FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1903.

THOS. H. TONGUE, DECD.

Before his time, our neighbor and our friend has put down his burden and surrendered to his fellows the duties he so conscientiously performed. Before his time? The same habits that called for his life will always do it. Tongue worked too hard. He used no narcotics, nor spirituous stimulants, but he did burn too much midnight oil. It was work, all the time. He denied himself rest and recreation. It is admitted that few men die from this cause, but Tongue was one of them.

Tongue was a brilliant man, yet at first that was not so. He had talents only in one direction. He had talent for work and an honesty that drove him forward. In the beginning of his career he was not a fluent debator but before he died, he was in the front ranks. He was eloquent and his reasoning was close and convincing. How did he accomplish himself? By work. This was his preachment to all young men. He was a living example of what he taught. A comment in a leading journal truthfully says: "It is the hollowness of funeral tributes that the one who most needed and deserved to hear them has passed beyond the reach of friendship or venom, praise or blame." But Tongue alive would permit the same things to be said not for his own pangyric, but as a quickening spur to young men who sometimes persue pleasure or lol in sloth. Honest? Perfectly. Industrious? It has been said. Frugal? Yes. Faithful? Ask his clients. Prompt? Consider his daily mail while in Congress. Tongue was an ideal representative. His district will miss him. Portland will not have a firmer or more efficient representative on the River and Harbors Committee. The scorched plains of Eastern Oregon will remain brown and grey longer because of his death. The west will know that he is not in Congress when the tariff schedules are up for debate. The East will get free raw material easier for his absence. Bishop, of Michigan, on Committee with Tongue said in 1901, "You will do well to keep Tongue in Congress. He is level headed in committee, fearless and knows how to take care of himself on the floor of Congress."

We bury clay, but we have his example. It is for the living to be inspired.

In 1868 Mr. Tongue married Miss E. M. Eagleton who with the following children, survive him: Edith L. Reames, wife of A. E. Reames, District Attorney of Jackson county; Edmund Burke, of the Hillsboro law firm of T. H. & E. B. Tongue; Mary G., Hillsboro; Bertha R. and Thomas H. Tongue, Jr., both in Washington, D. C.; Emily Elizabeth, wife of Frank F. Freeman, of Portland, and Miss Florence, now attending Pacific University.

Mr. Tongue was a past master Mason, and in 1888 he delivered the oration before the Grand Lodge. He also took an active interest in Odd Fellowship, and was a member of the Grange at Hillsboro.

A Committee consisting of Mayor W. N. Barrett, Dr. J. P. Tamiesie, Dr. S. T. Linklater, Hon. S. B. Huston and John Bailey will go to Portland, there to meet the funeral train, and accompany it to Hillsboro. The Knights of Pythias, uniform rank, will meet the funeral train at the Hillsboro depot and conduct the remains to the residence. Sunday morning the Odd Fellows will escort the remains to the court house where it will lay in state with a guard of honor by the Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows, between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 a.m., then taken in charge by the Odd Fellows it will be borne to the Methodist Church where the funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Rockwell of Portland at 2 p. m. after which the remains will be buried in the family lot of the Masonic Cemetery of Hillsboro, by the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Oregon.

OUR NEW GOVERNOR.

Wednesday, at 2:15 p. m. Theodore T. Geer, who has occupied the most important state office which the people of Oregon can give—governor of Oregon—for the past four years, stepped down and out, and his successor, Geo. E. Chamberlain, was ushered into the vacant seat amid rounds of applause. Mr. Chamberlain will pick up the reins of office where Mr. Geer left off, and the affairs of state will undoubtedly be handled as efficiently as heretofore. Mr. Chamberlain is a thorough business man, and we may expect a clean, conscientious administration from his hands.

The event had been widely advertised, and men, women and children turned out en masse to witness this most important ceremony. It was formerly announced that the inaugural ceremonies would take place in the forenoon, and by 10:30 o'clock the capitol building was crowded with an anxious but seemingly patient people. Then at 11 o'clock came the opening of the sealed envelopes containing the certified statements of the votes of all the counties in Oregon, which had been previously prepared by the several county clerks and sent to the State House. This finished, Speaker Harris briefly declared George E. Chamberlain to be duly elected governor of Oregon. Then, as it was nearing the noon hour, the joint convention adjourned until 2:15 p. m., when the inaugural ceremonies would be resumed.

Promptly at the appointed hour the doorkeeper announced, "The Governor and Governor-elect of Oregon!" and the retiring governor marched down the aisle closely followed by the one who was to be governor, and the legislative committee. When all were seated on the rostrum, Governor Geer was introduced by President Brownell, and at once began his farewell message. At its close there was loud cheering, and Chief Justice Moore proceeded to briefly administer the oath of office to Mr. Chamberlain. The new governor then began his initial message to the Legislature. At its close he sat down and, amid rounds of hearty applause, shook hands with ex-Governor Geer. The joint assembly dissolved and this most important event was a thing of the past.

HOW THEY ORGANIZE.

It is a poorly equipped American citizen who does not know how to organize a convention. Let fifty men assemble for a celeberative purpose and it will not be many minutes before they are in working order. But the organization of the state legislature is not so familiar to the mass of the people, though it is really not much more formal than getting to work in a practical primary.

On Monday at 10:20 a. m., the chief clerk of the last house stepped to the speaker's desk and rapped for order. Fifty-eight men were instantly in order. (The house has 60 members, but two are absent because of illness). The clerk announced the first business to be the selection of a temporary speaker. A member from his seat moved that his favorite be chosen. All readily agreed to this and the temporary speaker took his place, not even an escort was used. The speaker then called for the selection of a clerk. With as little ceremony the clerk's chair had an occupant. A member moved a committee of five on credentials. And an other a committee of five on rules and order of business. The work of these committees is that indicated by the name by which the committee is known. The credentials committee, however, did not gather up the certificates of election held by the individual members, but went to the Secretary of State's office and received a list of the members which had months ago been sent to his office by the several county clerks.

There was no further business to be transacted until these committees had reported, but the republican members had a little matter of party business on hand. It was done in the recess. The temporary organization adjourned at 11:15 until 2 p. m. The republican caucus was called to "meet immediately in room 4." This was participated in by all the republicans of the House except the two absentees, 47 in all. It required 24 votes to nominate. The caucus was organized exactly as we organize our political primaries, by choosing a chairman, secretary and an assistant secretary. No newspaper reporters were present, though the INDEPENDENT had a keyhole to which its representative might apply an ear. There were three candidates for speaker, Hons. Frank Davy, Marion; L. T. Harris, Lane, and B. L. Eddy, Tillamook. The first ballot stood, Davy, 18; Harris, 14; Eddy, 15. It was a hot affair so no one knew who his friends were or his enemy. Mr. Davy furnished printed ballotts to all, but the others contented themselves with square slips from the scrap pile in the State Printer's office. Harris gained one and Eddy lost one on the second ballott. On the third, Harris gained another and Davy lost one. On the fourth, Harris lost one to Eddy. On the tenth Harris had 14, Davy 19, and Eddy 15, so on the 11th, so on the 12th, but on the 13th Harris got one away from Davy, and on the 14th 2 from Davy and one from Eddy, but he lost two on the next ballott, one to Davy and one to Eddy. Then it as ciliated till the 19th, when Harris seemed to have a healthy gain. The ballot stood, Harris 19, Davy 16, and Eddy 12. Multnomah was not solidly supporting Eddy. An adjournment was taken for one hour, not, though, without an opposition.

On coming together, Eddy in a pretty little speech withdrew in favor of Harris. Mr. Davy then thanked his friends for loyal support and withdrew. There was clapping of hands and pounding of sandals. The lobby knew that something had happened.

The strain was off and caucussing on the employees was without contest except for Sargeant-at-Arms and Mailing Clerk, for both of which places Washington county had applicants. We saved Pierce but lost Mr. Barns. Multnomah had too many votes.

All this took time and it was long after the hour set for convening before the representatives assembled in their hall. The work thereafter was routine, and when completed stands thus:

OFFICERS OF HOUSE.

SPEAKER—L. T. Harris.
CHIEF CLERK—A. C. Jennings.
1st ASS'T CLERK—W. F. Drager.
READING CLERK—C. A. Murphy
CALENDAR CLERK—F. O. Northop.
SERG'T-AT-ARMS—W. R. Bishop.
DOORKEEPER—T. W. Wann.
MAILING CLERK—R. N. Pierce.
PAGES—Penion Kautner, Lee Davis and Frank Hogan.

The Secretary of State then appeared and administered the oath of office to the Representatives.

In pursuance to a provision reported by the special committee on rules and order of business the speaker appointed a special Committee on Clerkships—one from each representative district.

The organization of the Senate was much the same as in the house, only they had a tie then between two men, Brownell and Smith, but when broken, as it was on the 17th Caucus ballot, there was smooth work which when completed stands thus:

OFFICERS OF SENATE.

PRESIDENT—Geo. C. Browneil.
CHIEF CLERK—L. S. Moorhead.
1st ASS'T CLERK—E. H. Jackson.
CALENDAR CLRK—F. C. Middleton.
READING CLERK—F. Motter.
SARG'T-AT-ARMS—K. W. Gowan.
MAILING CLERK—Wm. Smith.

On the organization of the Senate, Senator Fulton moved for a committee to report resolutions on the death of Congressman Tongue. The Senate thereupon adjourned, as a mark of respect to the deceased Congressman. The same action on motion of Gault was taken by the House. Gault went on from the 15th Representative District, which is Washington county, wherefore if applicants for clerkships from this county has a grievance, then he is the one to be attacked.

The clerks were selected in pursuance of the provisions of the Kay Kendall act of 1899. The daily payroll of the employees was footed. It is found to be $166. Then this was parcelled among the districts. The 15th district had $8.50 to its credit. The mailing clerk gets $4 of this, wherefore we had but $4.50 with which to secure clerks. We wanted the place of a stenographer for our Mr. Bowman. Eligible applicants were not numerous, so notwithstanding our county was shy on funds to the amount of 70 cents, we got a place for our man. The report of the committee was adopted without question: The committee had three hours of hard work but it has relieved the members of much disagreeable work and saved buttons.

On Tuesday bills began to be introduced, and a series of bills, numbering near fifty, were read a first and second time by title and referred to appropriate committees. But talk of railroading! The bills were not read, and they are not printed. No one knows what they contain.

There are 400,000,000 people in China and many more in Japan. The people of these two countries are large consumers of rice and use it daily, but they are fast beginning to use our American flour. It is a well known fact that the steamers leaving our ports, going to China and Japan, are taxed to the utmost for space in which to place our American flour for distribution in these foreign countries. This promises to be a very good outlook for our Oregon wheat raisers.

The Marion County Bar Association having passed resolutions asking the legislature to amend the supreme court rules so that 50 cents a page shall be the maximum price for printing briefs. Why would it not be in order for the typographical unions to pass resolutions demanding that the legislature establish a maximum fee bill for lawyers?—Mountaineer.

The typographical union cannot do it. If anything is done it will have to be by the printers and publishers. The Union would be more likely to unite with the lawyers to do up the book printers.

Executors Notice of Sale of Real Estate.
