SUMMER RESORTS.

"To the mountains our people in increasing numbers yearly look for those days of relaxation and recreation necessary to maintain the human machine in fair working condition. The languorous sloth of the seashore proves very seductive while it lasts, but many have decided that the annual outing should provide not only radiant change of air and surroundings, but also such stimulation of lagging energies as will provide brawn and vigor for the return to labor. For this they urge the mountain climb and ratably, the balsam of the mountain pines, and the clear, unsullied mountain air."

"In this direction the Shasta Route now affords a wealth of attractions. The entire line of road from Ashland to Redding is studded with charming and scenic spots, hotels and camps, where are cheer and comfort and healing at reasonable cost, and where you can hunt, fish, ride, loaf, or play with equal facility."

"Or if you look for healing waters, none better can be found, hot or cold, than the springs of Ashland, Cleburne, Anderson, Bartlett, Byrns and Pace Robles."

"Before visiting Europe, the people of the Northwest should see the glories of Yosemite Valley, and the wondrous groves of Mariposa and Calaveras; the Parisians are likely to make inquiries concerning these attractive resorts."

Send to Mr. C. H. Markham, General Passenger Agent, Portland, for new booklets on Castle Crags, Shasta Springs, McCloud River, Yosemite, and excursion rates thereto.

HIS PARTING WORDS.

Hon. C. L. Smith, of Minnesota, who has been traveling over Western Oregon and talking to the farmers in the interest of diversified and intensified agriculture, gave some parting words in his talk to the assembled farmers at the State Agricultural College chapel last Thursday evening.

What were they?
They were to this effect:
"Your most valuable school is your own experience. Go to school to one another. You have some magnificent farmers in Oregon. You have those who think as clearly as the farmers of any country. Get their experience. Adopt their methods."

Mr. Smith explained that when he first came to Oregon he could only compare the practices and results here with the same things in Minnesota or other states east of us. But he soon found things worthy of example and comparison right here in the Willamette valley. He knows what all can do by what some have done; what profits all may make by what some are making.

It Dazzles The World.

No Discovery in medicine has ever created one-quarter of the excitement that has been caused by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Its severest tests have been on hopeless victims of Consumption, Pneumonia, Hemorrhage, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom it has restored to perfect health. For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and Whooping Cough it is the quickest, surest cure in the world. It is sold by The Delta Drug Store who guarantee satisfaction or refund money. Large bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

These European remarks about the inferiority of American coal and locomotives have a manufactured appearance, like the stories invented to damage the reputation of American meats and fruits.

She Didn't Wear A Mask.

But her beauty was completely hidden by sores, blotches and pimples till she used Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Then they vanished as well as Eruptions, Fever Sores, Bolls, Ulcers, Carbuncles and Felons from its use. Infallible for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Scalds and Piles. Cure guaranteed. 25c at The Delta Drug Store.

A Poor Millionaire.

Lately starved in London because he could not digest his food. Early use of Dr. King's New Life Pills would have saved him. They strengthen the stomach, aid digestion, promote assimilation, improve appetite. Price 25c. Money back if not satisfied. Sold by The Delta Drug Store.

LOS ANGELES RECEPTION.

The reception of the Rivers and Harbors committee in California was much more elaborate than in Oregon. The Los Angeles Times gives this report of Congressman Tongue's remarks at that city's reception.
Hon. Thomas H. Tongue of Oregon opened his address with a complement to California, saying that for years he has had in his heart a warm place for the state, which has been intensified by his present visit. He said he liked the energy of the people and the unbounded belief in the future of their State. Then the speaker spoke of a former visit to California and of the wonderful development made since that time. He said:

"When I was first here, the jack rabbit stole your cabbages and the coyotes drove your house dogs home at night. The sun was everywhere. Now in the face of the desert and climate your old-time arid lands are covered with flowers and orange groves—land that was not worth thirty cents you are selling for $1500 an acre and the rabbits and coyotes are bothering no one."

"I regard this visit of the committee to your State as important not only to you and to California, but to the Pacific Coast. From many of the States of the Union the members of this committee have come and when they return to their homes they will know more about California than any other member of Congress."

"This visit is significant in another way. It makes possible the recognition of the sentiment expressed by the man from Texas, who said, 'We've done good and expanded.' There are five hundred millions of people in Eastern Asia just awakening to their needs. If we can get these people to eat much in the morning once a week, to put on a clean shirt once a month and to eat plum pudding on every Christmas, we will find a market for all the wheat, cotton and raisins this country can grow. The European market is no longer a factor in the world's commerce for this country and the time is rapidly coming when the Pacific Coast will outdo the Atlantic."

"Whatever the Pacific Coast may become, you may be sure that California will be well in the lead. Your climate and the advantages will place you there and purer than the snows of the mountains are your daughters of California."

All Boys Should Learn

To run.
To swim.
To carve.
To be neat.
To make a fire.
To be punctual.
To do an errand.
To cut kindlings.
To sing if they can.
To help their mother.
To hang up their hat.

To respect their teacher.
To hold their heads erect.
To sew on their own buttons.
To read aloud when requested.
To wipe their boots on the mat.
To cultivate a cheerful temper.
To speak pleasantly to an old person.

To put every garment in its proper place.
To remove their hats upon entering a house.
To laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.
To help and not tease boys smaller than themselves.
To attend strictly to their own business. A very important point.
To be as kind and helpful to their sisters as to other boys' sisters.

In the year 1900 the United States sold to the Austrians $7,000,000 worth of goods and bought from them $9,000,000 worth. The figures do not warrant the noise made in Austria about a Pan-European trade combination against the United States. Those bumptious Vienna editors must draw their inspiration from some other part of Europe.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold at The Delta Store.

Uncle Sam's surplus of $75,000,000 for the fiscal year that ended June 30 is a fine showing. France ran behind $100,000,000 last year and there are deficits in England, Germany, and, in fact, the majority of nations.

STANDING BY PROTECTION.

When men calling themselves Republicans find their remarks on the present tariff followed by a round of Democratic applause, the incident ought to make them thoughtful. There is nothing in the platform adopted by the Republicans of Ohio to draw forth any Democratic signs of approbation. "The principle of protection," says the Ohio plank, "has achieved its most signal triumph in the results of the Dingley tariff law. It has given us marked prosperity at home and a rapid growing export trade, which are the envy of the world. The Republican tariff policy has made the farmer and the laborer more prosperous than ever, and no legislation should be permitted which will imperil the interests of either." An unequivocal declaration is made for a continuance of tariff schedules which protect American labor. Reciprocity treaties were approved, as in former Republican platforms, but on the protective principle.

Nobody who accepts this platform will be patted on the back by the Democratic press for the simple reason that it is true Republican doctrine. Democratic schemers are eager to stir up the spirit of tariff tinkering, but they will catch no real Republicans in their net. The Dingley tariff is a complete demonstration. In the fiscal year just closing our foreign trade far exceeds two billions. The trade balance is on our side by $675,000,000. The treasury surplus is $77,000,000. Democrats who insist that their party could do better, will discover few persons verdant enough to believe it. Weak-kneed or fantastic Republicans who hope for better things by ripping up the Dingley law will make no impression on the solid common sense of the party. The Dingley law is no experiment. It is a splendid success, an acknowledged master stroke of statesmanship.—Globe Democrat.

AN INTERNATIONAL SALT TRUST.

Some alarm is expressed at the latest industrial combination—an international salt trust. This consolidation, which aims at control of one of the necessities of existence, includes the Salt Union of England (the British salt trust), the National Salt Company of the country, the Canadian Salt Company, and the trust that controls the Spanish and Italian output. If this great combination is successful, remarks the New York Evening Post, "it would seem that a universal salt tax might be laid on the human race, whether the laws of particular nations ordained it or forbade it, and it adds that such a tax is 'disquieting.' It continues: 'It is disquieting, because we have become used to relying, theoretically at least, on foreign competition as a remedy for domestic oppression. After all, we have thought, if worst comes to worst, we can abolish our protective duties, and then our trusts will have to meet the competition of the world, and will sell us their goods at fair prices. The mere talk of an international combination dispels this cheerful delusion. Such a combination can laugh at tariffs, and in spite of protectionist theories, can make the consumer pay the tax. In countries enjoying protective duties salt would probably be sold at higher prices, but the salt monopoly would not need or be helped by a tariff.'

The vast natural supplies of salt however, lead a number of papers to believe that there is no danger. It will be time enough for alarm, thinks the Chicago Record-Herald, when the trust pockets the oceans. "The Atlantic," it remarks, "gives eighty-one pounds of salt in a ton of water, and altho it has never been weighed, it is a very sure thing that it contains a good many tons of water." The Philadelphia Press' too, says that "as salt is produced in almost unlimited quantities in various States of the Union, there need be no fear of this 'combine.' The New York Sun says:

"The international trust promised in salt need not frighten anybody. There has for a long time been some sort of an international trust in window glass, or at least among the laborers engaged in window-glass making. But assuming that the international salt trust would be far be out comparison with its glass colleague in point of size and commercial effectiveness, it would still present no valid ground for anxiety, according to the lessons of our peculiarly ample experience."

"The industrial combinations in this country were built up against the most bitter opposition and frantic dread lest they should prove public calamities. But industrially we are stronger and more surefooted to-day than ever, and very largely through our unequalled development of the trust system."

Economically, therefore, we can watch the trust acquire an international form with attention that has the great advantage of calmness. The political effect of the international trust is another matter."

The Ohio Democrats are in a sad condition. Mr. McLean is so much disheartened by the harmony at the Republican convention that his bar is running nothing but dribbles.

Uncle Sam is harvesting one of the biggest wheat crops in the history of the country. From present indications, foreign exports during the coming year will be greater than ever.

STATE PRESS.

The Tillamook paper reports that the cut worm has again made its appearance in the meadows of that Coast County.

The $1000 appropriated by the last State Legislature for the improvement of the mineral springs at Soda-ville is now being expended in numerous much-needed improvements.

County Surveyors Waggoner, of Benton County and Collier, of Lane, have been rectifying a disputed portion of the boundary line. About 600 acres have been added to Benton County.

Brome grass is being extensively raised on the Eastern Oregon ranges to replace the rapidly disappearing bunch-grass. It seems to flourish on hard, dry soils with a minimum of moisture.

Colonel Winchester, of the Siltz reservation, expects authority to distribute about $100,000 among the Indians of that section in liquidation of various claims against the government.

Work on the Baker City pipe line has been delayed by the ironworkers' strike at Pittsburg. The contractors have picked up stray lots of pipe elsewhere and expect to have water in the city in two weeks.

Several miners have been discharged from the Glendale and other mines around Baker City, on account of their valuable specimen ores, worth several thousand dollars. A thorough investigation is in progress.

The Oregon Railroad & Coal Company will put in machinery and actively operate its coal lands in the Hepper hills. Good coal was taken out there 20 years ago but the mine was subsequently abandoned on account of water.

The Astoria local Telephone Company refuse to pay a tax imposed by the city. The patrons thereupon commenced to order the instruments out of their places of business. The Company, if the controversy continues, will soon have no property to tax.

Albert Neal, of Linn County, was badly injured while working in the timber near Jordan. A large tree lodged in some others; the top broke off and struck Neal on the head, crushing his nose and forehead and breaking his right arm in three places. The injuries are expected to prove fatal.

The cost of improving the road from Astoria to the Nehalem will exceed the highest bid considerably. It will require more than the entire tax levy for five years to build the road to Olney. The indications are that the people of the Nehalem will not see a road for many years.—Astoria Herald.

The run of Salmon at the mouth of the Columbia is not equal to what it has been in former years. The Astoria Herald states that there is no improvement in the run of salmon and a large number of gillnet men have hung up their gear. There may be a run after the 15th, but if there is none then, there will be none during the season. This is the opinion of many old gillnetters.

The Van Sickle ranch in Grant County has been operating a sheep-shearing machine invented by N. H. Cottrell, which shears 10 sheep in three minutes. The machine gets one and one-half pounds per head more than the shearer is able to obtain. That is the report and the machine may do better work than is possible by hand, but the Independent does not believe the 1½ pound story.

The Headlight urges the Tillamook Bay Commission to diligently work to get the Oregon Congressional delegation interested in improving Tillamook Bay. That paper says: "Senators Simon and Mitchell and Congressman Moody should be just as energetic in the matter as Congressman Tongue and we believe they would be if the Commission could get in touch with them."

Salem complains because the Rivers and Harbors Committee did not stop longer there. Judging from the interest taken by the people, the Committee tarried as long as there was welcome. There was not a guide at the siding to show the way to the Capital, and there were not fifty people at the State house to meet the guests. Salem must realize that there is something for that City to do as well as benefactions to receive.
