SOME HANDICAPS.

There are some trade conditions effecting Oregon industries which must be taken into account when estimating profits that are expected to be realised. Take for example, lumber. Our timber is the best in the nation for structure work, framing, bridge building, shipping spars etc. and it is sometimes assumed that the lumber must be had at any price. Colorado, New Mexico and the Platte states are timberless, hence there is a great market on those plains for lumber. We have heard that the timber supply of Michigan and Wisconsin is exhausted. Wherefore some of us have dreamed that consumers must come to Oregon and Washington for lumber at the price we demand. This would perhaps be true if we had a monopoly of timber. But there are others. The South, Georgia, Tennessee, Arkansas and adjoining states have hardly been touched. Their timber is not as good as ours but it will answer the purpose and since they are nearer the market, they can undersell us. The question then resolves itself in this simple element. What we gain by having a lumber of better quality is lost and goes to the south by reason of a less freight tariff made possible by nearness to market. Thus a mill man of Arkansas can get as much for his lumber as the Oregon man can for the better fir which he sends east. The consumer pays less for the southern pine than for the Oregon fir and will continue to do so. We have competitors.

Another item is butter. The best fancy brands of Elgin, Ill. creamery butter was quoted last week at 21 cents per pound. The freight from Illinoise to Pacific Coast common points, Portland, Tacoma and Seattle, is 3 cents per pound, bringing the cost of Elgin butter up to 24 cents. Oregon creamery butter is held at 25 to 27½ cents per pound in Portland. To this price, must be added the local freight to the Sound cities which amounts to about one-fifth of a cent. Thus we are practically kept out of the Puget Sound and British Columbia market unless our dairy people can see their way clear to shade the Portland market almost, if not quite, four cents per pound. The moment the supply exceeds local demand, then we, to sell at all, must compete with the Eastern product. But if Oregon dairymen can manufacture butter and sell as cheap as the eastern can be laid down, then the market is without limit. Thus in any business which our people propose to install, competitors in the East must be recognized.

There is another matter of some interest to manufacturers that may be mentioned here. The quotation last week was 25 to 27½ cents per pound. Why that difference in price? Is not Glaour Hill creamery just as good as Farmington? Probably, but it is not as well known. Farmington creamery has been operated for fifteen or more years. The butter from there has always been good. Customers who have used it for 10 years will willingly give 2½ cents per pound more than for a product without a reputation. So patrons of new creameries must be satisfied with lower prices than those paid to long established plants. That is the law of trade.

STANDS FOR PROTECTION.

The INDEPENDENT takes very great pleasure in advocating, to the extent of its best ability, protection for the industries and products of the United States. It is the idea of the republican party, and it has been found that when a protected interest legitimately strives to build up its business, the price of its products has been lowered. What has been attempted, and accomplished till this era of trusts, has been to create local competition. Republicans prefer this to the foreign competition of the free trader.

But where one local concern uses its protection, not to compete but to strangle another that by its organization cannot be benefited by the protection of the first, then the INDEPENDENT advises retaliation by removing that protection. The republican idea is to admit free of duty those food products of the masses which cannot be produced in this country. Food products classed as luxuries, not absolutely necessary to support life but enjoyed by the wealthy classes are properly taxed whether grown here or not. They are revenue producers. Tea, coffee and sugar are for the masses and the McKinley bill properly put them on the free list. The small amount of sugar produced here was protected by a bounty. The democratic Wilson bill repealed the sugar bounty act and put the sugar on the dutiable list. The sugar trust got positive recognition in a duty of one cent per pound on refined granulated. On common raw sugar the duty is 95 hundreths of a cent. This is the protection given to the cane sugar growers of the south and the beet sugar growers of the north. The Dingley act, the law now in force is the same. That provision is not as desirable as the section in the McKinley act. Now then. The sugar trust, grown wealthy, has started in to pinch the sugar beet industry. The center of the beet country is along the Missouri river. There the trust has lowered the price of sugar 1½ cents per pound but at no other point. The trust must not be permitted to strangle a young industry and especially since we know what will be done when the beet fields are planted to other crops and the factories are idle. The INDEPENDENT then suggests that the law allowing a differential of one cent per pound for refining be repealed, but that the $.0095 per pound on raw imported sugar be retained. That is protection for the domestic producer and against the trust which imports its raw sugar for refining. The beet sugar factory gets no benefit from the 1 cent differential for it refines its sugar during the evaporating operation. It is a protection to the trust refineries which enables the strangulation of a domestic industry which is contrary to sound public policy.

According to the Iron Age the price of wire rods is softening. The price has been shaded several times lately. This is brought about by the competition of the independent mills, that is the mills not owned by the steel trust. The trust has published its enormous earnings in advertisments so that confidence shall be reassured, thus making the sale of bonds easier. If iron and steel factories are so profitable, there is capital to invest in that line, and if U. S. steel corporation stock cannot be bought then new concerns will be built. These become competitors and should be encouraged even to retaining the duty of the Dingley act on imported goods.

Gov. Shaw predicts that Iowa will give a large majority for the republican ticket this year. This looks like a safe forecast. Iowa has occasionally gone against the republicans, but it has not done so in recent years and is not likely to do so now. Nobody, of course, looks for any such vote in Iowa this year as it rolled up for President McKinley twelve months ago. It will be big enough, however, to show that the Hawkeye State is true to its traditions. The Democrats will get no aid and comfort from Iowa's tally in the voting of 1901.

If the duty on imported iron and steel could be removed so as to effect only the United States steel corporation, Schwab, president, while protection for the independent iron and steel companies should remain then it might be a very good thing to put iron and steel on the free list. But it is suspected that it is really the big concern that wants the duty removed so the smaller concerns can the easier be crushed.

When Pres. Roosevelt appointed a democratic lawyer in Alabama to be Judge there was great applause. The President was a broad minded man. A little later he invited Booker T. Washington to dinner and now those same southerners are denouncing him for a narrow bigot. Wherefore it seems that a man's mind is not broad except when it is going the way of those southerners.

A Medicine for Old People.

Rev. Geo. Gay, Greenwich, Kas., is past 83 years of age, yet he says: "I am enjoying excellent health for a man of my age, due entirely to the rejuvenating influences of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It brings sleep and rest when nothing else will, and gives strength and vitality even to one of my old age."

"I am an old soldier," writes Mr. Geo. Watson, of Newton, Ia., "and I have been a great sufferer from nervousness, vertigo and spinal trouble. Have spent considerable money for medicine and doctors, but with little benefit. I was so bad my mind showed signs of weakness. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I know it saved my life."

Dr. Miles' Nervine

I commenced using Dr. Miles' Nervine and it helped me from the first, and now I am perfectly well."

Mr. Dooley, in discussing the prospects of Democracy, says. "No, sir, the Dimmycratic party is not on speaking terms with itself. Whin ye see two men with white ties go into a steet car and set in opposite corners, while one mutthers 'Thraitor' and the other hisses 'Miscreet,' ye can bet they are two Dimmycratic leaders thrying to reunite the grand old party."—Metropolis (Ill.)
