 Ten Years' Trial By Gen. CHARLES KING ***********************

Continued from First Page. to the left long ones of cheering diery were sweeping to and beyond the gray walls, where the Tagais were still desperately battling to save their bat teries. Two battallons of the Columbias, their colonel in their midst, were dashing straight at the insurgent works along the Guadeloupe road. The right wing of the Evergreens, with ringing cheer, had enveloped the native section of the pretty suburban town and were crashing through bamboo and nipa, fighting their herole way straight for the Plaza and the river bank beyond, rolling up the yolling bands of brown men, well nigh panic stricken at the dash and vigor of the American dvance. Across the Concordia, at the heels of the brigade commander, the Washoes had carried their colors, all book rules on the subject thrown with the sliken folds to the winds of the morning, and then in magnificent, irresistible charge bore down with the bayonet on the redoubts and earthweiks toward the river and, side by side with the Evergreen left and two of the reserve companies of the Columbias, had swept the field like i cyclone, whirling the yelling rebels into the stream, tumbling over guns, gunners and crouching foes until in a ad chorus of exuitant cheers they lined up at the bank over which in terror scores of their tormentors of the early hours had plunged in hopes of reaching the opposite shore. Along the parapets, among the bamboo thickets, under the walls of the old gray convent and everywhere across the open field the dead and wounded lay in little pools of brownish red, brave lads in blue and tumbled heaps of stricken formen, their loose, light uniforms al stained and sonked with gore. Not until after five long bours of pa tient endurance had the brigade received the longed for, prayed for word to advance, and the pent up rage for battle burst like a torrent on an astonished foe swept helplessly before it Foremost in the magnificent charge of his cheering men Langdon, sword in hand, had leaped among the guns at the river redoubt, his cheek seamed by the stinging lash of a bullet, his hat brim torn by the desperate lunge of a bolo, the last thrust of a cursing little Tagal officer fighting like a rat in a corner, for the bayonet of a lusty ser-

They gathered about the stricken form of the gallant old major.

"They've been firing on our wounded and ambulances from the church and nutive houses," said the general briefly. He was thinking-he couldn't help it of the words of two battery officers he had overheard as he stood at the knoll watching the triumphant advance of his division. Rodney May was the first speaker, and the battery commander had heard without either reproof or dissent.

"It's just what Eric said at Pawnee ten years ago. He has come steadily up and Nathan gone steadily down in the good opinion of every square man in the regiment. Yesterday they were on a level as far as rank goes; today I'm betting Langdon's name goes in for brevet and Nathan's won't be heard

"Where on parth is Colonel Nathan?" asked the brigade commander as he reined in on the Plaza under the walls of the great church where two companies of the Columbias were fanning their not faces with their broad brimmed hats, and the men looked at each other and grinned.

"Where on earth is Colonel Nathan?" ngain demanded the division chief as he and the brigadier rode through the smoke of blazing nipp buts from whose walls the lurking Tagal rifles had shot down but a few moments before at tendants of the wounded, friend and foe alike. A surgeon, looking up from the stretcher over which he was bending, ducked his head toward distant

"Away back yonder, colonel. You won't find him this side of the Concor dia." And the two seniors exchanged plances. Not until out/of range of listening ears was another word spoken. Then the division commander began to free himself of his impressions.

"When the story of this day's work is told, your Washoes and westerners, especially Langdon, will be glorified." said he, "but what shall be said of Na than?

Meanwhile Eric Langdon burned with pain and fever under the roof where lay, convalescing of the wounds received early in the first day's fight, his gallant and devoted friend Melville. Langdon pulled through, thanks to native strength and constitution and the tireless devotion and professional skill of the surgeon who received him, unconscious and sore spent, from the hands of the hospital corps. "Doing as well, general, as we can expect after so severe a wound," was Dr. Armistead's almost daily report for a week. "But what will the waking be?"

"If you will permit me, Dr. Armistend, that is a matter with which I shall charge myself. It's time Langdon knew the truth." And so one day when the soft sea breeze was blowing in from the bay, now studded with transports bringing the long delayed re-enforcements, as Langdon lay, weak, but once again clear headed and craving news of his men. Metville bobbled to his bedside and signaled to the attendant to slip away. "Langdon, old fellow," he asked as they were left alone, "feel as though you could bear a shock today? Your old division commander came in to say goodby while you were asleep. You are named for the medal of hone and the brevet of brigadier general. wrote the news home by last post." The pale, thin face on the pillow lighted with a faint flush of pleasure. The long, slender fingers feebly clasped the warm hand extended in greet ing. "How long before I can be in saddh again?" was the question framed by his pallid lips, and the voice was bu the ghost of that that rang like a clarion over the field at Santa Ang and swung the Washees into their magnifigeant had transfixed him on the spot. cent charge. "Two months or three, perhaps, and Close under the outer works a little need to think over this. It is all-so different." And Melville stole away and left him with the brief oriental twilight just shrouding the skies.

CHAPTER XX.

The summer had come and gone. The state regiments were summoned home for muster out, and thrice their number in regulars and national volunteer. were gone or going to Manila. Only in small bodies and rather as banditti or guerrillas were the enemy encountered The lightning dashes of the cavalry north and south in Luxon and the tire less scouts and marches of the infantry had scattered the insurgents in every direction. The war had dwindled to a campaign of detachments, "like old Arizona days," as the troopers put it, and, full of honors and the conscious ness of duty faithfully done, with thin ned ranks and in many instances thin gnunt faces, the soldiery of the wide west was sailing back across the seas and being welcomed with tumultuous acclaim at San Francisco. The Colum bias mourned the loss of many a gal-Nathan resigned the silver leaves long months before they fought their last fight, preferring brief garrison duty with his buttery. So many colonels and majors seemed to get picked off by the robel rifles that it became positive ly unsafe to take the field, said a saturnine staff officer of the commanding general, and that might have influer. ed Nathan's action. But promotions in the artillery arm speedily gave him under the law the grade of major, and it was better to be a live major of regulars at a comfortable station in the United States than a lientenant colonel of volunteers in the mud and rain and discomfort of Luzon. The volunteers were coming back with every transport and being camped on the reserva-tion pending their muster out. The Columbias arrived, and Nathan arrangal a big dinner for the officers and rede about among the mon, who somehow couldn't seem to see him, and many vouldn't even salute. Only a menger dozen of the junior officers attended that feast. It flattened dolefully despite the lavish flow of wine. Every field officer "regretted," and certain of the enplains possibly en-schooled in the ways of society never even acknowledged the courtesy. Mafor Train, who had been promoted lieutenant colonel on Nathan's resignation. would not even notice him. The colo nel's greeting was give and distant. Some of the men laughed aloud when Nathan rode over to entop, and the situntion was the talk of the great assomblage of returning volunteers when in came the transport with the warworn Washoes, firste Langdon at their head. tumultuously greeted by the throng the day they disembarked. And Nathan asked for leave of absence. In civilian dress and accompanied by his wife and a single servant, he drove to the ferry unnoticed of the cheering crowds that rent the air with shouts for Langdon and his devoted men. It took full a fortnight to complete the examinations and all the preliminary papers before the final muster out of the brave band of brothers they had become. There were returning regiments in whose membership there liv ed the ranklings of discord and jealovey, but the Washees had but one creed and no recriminations. They believed in God, they loved their conntry, and they swore by Eric Langdon. The governor and his staff came by special train from the northeast to well, too, was there, and both their senaters and many men with the bees of possible offices buzzing in their bon-nets, and all of these had much to say in public and in all their many speech. ed in at the Presidio, so it would hard-

4 | bangbang, where he was severely wounded, their colonel was brevetted a general.

It was relief at night to get away from the througing camp and the im portunities of statecraft and to find refuge at Melville's quiet, cozy suit of rooms at the homelike old hostelry. Lips that smilled and eyes that shoh were ever there to welcome him and with the general he could talk unreservedly. Neither by education nor temperament was he fitted for political life. Its intrigues and devices were detestable to him, its associations galling. As a lawyer he had seen-he had had to see much of the chicatery with which the whole edifice is surrounded. He had no ambition in that direction. His law practice had begun to be fucrative before the outbreak of the war and bade fair to become mor so as soor as he could resume work All the old debts, with interest, had long since been paid. He had bourbt land and was drawing plans for a pretty home when the trumpets sounded to arms. He had even begun to dream bias mouried in the Philippines. Iant lad left buried in the Philippines. but parted without perceptible emotion stationed in the harbor, and officers who were his contemporaries in the old days at Pawnee, seniors and juniors both, now came to his disciplined, well ordered camp and looked with apprediative eyes upon those stal wart, seasoned battallons and envied him his experience and opportunities. Torrance had got his double hars at inst and gone on to Maulia na the volunteers were coming home, but he had ong since broken with Nathrn, and the soldier in him sought reconcliation with the man who had won such houors in the campaign. The full realizatien of the wrong he had done Langdon long since dawned apon him, and yet how herribly awkward was his position! Other men in the regiment who had concreted with their hind and wanted to end the strain of long misinderstanding could go to Melvilie, sure of sound advice and sympathetic aid. Melville could harmonize where others only meddled. But Torrance was barred. Melville was the only man to whom he could not go, for in his rancor he had so far forgotten himself and what was due a woman as to name one of Melville's household in his denunciation of his brother lioutenant. Langdon had cordially greeted and received certain of the old regiment who had held abof in his days of trou ble, but who came to him frankly and told him of their contrition and regret. They had wronged only Langdon. Tor rance had spoken disdainfully of a brave girl whose offense in the eyes of the small snob element at Pawnee was that she stood by the sorrowing man and chought him desplicfully used, and now would Langdon be aps to forgive an afront to Ethel Grahame? Torrance, after the new captain sailed for Mauila, wished to take rooms with these pleasant army people at their favorite caravanoary. She loved society, but everyhedy knew her husband had been knocked flat by Langdon for impertinent mention of Miss Grahame. and, though it happened ten years before, the breach had never been healed. Torrance had never sought pardon. How could she go there? The Nathans were taking the mountain air up at Taboe, waiting for the volunteers to disperse, but the major's leave was for only two weeks. The Washoes were still in camp and the day of muster out not yet determined. The governor and his satellites were now less clamorous for speedy settlement of their papers meet them on their return, and Cress- and somewhat given to suggestion that, after all, "it wouldn't pay for the regiment to come to the capital. They wouldn't have their arms and their equipments, etc., all having to be turn-

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chart H. Flitcher: and has been made under his per-sonal supervision'since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that tride with and endanger the health of Infants and Children-Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregorie, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant, It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcot's substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhoes and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Traables, cares Constignation and Flatulency. It assinilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea-The Mother's Friend.

A. WEINMAN, THE BUILDINGS, Dillington Mil-Our treatment does not interfere with max round over ortion. Exception and YOU CAN CURE YOURSELF AT HOME " " SOLLING" INTERNATIONAL AURAL CLINEC, DOG LA SALLE AVE., CHICASD, HL.

Auctioneer, Hillsboro Oregon

INTERESTING FACTS

hen people are contemplating a trip whether on business of planace, they instantially want the best service of instantial want the best service re-tributed in an argonal, conduct and inform to concentral fines are prior to write the pathle and one trains ar-operated as as to make chose connec-tion with diverging lines at all junct-ion with diverging lines at all junctkolt pointello.

Pallowin Educe Sleeping and Chair Core on through trains.

Diving Cur service unercolled. Morb

in order to obtain this first class services ach the total agent to sell you's to het over

THE WISCONSIN CENTRAL LINES.

Direct connections as Charage and Mile wantes arall Basters po viz.

For full information call on your manue ticker mouth or write

JAB, C. POND. or JAE, A. CLOC & Gen. Pus. Agin. General Agent, Milwankay Wis. 246 Stark.

Designation, second and solaring from the White Collar Line PORTLAND-ASTORIA Route. Str. "BAILEY GATZEBT" Duly Round Trifs except Sunday TIME CARD Leave Porthand 7 a.m. Leave Actoria 7 p.m. THE DALLES PORT LAND ROUTE STR "TAHOMA" AND "METLAKO" Between Portland, The Dalles and

Way Points. Daily Trips Except Sunday. TIME CARD Str. "Tahoma"

Ly, Portland Mon. Wed. Fri.7 11. 118. Str. "Houita"

Lo, Portland Tues, Thur. Sat. 7, a. m. #19 This Route has the Grandest Science Attractions on Earth

MEALS THE VERY BEST

Both Phones, Main 351

PORTLAND, OREGON. JOHN M. FILLOON, and The Dalles A. J. TAYLOR, ugt Astoria. J. C. WYATT, agt Vancouver, WOLFORD & WYERS, agts White

Naimon. J. J. LUCKEY. agts Hood River. WM. RUTLER, . Butler. Wash. JOHN M. TOTTON, Stevensor Wnah, RENRY OLMSTEAD, Cargon, Wash E. W. CEICHTON, agt Portland

sad eved sound had gathered about the | not that possibly without a sea voyage stricken form of the gallant old major, to Japan or a run to Australia. You dying, sword in hand and with almost a smile on his lips as Langdon knelt God's providence nothing but the best and raised the grizzled head and of surgeons and constitutions saved stanched the blood that welled from a you. Dr. Meade is looking after you mortal wound. Victory brilliant, complete, decisive, had rewarded their determined assault, the warm handclasp, the enthusiastic praise of the brigade commander, his "Gloriously done, Langdon?" bringing cheer after cheer from the exultant battalions, but the heart of the colonel was sore. It was hard to lose such lives as these that were obbing away there in all the radiance of the morning sunshine. It was sad to part with this trusted and loyal subordinate. It was bitter to think that that other and older friend who had never swerved in sorrow and adversity now lay deaf to the tidings of this most soldierly achievement that Melville might never know how thorough had been Langdon's vindication of the faith and trust reposed in him. Silently, sadly, the Washees bore the lying major back to the walls of the ald convent within the lines. Reverentiy they began the gathering up of the dend, and tenderly, these stout hearted fellows, they strove to minister to the wounded, friend and foe alike, while cowed, scowling, sullen, the luckless prisoners were swept up from the curving abores, from under the floors of nalive huts, from the ditches and drains along the village walls. Away out to the right front, up the river road toward Guadeloupe, the pursuing Colum-bias were still volleying at Ricarti's rear guard, what there was left of it, but Santa Ana, with all its stores of annaunition and supplies, was the prize of the brigade, and the veteran general of division, riding out to survey the scene and congrarulate the vicfors, stopped to shake hands with Langdon and add his word of praise and compliment and to inquire as to his wound. "Only a pin scratch, genwal, that wouldn't hurt at all if I could know there was no truth in the story that General Melville is killed." "Ob, I won't believe it!" said the "Your only authority and mine chilef. is Colonel Nathan, and Nathan's only authority is that batch of correspondcurs he's been housing for the past week. They had it that you were mortally hit and half your regiment killed. Where is Colonel Nathan, anybow?"

"I don't know, sir," answered Lang-don guardediy. "I haven't seen him since daybreak."

The major general turned in saddle and looked back across the bloedy field interpose between her and the sting of toward the roofs of Paco glinting between him and the wh a towers of Manila, another mile beyond. The pale last and hid his face in sorrow and conblue clouds had drifted away. In their place dense volumes of black smoke were beginning to roll skyward from judged him! three or four points in the thronging suburb, and the crackle of burning bamboo sounded like a distant fusil-

Revenue - State of the second es to the listening warriors in praise of their heroic colonel, the one thing sure had a fearful wound, Erie, and under now that all is going so well, but for two weeks, lad, it was nip and tuck, and have you any idea who who pull ed you through?" Langdon's eyes spoke negation are inquiry both. "Dr. Armistend, Eric."

The patient half rose on his pillow no faint flush this time on his brow but Melville's hand at once reliaked and restrained him.

"There's a story you ought to hear Langdan, and it is one I'll youch for Shut your eyes and lie quiet naw, for I'm going to tell it."

And so in faraway Manila, with hi niedal of honor in sight, as it were, and his soldier ambition well nigh fully realized, the wounded soldier heard from the lips of his best and stanchest friend the tale of Armistead's real reernorship or any civil office, let 'em lations with the woman who, bearing Langdon's name, had so nearly wrecked his life. The early boyish infatuation of the young Virginian was not concealed. The ind well nigh worshiped his pretty, frivolous kinswoman and had endowed her with mental gifts and al. moral attributes that only with maturing years he found fictitious, and still, like a knight of old, he had stood between her and temptation, had striven manfully to lead her to the light and them to importune in person, and letscandal. The true story of the encounter at the Shoreham Langdon heard at trition. He had so easily believed ill of the silver star was wired without to evoke tumnituous applause, and much to say in private to that silent soldier himself. The burden of their united song was a source of keen and obimsical delight to Langdon and to Melville, who, with his household, was waiting orders of the war department at the Colonial. It would be so very much better for Langdon, said all these statesmen, to accept the high commis sion they proposed obtaining for him in the regular service than to think of entering political life, which they could truthfully assure him was so sadly uncertain and full of disappointments. Langdon listened with the same quizzical smile, but said very little. He knew perfectly well that all Washoe couldn't change the laws and that nothing short of a special act of congress could place him in the army with any rank he cared to accept. He had been tendered the coloneley of one of the new regiments, but the surgeons shook their heads. Cresswell clamored for his return to the office. The Washoe Zephyr, that was at odds with the governor, swiing out its banner to the breeze with "For Governor, General Eric Langdon, the Hero of Manila," irrespective of the fact that there had been a hundred or more equally herole and as little versed in politics. It was "done for devilment," as the governor's benchmen took pains to assure Langdon, but most people throughout the state and the regiment to a man took it seriously, and machine statesmen far and near were sorely worried. There is nothing so sure to stir things the wrong way for all parties and principally for himself as the injection of the martial hero into relitics. Langdon was for announcing in so many words that he would never permit the use of his name, but Cresswell, the veteran of a dozen campaigns, bound him to silence. "Think what you please, do what you please when the time comes, but meanwhile keep your own counsel No matter if you don't want the gov-think you do. It's the surest way to get what you do want." The whole state delegation in congress, the governor and his backers were clamoring by wire for Langdon's immediate promotion to the grade of brigadier gener-That would insure his going back to the Philippines and being far out of the field when nominations were in or-the Washoes roared with joy over the this county to sell goods, merchandia considered, it would be just as well for and chattels at public vendue. the boys to scatter at Frisco and each . I will attend all sales at times and choose his own homeward way." So places, specified upod receiving rethe military authorities bent their engernest to do so. Charges renormable, ergies toward getting rid of those regiments whose statesmen were chunorous, and thus it happened that the Nathans returned while the Washoes were still in camp, and it might have been better had that leave been extended.

ly be like a military parade. All things

To be continued

FOR TEN

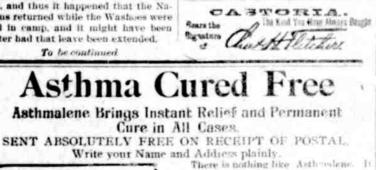

YEARS

BRINCO

RELIEF

pinom, morphine, chloroform or ether brings instant relief, even in a worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

CHAINED

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., mays: "Your trial buttle of Asthurstone received in good condition I cannot teil you how thankful 1 feel for the good derived from it. I was a size chained with putrid sore throat a Antima for ten years. I despuired ever being cured. I nuw your advert nent for the cure of this dreadful a tormention disease, Asthma, and the ron had overspoken, courselves, but solved to give it a trial. To my automati-ment, the trial worked like a charm end men foll-sized bottle."

> REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLE 2. Rabbi of the Cong. Enal, Israel

New Your, Jan. 3, 1990. New Your, Jan. 3, 1990. Ors. Tait, Bros, Medicine Co., Gentlemen. - Your Asthmalone is an excellent remealy for Asthma and Hay Fover, and its composition allociates all transless which combine with Asthma. Its, success is actonisiding and wonderful, After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Authmaleue contains no Nerv trily gone, HEV, DR. MORELS WECHSLEE.

Avon Sentsus, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1907.

r. Taft Bros. Medicine Co. Gentlement: I write this testimonial from a scase of daty, having tryted the conderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthman. My wife how wonderfal effect of your Asthunalene, for the curve of Asthuna. My wife has been affected with spacemodic asthuna for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 100th Street in New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthunalene. My wife commen-ced taking it about the lat of November. I very soon noticed a radied improv-ment. After using one bottle her Asthuna had disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distreming disease. Your respectively. Yours respectivily, D. D. Phelps, M. D.

the field when nominations were in or-der. But Washee is too many hun-dreds of miles from Washington for them to impecture in person, and let-ters and telegrams are far easier to an-swer than personal plens, and "infin-ence," said Metrille. "is inversely as the square of the distance." The brevel of the square of the distance." The brevel them to the distance." The brevel the square of the distance. The brevel the square of the distance. The brevel the square square of the distance. The brevel the square of the distance. The brevel the square square square of the distance. The brevel the square sq of Armistend, he had so utterly mis- much objection at the war office, and Trial Bottle Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

"Ask him to to come to me in a day or two, will you, general?" he said, half a dogen actions, including Baliga . Write at once, addressing DR. TAFTTERS, MEDICINE CO for acceptable ideas.

State if patented.

THE PATENT RECORD.

Ealtimore, Md.

Warrenty Riscian $1.00

GLASSIGAL, SCIENTIFIC, LITERARY 14 UNIVERSITY PACIFIC

The Academy prepares for College and gives a thorough English Education, the best preparation for teaching or business. All penses ceru low. Board and rooms a the I.dies' Hall $3 to $4 per week, includinelectric light and heat.

THE CCLLEGE DORMITORY

Under experienced management, will furnish rooms and board at cost on the club plan, not to exceed $1.50

> For full pai iculars, address PRESIDENT MCCLELLAND. Forast Groce, Oregon