 10 per cent was made in order to secure the votes of anti-trust people. Ye, gods!

There is just as wild representations about the constitutional questions involved. Those who want the constitutional question settled, and settled at once want it for its effect upon the Philippine islands, but not so much for the tariff part of it. If the constitution in all its parts is in force in the Philippine islands, then congress is bound to guarantee to them a republican form of government. All, with full political rights, privileges of citizens, of voters, trial by jury, taxes imposed by a legislature of their own choosing, etc. Uniform government. We cannot govern the Philippine islands in that way, and these anti-annexationists know this. They are the ones largely yelling themselves hoarse against the Porto Rican bill on the constitutional question, and doing the talking about precedent. When we were discussing the treaty, these class of people opposed the Philippines, talked of free trade, and alleging that would be ruinous. Now they say we must proceed to ruin ourselves by free trade. It is singular that papers in favor of annexation, are joining in this cry. There is no unfriendliness in congress to Porto Rico. On the other hand, the bill was made in the utmost friendliness, If there is any trouble we went too far.

There is another peculiar position taken by those who oppose the bill as it passed the house. They not only want free trade, but they want the open door at Manila. That would mean free trade with all the world. If foreign people can take their goods into Manila, duty free, and then if we cannot put duty on goods bought from Manila, why that would be the gateway of free trade with all mankind. We could not even have revenue,

THOS. H, TONGUE.

DID NOT SAY IT.

Representative Tongue is reported as saying that he is more and more convinced that Porto Rico ought not to be admitted to free commercial intercourse with the United States.—Oregonian March 15th.

The INDEPENDENT does not believe that Mr. Tongue ever said it. The INDEPENDENT's advices are to the contary.

There may be such a craze started by the cry against the Porto Rico legislation by the trust magnates and their organs together with others who do not exercise ordinary judgement, that Bryan and his free silver anti expansion satellites will be landed into power in 1901. Can the country stand another 1893—7 depression?

If Mr. Tongue cannot be elected on the republican platform this year or the other republican congressmen, then Mr. Bryan and his free silver centi expansion demo populists will be. The Oregonian can put that on the ins de of the wrapper of his trust cigar and smoke it as he goes home these moon light nights.

The Oracle considers Hon. Thos. H. Tongue, with his past experience in congress and his knowledge of the needs and requirements of the state in the matter of national legislation, by great odds the peer of any man yet mentioned as his successor. It s simply the heighth of folly for the republicans to talk of a successorto Mr. Tongue at this particular time.—Oracle, Roseburg.

One Woman to Another

From one who has suffered to all who are suffering. The words of Mrs. Nellie Cameron, of Lockport, N.Y., convey a broad meaning to every thoughtful woman. Mrs. Cameron says:

"In the fall of 1898 I was in a deplorable condition. I had stomach trouble in the very worst form. Nothing at all would stay on my stomach, and I had to almost starve myself. My side pained me constantly. The lack of nourishment caused me to lose flesh rapidly. I dropped from 138 to 97 pounds, growing weaker all the time. There was not the slightest color in my face. I was simply a shadow of my former self. Able physicians treated me, but failed absolutely. I was a complete wreck when a friend told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. One box greatly improved my condition; it was astonishing how quickly they built me up. I believe
