Mr. G. J. Saunders has been unfortunate this summer. He had a good crop of prunes but was short on evaporators. He contracted with a Portland firm to put up a dryer "guaranteed" to do first class work. The machine was put up and an expert operator sent out to explain its peculiarities but the thing would not work and change and remodel as he did, it refused to cure the prunes. When this was realized it was too late to build another model and there were no dryers in the neighborhood that could be hired so Mr. Saunders has lost his crop.

Two highwaymen stopped the overland express train fifteen miles south of Eugene last Wednesday morning. The engineer did the bidding of the masked men but Charles R. Charles, messenger of the express car refused to talk so the robbers could not locate him in the car. They blew the side of the car in with dynamite. Altogether five sticks of explosive were thrown in, three exploded one failed and the other was thrown out by Charles before explosion. The robbers started to force the engineer into the car but the messenger shot over him, but did not hit the others. This proved however to be too hot for the masked men and they left having obtained nothing but the registered mail sack from the U. S. mail car. To us on the outside it seems that, if the route agent, engineer and fireman had shown the pluck of Express Messenger Charles, the robbers would not have vanished in the dark.

While calling at Glafke Company's, Portland, last Saturday it was noted that workmen were packing apples in fifty pound boxes to be exported to Vladivostok, Siberia. The apples are shipped on an Oriental liner to Japan and there, reloaded to the Russian port. Each apple was wrapped with a piece of absorbent paper, made expressly for fruit packing. Nothing but perfect fruit was taken. A slight bruise or a worm hole is sufficient to cause rejection. The price paid growers was not mentioned though the papers that day quoted apples at 50 cents to $1.25 per box of 50 pounds. Mr. Glafke however stated that the apples at Vladivostok would probably stand the consumer $3.00 to $3.50 per box.

The best assortment of fine knives and razors in town are at McCormick's—fully warranted.

A preliminary line for a sewer through Main Street from the intersection of Fourth has been run to Dairy creek through Mr. Thos. Connell's farm. The distance is 288 rods. Commencing with a ditch, 3 feet deep, it will be 7.3 feet deep at Main and Meridian Streets; at First Street, about the same; at Second, 6.6 feet; at Third, 4.8 feet and at Fourth, J. C. Davis' corner, 3 feet. Of course these depths are not enough but the survey proves that there is fall enough to carry away sewage. A ditch of 3 feet through the field is not deep enough, for when a 16 inch pipe is laid, there would be but 20 inches of dirt on top and there is doubt if that is enough to support heavy teams passing over the sewer. Again, a sewer only 3 feet in the ground, at Fourth & Main would put the lateral, extending through Fourth, on top of the ground at its intersection with Washington. Thus, it is seen that the ditch at Main & Second should be at least ten feet deep and fifteen would be better. No estimates of cost have yet been made but the expense is not so great as to prohibit the improvement. Several ways of raising the money have been suggested. One that is practicable, is to issue bonds carrying the privileges that were given to the city Light & Water bonds—leave to pay a bond whenever there is money in the fund for that purpose. The improvement would be made by assessing the property benefited and the assessments could thus be extended over a term of years. If it be five years then 20 per cent per year would be collected. Thus the ditch tax would not be more than $5 to $10 per year unless the property owner possessed a very large block of real estate. Since the city owns its water plant, the question of flushing is solved. The Council is justified in ordering this improvement.

During early summer when more butter went into Portland market than local consumption could use, Messrs Glafke Company took all that was offered and packed it for the export trade. They put it up in a tin can that holds a 32 ounce block. The butter was taken just as it came from the creamery. The creamery printed wrapper was not removed but a second plain wrapper was put on and sealed with paraffin. The tin can is filled with melted paraffin and emptied. A very thin coating of wax remains. The block of butter is then dropped in the cover soldered on and two holes punched, one each in opposite corners. Salt brine is then forced into one hole till it comes out at the other. Solder is then dropped about these holes so that the can is perfectly sealed. From this stock an exhibit was taken for the Pan American exhibition at Buffalo. It came in competition with export butter from the celebrated creameries of New York, Illinois and Wisconsin. Since the Glafke Co. take a large part of the Washington County butter, our dairies without doubt had a sample in the exhibit. Last Friday the firm received this dispatch which is very satisfactory to the exporters as well as to all Oregonians: Buffalo Oct. 18, 1901. W. B. Glafke Co., Portland, Ore. Butter scored 33½ being highest for export and one-half point higher than standard fresh. Henry E. Dorsch.

A distressing tragedy of self destruction occurred near Scholls last Friday resulting in the instant death of Edward Sutherland, about 40 years of age. On the morning of that day Sutherland took his fowl-ling place and started out after birds. Not returning by noon, his family became alarmed and commenced a search. At five o'clock in the evening the dead body of the hunter was found only a short distance from home. At coroner's inquest it was shown that the unfortunate man had put the muzzle of the gun in his mouth and discharged it causing instant death. No writing was found conveying a reason for desiring death, though it is in evidence that he worried over the condition of his financial affairs. He owed about $2400 yet he had that amount of personal property. In addition he owned two farms either of which would have discharged the debt and left the other clear. Sutherland was a blacksmith and some time ago worked in McMinnville where he was well and favorably known.

His clients have instructed Mr. John Wall to open a correspondence with manufacturers of oil drilling machinery with a view of buying a plant. All has been done in the way of prospecting that can be done till a hole is bored in the earth and the company now propose to commence on the final stage of examination. The eldest son of Co. Clerk George Morgan, aged 8 years, fell down the steps at their new home which they occupied first last Tuesday, and fractured his left forearm. Dr. Bailey was called and set the limb without the use of an anesthetic which is reason for the boy to think he has a good stock of grit.

The hop growers at Laurel who had stored their hops in Maconic building sold this week receiving, it is said, ten cents per pound. Several cans were loaded last Monday and the remainder later. A part of the shipment goes to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and the remainder to Scotland, Europe.

L. W. House has completed the four large window frames for the Catholic church. His friends have tried to chaff Mr. House by accusing him of finding that after the frames were made he could not get them out of the shop till he had made his door larger. He really did have to take the doors out and enlarge the opening to original dimensions but he knew that would have to be done before he started nailing the frames together.

Four days and nights, 96 hours, is the time to be made over the S. P. Co.'s lines and connections from San Francisco to New York City. In the old time it took eight months to make this distance, then six, then one and then the very fast time of 5 days. The new Schedule will clip another day. The Russian roads will have to hustle to be eligible for this new class. Neither England, France or Germany can compete for they have no tracks long enough.

Superstition Trail, a powerful tale of the West, by Owen Wister and illustrated by Remington, is the opening story in the Halloween Number (October 26) of The Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia. Other attractive features are a new episode in The Love Affairs of Patricia and a striking poem by Holman F. Day. Mr. Day's ballad, The Night of the White Review, tells a weird tale current among Gloucester fishermen. It has all the swing and movement of Mr. Kipling's Dipsy Chanteys and a strength and originality all its own.

Rev. Grannis, of the M. E. church who had been assigned to the Washington Street, Hillsboro, congregation, has been transferred, at his own request, to the Pittsburg, Pa. Conference. He started this week to his new field of labor. A Pennsylvania man comes here in his stead. The Hillsboro people know nothing of their new pastor though the impression is with them that he is young though not without experience. Mr. Grannis was anxious to go because it is near his home and in the immediate neighborhood of the residence of his brothers.

The patrons of the public school have two complaints to make touching the new books. One, that the books are not in the depositories for exchange, and the other, that each child in lower grades are required to buy more books than hitherto at least have been necessary. As to first, Patrons do not care how long they are kept out of the book, providing the right to exchange is extended beyond Dec. 1. It has been charged that the publishers are holding back books till after Dec. 1, so that retail price may be obtained. This has not been especially denied though the publishers seek to shift the blame to local dealers who have neglected to make requisition for enough books. There may be some truth in this, with some dealers. The publishers require local dealers to make the exchange free and it is not surprising that they buy as few books as possible, even leaving some go unsupplied till after December when a profit is desired to be realized. No Oregon business man likes to have his money tied up without opportunity to realize profit. The books are not all in Oregon yet, though Mr. Gill stated last Saturday that he thought they would be, by the last of this week. But they are yet to go from Portland to local depositories which will take a week or ten days longer. But the other complaint is more serious. A child in the first grade is required to have a first reader and a second at the same time. In the third grade, a second reader and a third. Now parents reason, that, if a first reader is required for his child the second is beyond his advancement or if the second suits the lad, then he is past the first and should not be required to buy it. The same is to be said of the second and third. The average parent having good horse sense can see no flaw in the logic. But the teachers are not to blame for this multiplicity of books. The State department of public instruction has prescribed a course of study to be pursued and teachers are required to use it. Indeed their certificates are made to depend upon their strict use of that course of study. How much did the book publishers have to do with writing that course of study? It can be shown that additional reading matter is profitable for the boy but the supplementary reading ought to be of the same grade as the reader he uses in class, not a grade higher. There is profit though, to the publisher who gets twice double the number of books. There ought to be a lot repeating of school laws at the next session of the legislature. In the meantime all the people can do, is to begin to change school superintendents.

The U. S. Government Shows the Absolute Superiority of Royal Baking Powder.

The will of the late Mrs. Ellen Groner, of Scholls, is to be contested. Minnie F. Henriel has filed a petition with the county clerk to this effect. Mrs. Groner left a large estate, the principal portion being bequeathed to Ferdinand, a son and Julia Groner Marquam, a daughter. Minnie F. Henriel, another daughter and the petitioner, charges that her mother, by reason of old age and sickness, was not of sound mind on August 11, 1900, the date her will was executed and that Ferdinand, Julia Groner Marquam and U. S. Grant Marquam, her husband, by means of false statements and misrepresentations, induced deceased to make her will according to their directions, whereby they became the chief beneficiaries. It is also alleged that the persons induced the testator to believe that her other children and especially the petitioner, had ceased to care for her, and by reason thereof they were cut off in the will. The estate is a large one and consists of real and personal property in Washington and Multnomah Counties. For a long time prior to Mrs. Groner's death she lived with her son, Ferdinand Groner who took most tender care of her. It may be this close relationship which has influenced the petitioners to test the validity of the will.

Mr. Neil J. Sorenson, of Sampter, Baker county is in Hillsboro this week. He talks very enthusiastically of artificial storage reservoirs for the semi-arid country east of the Blue mountains, both for agricultural irrigation and for mining. There is always some water falls on the plains of that country in the winter and it is coming to be realized that by storing this in basins instead of allowing it to waste in the early spring it can be kept till the heat of summer when its value is greatest. Both miners and farmers, says Mr. Sorenson are becoming interested.

Capt. R. Crandall this week received bills of lading for two headstones, one to go at the head of the grave of Capt. James McCollough, in Masonic Cemetery, Hillsboro and the other for Comrade Pearson's grave in a Forest Grove Cemetery. The stones were ordered two years ago but some pieces of red tape are very long and it takes time to wind it up. They came from West Rutland, Vt. and are laid down at the nearest shipping stations to the graves, free of cost to the friends or estates of the deceased.

A fake fire alarm was turned in Wednesday evening about 8 o'clock. The excuse was burning a brush pile on Main street between Third and Fourth. The firemen would have been very pleased to get told of the joker. He would have been a damper man if not wiser.

Under the new law for levying taxes for state revenue, Washington County will have to pay .0301 of the amount whatever it is. Multnomah County pays .31. What per cent, each County will pay, appears in a paragraph on first page, this issue.

At the Congregational church next Sunday morning, Mr. Hughes, the pastor, will speak on the theme, "Can Christianity be Propagated by the Instrumentality of the Sword?" The subject for the evening service will be announced in the morning.

Mr. George Merryman, son of Capt. J. D. Merryman, started Wednesday evening to Chicago where he continues his studies in a medical college.

Dr. C. B. Brown is in Hillsboro, but he is so busy that he does not get opportunity to greet his friends on the street.

Dr. J. E. Adkins is in Morrow county this week and may not return till week after next.

Mr. W. F. Prayner, of Heppner, is a visitor this week with his sister, Mrs. H. V. Gates.

NERVE WASTE.

One of the most helpful books on nerve weakness ever issued is that entitled "Nerve Waste," by Dr. Sawyer of San Francisco, now in its fifth thousand. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable contrast to the vast amount of false teaching which prevails on this interesting subject. It abounds in carefully considered and practical advice and has the two great merits of wisdom and sincerity. It is endorsed by both the religious and secular press. The Chicago Advance says: "A perusal of the book and the application of its principles will put health, hope and heart into thousands of lives that are now suffering through nervous impairment." The book is $1.00, by mail postpaid. One of the most interesting chapters—chapter xx, on Nerves and Nerve Tonics—has been printed separately as a sample chapter, and will be sent to any address for stamp by the publisher, The Pacific Pub. Co., Box 2658, San Francisco.

REAL ESTATE.

Mr. John Heister, of Gates Creek, visited Hillsboro yesterday.

The ameer of Afghanistan is a much more important personage than was the ahikond of Swat, though there seems to be a disposition in some quarters to consider him a sort of comic opera potentate. He rules 4,000,000 of people, and his position on the border line between British and Russian territory makes his friendship a rather valuable asset for the country of those two, which has it. The new ameer is understood to lean toward the British side, as his predecessor did, yet England thought the other ruler would bear watching, and she will probably keep a sharp eye on this magate also.
