The ladies of the Congregational church gave a most enjoyable entertainment in Grange Hall last Wednesday evening. Music, recitations, pantomime and a parlor play were entertaining numbers. The event most pleasing, however, was a marching drill executed by sixteen young women. The evolutions and changes made by the platoon were charming, and reflect credit upon Miss Humphreys, who trained them for the evolutions.

The contract for the purchase of the machinery was to have been signed yesterday, but at the writing of this paragraph, that formality had not been completed, but there was no obstacle visible at all there is no question but that the agreements were reduced to writing before the close of the business day. The stock books are at Shute's bank where subscribers may sign for stock. This is being taken in blocks of from $500 to $3000.

Thos. H. Tongue Jr. telegraphs his family from Washington, D. C., that he has taken his examination in the law school and received his degree. He was more successful than several members of the class, who, though having the whole day for study, failed at examination. Tom had to work during day, and attend to his law studies at night. Passing the rigid examination is the more notable in his case, when it is remembered that he was absent two months last winter at a time when students, expecting to take an examination, can ill afford to be away from the lecture hall. Tom will reach home about June 10th, when he will enter into partnership with his brother, E. B. Tongue, for the practice of law. Hillsboro will warmly welcome the young man to his native town.

Mrs. Hannah Trullinger, widow of Hon. John Trullinger, died at her home in Astoria, May 26th, after a protracted illness. The deceased had reached the age of nearly 70 years. She came to Oregon from Iowa with her father's family, John Boyles, in the 1852 immigration. She married John Trullinger at or near Oswego, Clackamas county, in one of the first months of 1853. For several years the young couple lived in the east end of this county at what for a long time was designated as Trullinger's mill. The family moved from there to Centerville, north of Cornelius where Mr. Trullinger engaged in the manufacture of flour. The water power being destroyed by the removal, at the end of a long contested lawsuit, of the dam across Dairy creek, Trullinger sold, and went to Astoria, where considerable property was accumulated in the shape of water front, electric light and gas stock. The husband died about two years ago and now the wife joins him. A large family of children survive, several sons, business men, are in Astoria, one daughter lives in Chehalis county Washington and another, Mrs. Ex-Gov. T. T. Geer, in Salem.

A dinner party was given at the residence of A. B. Cady, at Beaverton on Sunday, May 24th, 1903, in honor of his 80th birthday. The party was composed of his family, his children and their children, great grandparents, grandparents, uncles and aunts and their children. All made themselves very much in evidence, more especially at the dinner table. Covers were laid for 20 persons and all places were filled. After the dinner was over and the tables cleared away, all enjoyed themselves in social intercourse, with music interspersed. But the most enjoyable feature was when the host took his place on the floor and showed his grandchildren how to dance the cakewalk. Everybody enjoyed themselves and wished many returns of the day.

Chas. Meserve, who suspended the publication of Success at Medford last week, has moved his plant to Jacksonville and has commenced the publication of the "Jacksonville Sentinel." This ought to have been called the "New Sentinel" since the Sentinel was published there nearly fifty years ago.

A party was in town Saturday last proposing to install a sawmill plant with a capacity of 25 thousand feet of lumber per day. He wanted a plot of ground on Dairy creek, near where the railroad crosses that stream. How far negotiations progressed was not stated. The pay-roll would be about $3,000 per month which would be for the most part distributed to our merchants and professional men, for manufacturers will have disputes, that our attorneys must settle, and the operatives will be incensed by machinery and these our surgeons must attend. Let not a grain of sand get in the way of locating the mill here.

The crowds that the Southern Pacific Company handled last week was large, rather more so on the west side than on the other side of the river. The skill with which the people were handled was noteworthy, notwithstanding there were thousands traveling, and several extra trains, not an accident of any kind occurred, and every train was run on time. The trains at times were crowded, and no doubt there were those that did not ride in comfort, but that was hardly the fault of the company. On Thursday evening the train from Portland to McMinnville was run in two sections. This was much over crowded. The first company knew, and attempted to prevent. Superintendent Fields personally circulated among the jam both at the Union Depot and at Stark street station asking passengers to wait ten minutes for the second section, but the people acted as though they thought that a trick was to be played them. There were two or three coaches in the second section that had only one or two passengers in each and several more only partially filled. The train men know their business, and patiently cared for the crowds that committed themselves to their care.

WHO MAY VOTE AND HOW.

A question came up last week in relation to how an elector who is registered in an adjoining county or in another precinct may vote, seeing he is not able at this date to cancel his registration. Attorney General Crawford writes: "When a man ofers to vote in another precinct than the one in which he is registered or if he has never registered he is considered challenged under section 2875 of Bellinger's and Cotton's Codes of Oregon, and the voter must swear to blank 'A' and procure six freeholders to subscribe to the second oath in blank 'A' and swear to the same. The Judges or any Notary Public can administer the oath. When properly filled out the man has as good a right to vote as though he was registered. The law does not intend to prohibit a qualified elector from voting but only to make him prove his qualification."

In addition to the above, note that the attorney general uses the word "freeholder." That is the word used in the statute, and is not to be confounded with "householder." A householder is the head of a family, a married man, and may not be a "freeholder," who is a man that owns real estate.
