THE FLAG AND THE CONSTITUTION.

The Supreme Court has announced decisions in a part of the class of cases arising from conditions that follow the Spanish war of 1898. There were two classes, one arising out of Porto Rico from the time the treaty of Paris was signed up to the passage of the act creating a territorial government, and the other during the time from the inauguration of the territorial government up to the present. Indeed there is really three periods, the other being the time from the invasion and occupancy of the island by the army up to the singing of the treaty. The cases growing out of the occupation of the Philippines have not been handed down. These will be reached after the 1st of October, the Court having adjourned to that date.

The matters awaiting adjudication in the courts are those relating to trade concessions.

The Court decides that territory coming to the United States by conquest or treaty is domestic and as such is not effected by the laws regulating commerce with foreign countries. Thus duties can not be collected on merchandise imported from Porto Rico during that time between the signing of the treaty of Paris and the passage of the act levying the 15 per cent duty. This is water on the wheels of the tobacco and sugar trusts since they will get the money back which they paid as duties. But the Court decides in another case that Congress has full control over all territory belonging to the United States for all purposes, from the time it is acquired till it is admitted as a state. No "powers are reserved to territories." As a result congress may tax the commerce carried on between territories and the states, that is, has power to do so, but that power must be positively exercised. This was done when the Foraker tariff law was enacted levying a duty of 15 per cent of the Dingley tariff on the trade between Porto Rico and Contiental ports.

The army has the right to levy duties on commerce after it occupies a country and before peace is declared ceding the occupied country to the United States. Thus it is thought that all duties collected on Philippine imports between the time when Dewey went into Manila Bay up to the date of the treaty of Paris, were properly gathered, but those collected since, if the Porto Rico decision is followed, will have to be returned. The Tagalog insurrection can not be recognized as such a state of war as will permit the army to levy and collect duties. If they are collected, it would be equivolent to recognizing the so called Philippino republic and the suppression of the revolt as a war of conquest waged against a foreign people. But congress under the Porto Rico decision has a right to lay a duty on commerce between the Philippines and the Continental ports and will probably do so. If the tariff is not laid, Spain, that for ten years has free trade with the Philippines, might get free trade with Continental ports by shipping first to Manila and then to the states.

These decisions affirm the contention held by the republican party from 1856 that congress has absolute control of the territories, and retires the doctrine of "squatter Sovereignty."

OUR CHINESE POLICY.

On the way back to Washington from San Francisco the president and members of the Cabinet devoted a good deal of time to the consideration of the Chinese situation. The declination of the other powers to join in the suggestion of the United States with regard to scaling down the indemnity demanded of China was a great disappointment, though it could hardly be said that it was entirely unexpected. The necessities of European powers for the maintenance of their large armies and navies are perhaps a factor in their present action. The president and members of the Cabinet feel that this government was right in protesting against exactions which might force China to the wall and from the position taken by the United States there will be no retreat. The demands of the powers are considered exorbitant and likely, if insisted upon, to result ultimately in the crippling or dismemberment of the empire.

The United States will continue to urge this view at every opportunity. If the powers proceed alone and force China to accede to their demands, this government of course, will accept the share of the indemnity assigned to it upon the present basis. It can then distribute such amount as is necessary to liquidate the claims of our citizens and subsequently determine, if such a course should be deemed wise, whether all the remainder should be retained by this government as its proper share.

The United States is not in favor of the proposed scheme to raise and guarantee an international loan for China out of the proceeds of which she can liquidate her indebtedness to the powers. The United States is willing to accept the bonds of China without indorsement by any power at 3 per cent interest and thus make manifest to the world the sincerity of the American profession proclaimed at the very outset that the United States desires to help China to her feet and preserve her political integrity.

Reports from South Carolina lead to the belief that the McLaurin democracy of South Carolina will defeat Senator Tillman who seeks re-election.

COUNTY EXHIBIT.

In order to accomplish and insure a success of any undertaking it is always necessary to make an effort and the better the effort (if in the right direction) the better will invariably be the result. However, no one can expect the best result without being first well informed on the subject in hand.

This was very plainly demonstrated at our last year's State Fair. In regard to our Washington county exhibit, the undersigned in connection with Mr. W. T. Jackson took hold of the job to exhibit the products of our county at the State Fair, with the full knowledge and conviction that the county could easily win the first prize, because of the superiority of its soil and the necessary better quality of its products. Hence we made an extra effort to gather up only the best specimens, and using all the artistic ability at our disposal in putting up the same. But lo, and behold, we had figured without our host, e. i., we were not well informed on the work in hand, for we had failed to gather a sufficient variety, as well as quality, hence the 3 prize. But through an effort, our county can gain an advantage this year to the parties who will take charge of the Washington county exhibit.

Of course competition will be greater and more brisk perhaps than last. But if we all go it with a will and determination that we will all do something towards making this exhibit from this county a success, we will be able to prove to the many emigrants and visitors from the east that we possess a land where "milk and honey flows," and that in great abundance. We need not lack for variety, for if each one of us will only bring or send in one single good specimen of his farm or shop, dairy or garden we can make a showing that would do credit to any county in America. We have the soil, we have the climate, and we have the ability. The only question is have we the will. Many will say: "Oh well; I don't want to be bothered with it." "I don't care if anyone knows anything about Washington county or not." "I don't want to sell out etc. But if emigration is an advantage to Washington county, then it is obsolute necessity to show the products of our county in order to induce people to come and make their homes with us and help to develope it. Let us make a united effort and we will be surprised at the result. Very truly yours,

F. M. HEIDEL.

The ring leader of an Astoria mob has been arrested on a charge of riotous conduct. There is quite a colony of Finns at that town who in the season engage in fishing. Many of them are making estimable citizens, but some are otherwise. A paper printed in the Finnish language has been recently established and its editor, Rosenberg, published what some of his nationality said is obscure matter. M. Saarela swore to a complaint charging the crime. The mob put Saarela on a boat to make him leave town. The shiriff hearing of the proceeding informed Saarela he need not go unless he wished co do so and then followed arrest.
