She belonged to the army, and little squad of officers and privates was very dear to her. She longed to ussure them in every way possible that her marriage had not in any way removed them from her in sympathy. So one evening about a week after

Royal Stuart went down to Eric's cottage and met Andrew and the doctor there. Together they went over to Rhenn's lodging, and presently she came out dressed in the army costume. that Stuart sald was the best and most becoming for her to wear. She took his arm, and, with Eric and the doctor and Andrew marching behind, they stepped over to the hall. The army was in great excitement.

It had paraded the streets, held its outdoor meeting and was back at the hall to welcome the bride and groom. The little band stood just outside, and received such a vigorous beating as it received that night. The tambourines would certainly have been knocked into small pieces if they had not been made of very tough material. And "Sealy Joe," now known as "Witnessing Joseph." would surely have blown himself through the holes of his finte pair of lungs that could be almost indefinitely expanded.
