LABOR AND LABOR RIGHTS.

The strugle between "organized" labor and the employers both in the East and San Francisco is as vigorous as when begun three weeks ago. When the end will be reached cannot now be seen. The country may well hope that no sympathetic strike shall be made. For if "organized" labor has become so strong as to precipitate such a thing it would be worse than the bread riots of Europe. Building would be suspended, railroad trafic would be discontinued. Telegraphic communication would be impossible, newspapers would not be published, and the mails themselves would remain dead in the post offices. In such an emergency society would be put back 100 years to the time of the stage coach and hand craft.

Just now there are fundamental facts touching the rights and privileges of labor that should be thoroughly understood and positively acknowledged by every individual of the state. It is now conceded that a laborer has the right to quit work when he chooses. The only question involved is one of equity. If a laborer is under contract to labor for a specified time and he breaks his contract then it is a question of business, and his responsibility as a reliable business man is impaired. His credit is injured. But society has already recognized that he may be dishonest to that extent. There is another factor however that has not up to the present time been subscribed to by every community that must be acknowledged before labor troubles can be ended. It is: All labor must be respected. Union labor claims protection and has it, but non-union labor does not have protection. This is seen by the palisades required about the mills to protect property and employees. It is seen when policemen guard employees to and and from meals. It is seen when labor that is willing to work is stealthily introduced into the mills. It is seen at those mills where "organized" labor posts pickets to prevent willing labor from earning its compensation. It is seen in the ordinance passed by a cowardly city council that authorizes the posing of those pickets. "Organized" labor boasts that no violence has been indulged during the present strike, but there has been enough to bring non-union men from their work who feared death if they stayed. No where is there a fiercer iron tyrany than that exercised by the leaders of "organized" labor. A man surrenders all freedom when he unites with the lodge. If he works before he has permission he is a scab and a rat. He is as completely ostracised as he can be.

Before the labor troubles of America can be adjusted, willing labor, non-union labor must have the same right to toil for wages as is now conceded to the union man. He must be personally safe to walk the streets of his factory town alone or or in companies of two or a score. Public opinion must grant the non-union laborer the right to brush to one side any person or persons who would hinder him from freely exercising all the rights possessed by an American citizen.

The Steel Corporation and the San Francisco Employers Association are not wise in waiting and negotiating with strikers to get them to go back to their jobs. Let it be understood that any laborer who is willing to work and has sufficient skill can have the job and keep it too, returned strikers to the contrary notwithstanding. If there are not skilled workmen enough then commence training more. But the tender-hearted may plead for the striker's family. It can be replied that he had no regard for his loved ones when he quit work. Let him drift to other industries where the conditions will be more satisfactory and more congenial. But above all let the non-union man have the same rights allowed the union man.

Some of the late silver papers can not forgst their old passion for calamity exaggeration. One of them tragically writes: Morgan can issue an order granting work to a million men, most of them with families, or with-holding it from them. In his hands lie the issues of plenty or penury, sufficiency or starvation, almost of life and death." Remembering the history of the past ten days one is liable to reach a different conclusion. Morgan lost 47,000 and could not replace that number. Then Shaffer issued an order and 20,000 more men left Morgan. So it seems that it is not Morgan's orders after all, but rather Shaffer's that controls men.

Salt fit for table use sells in Hillsboro today for 75 cents per sack of fifty pounds. Five months ago the same salt sold for 45 cents per sack. Now stock salt sells for 60 cents per sack. Five months ago the same salt sold for 25 cents per sack. Last fall the Hillsboro merchants bought a car load of stock salt in Portland for $5.00 per ton. Now the same salt is quoted at $18 00 per ton, a raise of over 350 per cent. The duty on salt packed in bags or barrels is 12 cents 100 pounds and in bulk 8 cents per cental. The 50 pound packages above quoted paid a duty of 6 cents when imported from a foreign country. The high price of salt now prevailing is not due to the law or any other law. The present tariff was in force three years before salt went up in February of this year. If the tariff is to blame for high prices foreign salt could be imported, the duty paid, and then sold for much less than it is selling. The trouble is the formation of an international trust. Dealers of U.S., England, Italy and Spain have formed a trust and we are salted. Any one who intimates that the tariff effects the price is simply writing or talking what he knows to be untrue. Indeed the tariff has got to remain or we will be worse than salted. An example will illustrate. The American salt monopoly has been forming for several years. The Humphrey's, of Warsaw, New York, owned the salt works. They had a good business. The town was some larger than Hillsboro. Every one owned his home. Peace, plenty and contentment was every where. The agent of the big company came and made a tempting offer for the spring and the plant, which was taken, the old proprietors arguing that the industry in new hands would be as profitable for the town as in the possession of themselves. But note. The Warsaw works were closed and all the laborers that before had been doing well lost their job. The town was as dead as a door nail, and remained so till the old salt company established a button factory. So if the Dingley salt duty is abolished, the trust will stop all American evaporators and refineries and import from its foreign works. The American workmen will loose their jobs and the price of salt will remain where it is or go higher.

Newspapers whose sympathies are on the side of the great steel trust make but a sickly effort when they try to moralize against men who have joined against the strike, yet had signed an agreement to join no union. It is apparent that no such agreement as this can have any validity in morals or in law. It was extorted under duress; for no man voluntarily abandons his right to join any association, or to limit his freedom of action. The trusts try to make men their serfs or dependent; and so they insist when they can on acceptance by the men of the men of these conditions of servitude. And then the organs of the trusts invoke a hypocritical and spurious morality for support or enforcement of the claim. It may not beat the devil, but it is a close imitation of his policy.—Oregonian. Great applaus in the galleries.
