THE SUNNY SOUTH.

We publish elsewhere today the announcement of the Sunny South, the great weekly literary periodical of the Southern States. Published in Atlanta, Georgia, in the heart of the great South, it bears upon it the impress of its birthplace and environment. For more than twenty-five years the Sunny South has been a recognized factor in the field of Southern literature. It was established more than a quarter of a century ago as a Southern story paper and was published for a long time as a weekly and then as a monthly.

About one year ago the paper passed under new management, and less than a year it has jumped from a circulation of 12,000 to nearly 40,000. The first thing the new management did was to make it a weekly publication and to reduce the price to fifty cents per year—less than one cent an issue—and then to infuse into its columns all the enterprise and literary ability that money could command or determination secure. In less than a year this remarkable Southern literary paper has become national in character and it now has as many subscribers north of Mason and Dixon's line as it has in the South. Its columns abound in the best current literature of characteristic Southern flavor, and no literary periodical published anywhere in the country has succeeded in bringing together as many Southern writers of note as has been done by the Sunny South.

A striking feature of the Sunny South's development is its introduction during the past year of many new story writers who will be heard from in the wider field of the world's literature. In almost every Southern state new literary talent has been developed to such an extent as to put the whole country talking about the Sunny South. A few months ago the Sunny South offered very handsome prizes for a series of the best short stories by Southern writers, and more than five hundred responses were received. Some of the stories then published in the Sunny South have been reproduced the world over. Others are now being published by it from week to week.

The fact that the price of this splendid weekly periodical is only fifty cents a year has had a wonderful effect in giving it an extensive field for the development of its plans and purposes. Perhaps no literary periodical ever established has made such rapid strides as the Sunny South in less than a year.

Mrs. Mary E. Bryan, whose name has long been associated with the Sunny South, has been engaged to take full charge of the woman's department. Her services will appeal especially to women readers throughout the country, as the striking charm of her own personality prevails every column of her most interesting department.

The distinctive characteristics of Southern authors have always been a great charm to their readers. The liberal use of matter by the leading

It is devoted to Literature, Romance, Fact and Fiction, and gives the best of all that is current in the South. Among its contributors the most noted Southern writers appear—Joel Chandler Harris, Harry Hillwell Edwards and others of growing fame. Special stories from Anthony Hope, Marjorie Thompson, Miss E. Crockett, Mrs. George Gordon and Arthur W. Marchmont have appeared, and others are in waiting from the pen of authors of national note. A short story contest brought out nearly five hundred splendid short stories, all worthy a place in THE SUNNY SOUTH'S readable columns. Other contests are contemplated that will successfully exploit the reading habit of talent that only Souths such as this to illustrate the worth that it has in its own right.

IN THE MURDER OUT?

A few months ago about $10,000 in money was found in an old building at Auburn, in Eastern Oregon. It was not known whose it was and went to the state. An Albany man tells the Democrat whose money he thinks it was. In 1862 at Auburn two young men with about that amount of money were murdered by a Spaniard who knew of their possessing a large amount of money. He failed to secure it and it was not found then. The Spaniard fled, but was captured and brought back to Auburn, where a trial was started, but things were not going right, and a posse of men tied a rope to the Spaniard's neck and dragged him through the road to an oak tree and hanged him, though as a matter of fact he did not need it, for on the way his head struck a stump and his neck was broken. Two Albany men had hold of the rope among others and one, now dead, was present.—Albany Democrat.

The Last Heard of It.

"My little boy took the croup one night and soon grew so bad you could hear him breathe all over the house," says F. D. Reynolds, Mansfield, O. One Minute Cough Cure is absolutely safe and acts immediately. For coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and all other throat and lung troubles it is a certain cure. Very pleasant to take. ### A Story of Gilbert Stuart.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale tells this new and amusing story about Gilbert Stuart in one of his series of articles called "Memories of a Century," now running in The Outlook. A great public dinner was given to Isaac Hull by the town of Boston, and he was asked to sit for his picture to Gilbert Stuart, the celebrated artist. The picture, or a copy, is in Faneuil Hall to this day. Everybody is dead now, so that I will

GOVERNORS OF OREGON.

Since John Whiteaker, the first governor of the state was chosen in 1859, from his farm on Spencer creek, in the hills a few miles south of Eugene, in Lane county, and about 123 miles from Portland, all the subsequent governors have been chosen from their homes nearer to Portland than Whiteaker's farm, says the Tidings. The Willamette Valley has had all governors, except two, Woods and Moody, of The Dalles. Marion county has furnished three governors to the state—Grover, Lord and Geer; Portland three, Gibbs, Thayer and Penneyer. Wasco two, Woods and Moody, and Lane county one, John Whiteaker.

The following list gives the names, counties from which elected, dates of service and politics of all governors of Oregon since it became a state. 1. John Whiteaker, farmer and democrat of Lane county, served from March 8, 1859, to September 10, 1862.

2. Addison C. Gibbs, lawyer and union from Portland, served from September 10, 1862, to September 12, 1866. 3. George L. Wood, lawyer and union party from Wasco county, served from September 12, 1866, to September 14, 1870.

4. L. F. Grover, lawyer and democrat from Marion county, served from September 14, 1870, to February 1, 1877. Being re-elected he filled out part of his second term when he was chosen United States senator and was succeeded by Stephen F. Chadwick, who became the fifth governor.

5. Stephen F. Chadwick, lawyer and democrat from Douglas county, who served as governor from February 1, 1877, to September 11, 1878. 6. Walter W. Thayer, lawyer and democrat from Portland, who served from September 11, 1878, to September 13, 1882.

7. Zenas F. Moody, merchant and republican from Wasco county, who served from September 13, 1882, to January 12, 1887. 8. Sylvester Penneyer, lawyer and lumberman, democrat, who served from January 12, 1887, to January 14, 1895.

9. William Paine Lord, lawyer and republican from Marion county, who served from January 14, 1895, to January 15, 1899. 10. Theodore T. Geer, farmer and republican, who took office January 15, 1899, and is the present governor.

WHAT YOUNG MEN OWE CHURCH.

A few months ago, writes Dr. Francis E. Clark, in the Ladies' Home Journal, I spent a night in the monastery of the great St. Bernard Pass, high up among the clouds. A good room, an excellent bed, and a generous dinner and breakfast, were given to the wayfarers, and nearly a hundred travelers passed that night upon the mountain's top in this hospitable monastery. No charge was made for the good cheer, but every one put into a strong box in the chapel whatever he pleased. I was told—to the shame of human nature be it said—that very few travelers put into the box as much as they would pay for accommodations of the same grade as a hotel, and that the contributions in the course of a year do not pay the cost of the raw material used in feeding the guests. So it is with many who receive all the benefits a church can bestow in a well-ordered community, and never pay a penny to its support, nor lift a finger to carry on its work. Every needy man, woman and child in the remotest corner of the world; every cripple in a hospital or at home; every orphan and outcast who might or would be helped if the church had more power and wealth at its disposal; every good cause that needs assistance; appeals to the young men to throw in his lot with the church, to make it nobler, purer, more efficient in righting this old world's wrongs and hastening the coming of the better day.

NEWS OF THE STATE.

It is estimated that but 29 per cent of the wheat crop remains in Umatilla county, or 400,000 bushels. This will not keep local mills supplied. Oscar Campbell, of Eugene, caught in a trap, last week, a gray eagle that measured 7 feet from tip to tip of wings. Its mouth is like that of an Oregon politician.

The soap factory at Eugene is increasing its capacity to 60,000 pounds per month. Ten men are employed in the factory. This does not include the force in the office and on the road.

A Portland agent of an American brewing company has signed a contract with a Siberian, Russia, concern to deliver 72,000 quart bottles of beer in Manchuria via Vladivostok. If there is anything that can prop the door open in the Orient it is beer.

The Eugene papers report that the condition of Ira Campbell, who was stricken with paralysis of the vocal cords, is critical. Dr. Joseph, specialist from Portland, was called. He thought an operation might be justified later, but advised against it now.

Jack Benfro, Lane county, traded the timber on his 40 acres, Gill place, tract to E. E. Upmeyer for an adjoining 40 acres, minus the timber, and $250. Now as this 40 only cost Jack $250 less than a year ago, it must be considered a real nice investment and fully illustrates the value of our timber.—Eugene Register.

The Oregonian has been sued for $50,000 damages by County Commissioner Mack, of Multnomah county, who charges libel. The Oregonian published that Mack, through an agent, sold supplies to the county contrary to law. Mack does not deny selling the goods, but does assert that the paper had no right to point out how he could be criminally punished.

What appeared to be a base metal has frequently been found in the placer claims of Myrtle Creek mines, in Douglas county, and thrown away. A curious miner had a specimen assayed last week and finds that his supposed base ore is virgin silver amalgamated with gold, and worth about $8 per ounce. There is a rich vein of silver towards the head of that creek.

The Eugene Register reports that John C. Rucker was badly hurt in the Blue River mines. He had four blasts in the rock which were fired. Three exploded, but the fourth hung. Rucker waited the usual time, then went to see. While his face was over the hole, the charge went off. His face was badly cut by flying fragments of stone. The injured man was taken on a horse to Eugene for medical aid. The surgeon hopes to save his patient's eyes.

Wm. Flamm and Wesley Riggs, two well known Southern Oregon miners and prospectors, have made a rich gold quartz discovery in the Grave Creek district, Northern Josephine. They have uncovered a 20-foot ledge from which a quantity of ore has been removed and tests made. The tests give returns of from $320 to $900 per ton; the values being largely in free gold. The discovery has the appearance of the richest gold find ever made in the Grave Creek district. The owners are pushing development work and will open up the find to such an extent as to show it up for its true worth.

Development work on the Phoenix coal prospect, by the Southern Pacific Co., is being pushed rapidly forward. The crew of seven men is now driving the tunnel in at the rate of five or six feet a day, the length of the tunnel now being over 80 feet. The formation for the last 20 or 30 feet has been of slate and coal the entire width of the ledge, being 11 feet. The narrowest stratum of coal is one inch in thickness and the widest is 14 inches. Between these layers of coal the slate lies in strata. The tunnel is six feet in width by eight in height, and from it a carload of waste is hauled about every five minutes. The timber used in the tunnel are 12x12 inches and overhead it is boarded up with two-inch plank. Enough coal is removed to feed the engine at the scene of the operations. The coal is also used as fuel in the cook stove at the camp. Within a few days a Star drilling rig will arrive, and with this the company will proceed to ascertain the formation of the 2000 acres of land which it has under bond.
