Wm. Reid, secretary of the Portland-Nehalem Railroad, passed through Hillsboro on his way to Portland, last Monday. He had just come over the Wilson River road from Tillamook. When he left the Bay, the weather was ideal and had been for a month, but on the summit of the hills, a great rain storm overtook him. The road was so slippery. Mr. Reid is working in the interests of his company and is very enthusiastic about a route which he finds. He is able to reach the summit on a grade of one per cent. Getting out of Portland is the present problem. The Tualatin Valley route is feasible and desirable in every way save that it requires a few miles more of track, which the company, just now, do not want to lay.

H. P. Ford was in Hillsboro last week looking after evidence to be used in the action which the County has brought to recover the balance which Clark & Buchanan reported is due from him. Mr. Ford brought with him, Mr. H. B. Dyer, accountant, whom he charged with reviewing the same figures which Clark & Buchanan used, in arriving at their conclusion. He did not go beyond finding that C. & B. had adopted a theory. Mr. Ford claims that he collected the taxes according to the extensions made on the roll and that he settled by the same figures. After Mr. Dyer discovered the errors made by C. & B., he stopped work and went home. The trial of this case will be interesting and will be as much an examination of Clark & Buchanan as of Mr. Ford's accounts.

A thriving village is springing up at the old Jabos Wilkes homestead, three miles north of Greenville. At the first, a creamery was started at the cross roads. Farmers patronized this daily and the demand for a blacksmith shop was "felt want" which was supplied by Messrs. Doolley Bros. Then a country store was needed, residences were necessary and barns. These have been supplied this summer. The gentleman who is to put in a department store is an immigrant who ordered his houses last spring and then went east to wind up his business there preparing to take possession of the new property here this fall. The proprietor of the creamery has built a very neat cottage which is nearing completion. Indeed the structure carries a metropolitan appearance. The residents have asked for a post office and in their petition, intended to write Dr. A. Kelley, of Willaford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for Burns, Blisters, Piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c Sold by Delta drug store.

Mr. D. S. Livesey, a sawmill man, of many years experience, finds that he has a mill and three sons to help operate, but no timber to saw into lumber, hence, he is hunting a new location. He was in this county, last Friday, looking at what is to be seen. The proposition presented is to build his mill on Dairy Creek, just west of Hillsboro, where the railroad bridge spans the stream, and float logs from the timber in the foot hills to the North-west. Mr. Livesey inspected the stream and the body of timber tributary. He is not a talkative man and just wants to think of the proposition was not stated. He did get enthusiastic while at Hon. Benton Killen's place, over the fine opportunity to install a logging camp. A mill at Dairy Creek, as has been before pointed out, would be in the right place. The shipping facilities by rail are as good as a Portland city and every bushel of saw dust could be used in developing electrical power for manufacturing enterprises in the neighborhood of Hillsboro. Messrs. Livesey & Sons would be warmly welcomed if they come here with their plant.

Messrs. Becker, of Greenville, are operating an industry that is estimated to be of greater importance each year. This is manufacturing all kinds of wickerwork from osiers. The ware is better than most that is imported and much brighter in appearance. The greenhouses have an acre plantation of nearly 20 acres which is growing most thrifflly. The land planted is the ordinary wheat land which seems a perfect home for the willow. Some of the nursery has been out three or four years while four or five acres next to the road leading north through Greenville, was planted last spring. If a great demand springs up for the willow, we have land enough in this county to grow all that is needed.

Solomon Wismer, son of J. J. Wismer, of Bathany, was thrown violently from his bicycle last Friday evening and received such injury to his head, that he was unconscious till he died on the afternoon of Monday. The deceased was about 22 years of age and possessed a fine physique. On Friday he had ridden out on the plains and was returning to his father's home late Friday evening and his reserve strength was great, so he was without doubt hurrying along with a rapid pace. He passed on to the long down grade just beyond the S. A. Holcomb place and either decided to coast down the hill or lost his pedals which he could not recover so that the wheel ran away with him. At or near the foot of the hill, the fork of the wheel broke. Young Wismer was pitched off to the side of the road where he laid till discovered by a chance passer. The alarm was given and the injured was removed to Mrs. Holcomb's, the nearest house. Dr. Tamsieie summoned but could do nothing there toward reviving him. Saturday, Drs. Tamsieie and Link later went out and proposed stroping but as the patient seemed slightly improved, it was decided to wait a few hours. On Sunday a further delay was necessary. On Monday, hope of recovery was all but abandoned, though the surgeons started out in the afternoon but met a messenger with word that the young man was dead. The injury was so serious that his removal to the home of his youth was not thought of but both father and mother were with him within a few hours after he was hurt. An examination of the fork of his wheel showed an old break, there being little more than a half inch of metal to break. The front wheel and part of the fork was found about 150 feet beyond where the body was found. This indicates that the speed was great. Young Wismer was a great favorite with those who knew him. He had just entered the business world and his prospects were most encouraging. His death is a sad blow for his father and mother.

Laurie-Eisner. On Monday, October 28, at two o'clock, a quiet wedding occurred at the home of Mr. C. Eisner, Hillsboro, in which his niece, Miss Sarah A. Eisner was wedded to Mr. Andrew J. Laurie, Rev. Evan P. Hughes officiating. The bride was beautifully attired in a dress of blue English serge with cream colored silk trimmings. The groom wore the conventional black. After congratulations, a dainty luncheon was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Laurie took the afternoon train for Minnesota, their future home.

TRADE BUREAU OF INFORMATION. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company direct each agent, commencing Nov. 1st on the first of each month thereafter, to forward to the General Freight office, of that Company, by mail, a list of marketable products obtainable at his station or vicinity for shipment. Include all commodities for sale, such as live stock, hops, wool, hides, lumber, fence posts, apples, green and dried fruit, potatoes, onions and other vegetables, cord wood, brick, tile, nursery stock etc., in fact, anything of consequence for which a market is sought, giving name and address of owner or shipper and where practicable, the prices of the different articles.

The data when received, will be compiled and published for the information of those interested, and in various ways brought to the attention of intending purchasers.

It is hoped in this way, to make known, to a certain extent at least, the resources of each locality.

Those having products to sell can give material aid to agents, and Mr. Beckwith, of Hillsboro station, will be glad to see any class of property that is on the market. In undertaking this advertising scheme, the transportation people confer favors not only on the purchaser but on the seller. It will be noted that no attempt is made to fix prices but only to give information where the products of the farm, pasture, orchard, mill and factory may be found. The persons interested, can then get together and settle the terms of transfer.

THE SON OF HIS FATHER. Douglas C. Pickett, aged 35, the son of a prominent family, and a man who had every advantage that wealth could procure when he was a youth, died in the City Jail in Salem Saturday, as the result of a protracted sprain, and the excessive use of morphine and cocaine. Pickett's father died when he was a child and his mother became the wife of the late J. L. Parrish, and the boy grew up in Salem, where he was in the fashionable set. He received a good education but when he grew to manhood he became dissipated, began the use of morphine and cocaine and soon went down until he reached the gutter. He has been away from Salem for some time but returned a few days ago and Chief of Police Gibson picked him up as a vagrant Friday afternoon in the haymow of a local livery barn and locked him up in the city jail, together with several others of the same character. He was found to be suffering from exposure and the ravages of the drugs. Saturday he grew worse and died in convulsions before medical attendance could be secured.

The above paragraph from the Portland Telegram of Monday last, brings to mind that the man who died so miserably is without doubt the oldest son of Charles Pickett, well known in Hillsboro in the '50's and '60's. Sloan, Pickett and Fitch were friends and associates. Fitch had a saloon in Portland which was of no benefit to Pickett. Sloan was about Portland and had some "influence". Pickett was in Hillsboro and worked for Mr. Henry Wehrung while he was building the Tualatin Hotel which is yet standing. That was before the day of plaining mills, so Pickett dressed the weather board that was used. Before the house was finished, Sloan got the appointment of superintendent of the penitentiary, then located in Portland, in the building in the south part of the city, now the home of a foundry and machine shop. Pickett went as his assistant. When the prison was moved to Salem, Sloan and Pickett came to Hillsboro and engaged in merchandising at or near the corner of Main & Third streets. Fitch furnished some money and took a mortgage on the business. Later he took the business. Sloan's wife was a Lithuanian. The Lithuanians lived in the northern part of Marion County or near the Willamette. Mrs. Sloan's younger sister came to Hillsboro and lived with them. Charles Pickett, in those days, was a catchy young fellow notwithstanding he drank a little, an attachment soon sprang up between the young people and they married. A grand wedding was given. Among the numbers was a public bell given in the Tualatin Hotel then kept by Henry Wehrung.

Charles and his young bride set up housekeeping in a building on Main Street where Hon. W. D. Haro's residence now stands. There were born two children, a son and daughter. The daughter died there. Charles's appetite for rum increased and because of drunkenness his wife took her child, the above Douglas Charles Pickett, and went to her father's in Marion County. A writing of divorce set her free from her husband. For a home, she married Rev. J. L. Parrish, one of the early Methodist missionaries. It was an old man and a young woman but the ill matched couple were fairly happy. Mrs. Parrish gave her whole love to her boy. He was educated at Willamette University and had the entry into the first society circles of the city. He was like the lilies of Palestine, he neither worked nor span. Perhaps if he had been compelled to labor for bread it would have been better for him. After a time, his mother died and his step father wedded another woman from Washington County, a Mrs. Pierce, daughter of Dr. Hilt. She knew not Joseph—or in this instance Pickett.

Without the restraint of influence of mother and the bad example of father, Douglas went astray.

Charles Pickett married again and with his brother-in-law, Orin Kellogg, engaged a second time in business. Their store was on the corner of Main & Second where Schulerich Bros. are now. But his habits were against him and he lost his second wife in the div. court. After that, he drifted and finally died. Now father, mother, son and daughter are in the cold, cold ground—a whole family gone—and by strong drink?

Hon H. V. Gates returned from Southeastern Oregon, this week. The visit was the first that he has made into that part of the State and he is surprised to find a country capable of being developed into so great wealth producers. The minerals are in great plenty, though not gold, silver nor copper. But nitrate and chlorates abound in great abundance. Under present conditions, the company that opens the salt mine would make millions. The industries that can be developed in Klamath and Lake counties, however, require the expenditure of large capital but the concern that has the money and the nerve to invest it, will get a rich return. The only opportunity for men of limited capital, is stock growing. The first thing toward development, is building up transportation line.

The price of onions, the past week, has been $1.25 per sack. From reliable authority it was heard that a choice lot for December delivery had been bought at $1.50 per sack. One buyer stated that he had orders to pay $1.25 and that he had offered that figure in every instance save one where there was a doubt as to condition. The crop had not been properly cured and the grower had his onions in a hop house drying, at a temperature of 80°. He expects to get a first class article but the buyer thought artificial curing, a sort of experiment and preferred to watch the outcome to risking money.

Prof. M. C. Case, principal of the Cornelius public school is under arrest for whipping one of the school boys, a son of Mr. Fairchilds, of that district. It is charged that he used a part of a tug from a buggy harness for punishing the boy. There was something of a melee and a stroke landed the skin above the eye. The examination is set for Saturday, at Cornelius, though it may be transferred to Hillsboro.

Last Friday evening the Hillsboro dancing club, chartered by W. W. Boscow, and carrying music and lunch, called upon Mr. and Mrs. John Connell, who reside on the J. L. Meek location. The surprise was complete and a most enjoyable time is reported by all who were present.

Mr. A. Gesner, of Salem, was in town yesterday, in conference with the City authorities, about the permanent survey for a sewer system for the City. Two men, strangers, are under arrest, in Eugene, charged with the train robbery near there, last week. The authorities have some evidence which they withhold from the public till examination. The suspects claim to have come from The Dalles.

The sensation of the week has been the arrest of Mr. W. E. Thorn, on a criminal charge of "killing an animal, the property of another." The "property" was a dog belonging to Mr. Sappington. There was evidence and evidence but all agreeing that a dog was killed, but as to whether it was Mr. Sappington's, the defendant does not know. Perhaps it was, but the dog he killed was a nuisance about his farm which he claims, he had a right to abate. Magistrate Randall held the defendant to answer at the next term of the Circuit Court in the sum of $200. The case has caused some heat that promises to grow warmer.

A bale weighs about 200 pounds, hence this deal will weigh out at about 139,600 pounds. The price named is 11 cents, at which figures $15,000 comes into the County. The hops that remain are in small lots and somewhat scattered. The sale is large but compared with the dairy interests, it is small. Statistics of six creameries in almost the same territory covered by the hop fields above named, were compiled recently for the year 1900. The footing was $50,000. The hop money comes in a lump sum, while the other is distributed over a period of twelve months. It takes twelve months though, to grow, pick and market a crop of hops.

G. F. Livesley, a hop buyer, contracted to buy L. C. Pennell's hops. When he went into the warehouse he commenced to strip off the bur-lap covering of the bales. Mr. Pennell objected to this proceeding till he received his money. Livesley flew into a passion and assaulted the grower. Pennell lodged a complaint of assault and battery against Livesley. The trial was before a Forest Grove magistrate, Dep. Dist. Attorney E. B. Tongue appeared for the State. The defendant was adjudged guilty and fined. The fellow seemed to hold Mr. Tongue directly responsible for his misfortune and after the trial, followed him around the street, using abusive language and wanting to fight. After a time, Mr. Tongue turned on him and plainly stated that if he was really looking for trouble he need go no further. Seeing that Burk is something of an athlete, it is just as well that Livesley concluded that it was train time. This Livesley is the same man who, about a year ago, wanted to fight with Mr. Wm. Bagley in Hillsboro and later, the same day, was made to pay at the R. R. station, his livery bill.

Jerry Caldwell, employed at the Oregonian, with his wife and daughter, passed through Hillsboro last Saturday and as they rode through magnificent Washington County, a breath of fresh air was taken. Jerry commenced his newspaper work on the INDEPENDENT long years ago—so far away that he does not remember by whom he was employed. The visit last Saturday was greatly appreciated by the people about the INDEPENDENT office. May Jerry and his amiable wife and daughter never breathe worse air than that which blew over the fields and pastures last Saturday.

Thirteen years ago, Hon. Benton Killen introduced on his land above Greenville, a New Jersey grass, sometimes called creeping bent grass. The plant took to the soil and has not been slow to spread. It makes a good sod and crowds out coarser plants, such as fern. Cattle eat it with a relish. It is a better sward grass than the celebrated blue grass of Kentucky. Mr. Killen is much pleased with his experiment.

Word comes that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company has called its surveyors and engineers out of the Nehalem County. This is the result of objection made by the Southern Pacific Company which claims that the N. P. by building into the Coast range south of the Columbia, would invade its territory. It is said that the dispute has been referred to a prominent financier in the East for arbitration.
