Hoyt sells his goods at right prices. If he did not people would quit him.

Go to Heidel's Confectionery Store for fine home made candies and fruits and nuts.

Dr. Linklater is attending Flips Brown, one of Laurel's merchants who is now recovering from quite a serious illness.

A well made portrait of the giver is often the most welcome Holiday gift, such a fine photo as Pope & Morgan are now offering at a price that will pay you to investigate.

Go to Hoyt's for any thing from a needle to a suit of fine tailor made clothes and you get the very best article and at the very lowest price compatible with good goods. Hoyt is the trade mark.—Hoyt.

Representative Chas. Hines was at the county seat Tuesday, visiting political friends and also attending to business. He expects shortly to take a short vacation in California but will be back for an extra session if the Governor finally makes up his mind that way.

Raleigh is losing two citizens to Portland this week, H. Henderson, who lives on the Smeltzer farm, moving to St. Johns, and Mrs. Nichol expects shortly to be a resident of the metropolis. Also Wm. Titus has gone to Lyall, Wash., but Mr. F. Scholl has moved in.

The State Bar Association will hold its 13th annual session in Portland Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 17-18, closing with a big banquet. Hon. S. B. Huston, of Hillsboro, president of the association, will deliver an address upon the most important acts passed by the last legislature.

Strayed: large short horn cow, light red, some white on shoulder and flank, small crop and underbit in one ear; probably fresh now; also dark red two-year-old heifer, has lump on right hind leg. Suitable reward for information leading to their recovery. Address, Ira Bradley, Forest Grove, Ore.

The coming Bar Association meeting with the gathering of attorneys in Portland brings to mind that the legal profession is fairly well represented in Washington County. In Hillsboro are these legal lights, in the order of their admission: W. D. Hare, '66; D. M. C. Gault, '68; S. B. Huston and W. N. Barrett '84; Benton Bowman and W. D. Smith, '93; Geo. R. Bagley and John M. Wall, '95; E. B. Tongue and H. T. Bagley, '97; Mark B. Bump, '98; Austin Craig, '99; E. C. Luce and T. H. Tongue Jr., 1903. Forest Grove has John P. Wagner, '91; Geo. H. Marsh, (deputy clerk of U. S. Court, Portland) '98; Jesse R. Caples, '94; W. S. McCram, '95; Lotus L. Langley, '97; J. N. Huffman, '98; W. M. Langley, W. H. Hollis, E. B. Hawks and J. W. Messeramith.

B. J. Barret, a sculptor who has been preparing a monument with which the Woodmen will mark the grave of their late Neighbor, F. J. Barber, has now completed his work and Wednesday returned to his Portland studio. Recently the Oregonian published an engraving of one of Mr. Barret's models which was designed for the gateway of the Lewis & Clark Fair. A model which he is just now completing, also for the exposition, represents "The Dawn of 1905," a partly draped female figure typifying the Exposition unveiling fine art in Portland. In her outstretched left hand is the dove, which she is sending out to the world with the news that the Exposition is open. Sacajawea is the subject of another nearly completed design, the Indian heroine of the Lewis & Clark Expedition being pictured with a lighted torch in her right hand guiding Civilization, a prancing horse well under control, to the Pacific Northwest. The figure is intended to adorn the main fountain of the Fair.

CONGRESSIONAL TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF OREGON'S LATE REPRESENTATIVE

The pride which Hillsboro and Washington county took in the rapid advancement of Congressman Tongue to national prominence, their gratification at the prestige he had attained in Congress, appreciation of his services and the respect and regard which came from years of association have led to a cherishing of his memory among his neighbors, friends and former associates.

The memorial addresses delivered in Congress last Washington's Birthday have been gathered into a handsomely bound volume just issued from the Government Printing Office and containing a steel engraving from the same photograph as the portrait above, a most characteristic likeness. The selections from the addresses of his colleagues in Congress have been chosen in an effort to show the estimation in which he was held and their opinion of the reason of his success.

Mr. Bishop, of Michigan: "I am well assured that in this instance this is no perfunctory service, but a voluntary offering of our testimonials to the life, character and public service of a man we all learned to admire and esteem while associated with us as a member of this body. * * Human life should not be measured by the years which it has spanned, but by the deeds it has accomplished, by its achievements in human action, by the impress such a life may leave upon the community and State; and judged by such a standard Mr. Tongue had far exceeded the ordinary limit of life, and has endowed his family and his community with a rich heritage in an honored name. * * His modest and retiring demeanor when he first took his seat upon this floor kept his great ability as an orator and an analytic debater concealed through an entire session of Congress; but early in the second session of the Fifty-fifth Congress, when the Hawaiian Islands were asking admission to this Republic, he made a speech upon the question of the admission of those islands which called the attention of the House and the entire country to his ability as a statesman and forensic debater. * * Mr. Tongue was, in all his essential characteristics, a type of the splendid manhood developed with the developing country of the far West. * * The path he had trod from his youngest manhood to the last hour of his life was not one of ease and worldly pleasure. He courted contact with the stern realities, and matched his great abilities, his sturdy will, and tireless endeavor against the obstacles that might appall one less reliant. But all along that pathway are planted the flowers of friendship, of kindly and generous deeds, which have given out their sweet perfume to bless and gladden the lives of others and which will continue to grow and shed their fragrance in the years to come."

Mr. Mondell, of Wyoming: "Thomas H. Tongue was a doer of deeds an earnest thinker, a faithful worker. Whatever he set his hand to do he did with his might. With him no task was trivial, no duty to be performed or responsibility laid, was lightly esteemed or slightly executed."

Mr. Davidson, of Wisconsin: "The people of Hillsboro lost a good neighbor and faithful friend, an industrious and active citizen. The State of Oregon lost a man who by reason of his ability and experience, was eminently qualified to care for its interests and advance its welfare, and the nation lost a public servant whose breadth of mind and conscientious study made him one of the most useful legislators."

Mr. Bellamy, of North Carolina: "Reared in the school of the pioneer, he received that strong and sturdy training which develops character and self-reliance. He grew to manhood imbued with the best thoughts and aspirations of a liberty-loving American and impressed by the environments of a section rich in fertility as well as in story and lore."

Mr. Needham, of California: "His life is an exemplification of the fact that as great success can be achieved in the small rural communities as in the more congested centers of population."

Mr. Lawrence, of Massachusetts: "It is not to be wondered at that the people of Oregon sincerely mourn the loss of one who worked with all his might for their interests, who had for so many years stood that most satisfactory of all tests, the test of service, and had not been found wanting."

Mr. Randall, of Louisiana: "We all mourn his untimely end, and point to his useful, well-spent life with honest pride and satisfaction. Such men as he have made of America the greatest nation on earth, and as long as she continues to produce them her destiny is safe."

Mr. Burton, of Ohio: "He was Chairman of the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands at the time when that very important innovation was adopted by which the Central Government undertakes the reclamation of vast tracts of desert lands. His name will be inseparably linked with this measure, under which millions of acres will be added to the national domain of arable lands, which it is hoped will furnish additional opportunity and additional property to our common country."

Mr. Sparkman, of Florida: "Whatever was worth doing was to him worth well doing, and if he had possessed nothing more to distinguish him here or elsewhere, if his fame and usefulness had no other foundation upon which to rest, the possession of this virtue alone would have sufficed to give him a high standing among his fellowmen."

Mr. Cushman, of Washington: "I do not hesitate to say that in my opinion it was in a large measure his arduous labors that shortened his life. Perhaps it is better thus. In this modern and enlightened age the lives of men, in the greater sense, are not spanned by years, but are measured by events. The sum total of a human life is properly measured by the good deeds accomplished and not by mere longevity. Measured by this standard our friend will be long remembered by his associates on this floor."

Judge J. C. Moreland, past Grand Master of Masons in Oregon and according to the belief of many the most likely successor to United States District Attorney Hall, was in town Tuesday and dropped in at the Independent office. The Judge was sticking type in the Oregonian office forty-one years ago when the Hoe press now used to print the Independent, News and Index made its appearance in Oregon. L. F. Cham-in, who came out from Philadelphia to set up the press, is still with the Oregonian, J. L. McCowan, for many years foreman and H. L. Pittock, the publisher, are the others who were with the paper when the pioneer press arrived and are still connected with it. Judge Moreland tells of an early piece of newspaper enterprise when 20 days after its delivery President Lincoln's first inaugural arrived at 10 o'clock on the evening steamer and by great effort appeared in next morning's daily, he himself setting the last take at 10 o'clock.

Entry—Taken up at Crown Bros. farm, one half mile east of Bethany on Wednesday night, a red heifer about 1 1/2 years old. Owner may recover the same by application to the above and paying necessary expenses. 26-27

The proper way to live is to eat right. To eat right is to have an Ideal Steam Cooker and eat steam cooked food. D. W. Prince, of Sylvan, the agent for the Ideal Cooker, was in town the first day or two, showing the cooker to the people here. He has appointed the Messenger Trading Co. as sub agent who will be glad to explain the cooker to any one who calls at their store, on Second street near Main. Mrs. J. A. Imbrie says it is just fine, Mrs. McNeley sings the praises of the cooker up to the sky, Mrs. Brooks, of Schoils, says she would not take twice the price she gave for hers if she could not get another, Mrs. Ferd Groner, says for a rice cooker it can't be beat. There are number of ladies in our county who have been using the cooker and all tell the same story of how fine bread, cakes, pudding, vegetables and above all tough meat comes out of the cooker all that could be desired. Agents address, D. W. PRINCE, Sylvan, Ore. (26-29)

Call on Pope & Morgan for fine photos, snap shots, enlarging and all kinds of scenic work. Everything in our line is up to date. Special inducements made until after the Holidays. Frames made to order, any size.

Tualatin Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, on last Tuesday evening held an interesting social meeting in Masonic hall. Mrs. Dr. F. J. Bailey and Katharine Wehrung were on the committee of arrangements and although the night was wild and stormy attendance was large and all enjoyed themselves, feasting on cake and lemonade, and voted the meeting a great success. The next meeting of this prosperous order will be Dec. 8th, when the annual election of officers occurs. As the Star is the auxiliary of the Freemasons its installation will be jointly with the Blue lodge but as St. John's Day, Dec. 27, comes on Sunday this year the installation will be either on Saturday or Monday.

Wanted—A cook for family of five; good wages. Inquire at Independent office.

Hoyt calls good.

Dr. McGee, osteopath, every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at Tualatin Hotel.

Just received—A fine assortment of fresh candies at Heidel's Confectionery Store.

H. W. Scott, of Patton Valley, is nursing back to health a white fawn which he found disabled from wounds made by a cougar or a wild cat.

Just received, new buckwheat flour and pure maple syrup. Call in when passing and taste the syrup; its quality has no equal. Messenger Trading Co.

Oregon in its history has had 1961 lawyers, to 1888, 891, the next year 119, then 531 for the succeeding seven years, and 507 for the like period ended last July. Of these four have been women.

Bids are invited for the erection of the Congregational church at Forest Grove, Oregon. Bids are desired on the whole and on parts. For plans and information apply to Dr. J. S. FOSTER, Forest Grove, Oregon (26-27)

You don't need to leave Hillsboro to get up to date photography. Pope & Morgan have modern equipment to turn out the very latest in fine photos, enlarging and framing. You'll be pleased with their work.

Gales Creek had preaching services Sunday, conducted by Rev. S. Moffet. Two residents, Misses Cordelia Seaman and Mae Summers, are departing to Portland for the winter. Mrs. Addie Burns, who has just returned from Cape Nome is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lafferty.

Banks is complaining that bears are destroying the sheep. Mr. Baker is contesting D. D. Martin's homestead claim and a number from that vicinity went to Oregon City as witnesses in the hearing Tuesday. The neighborhood had a wedding Sunday, Cornelius H. Soehren being married to Miss Elsie Staley.

Washington county's gain between the 1900 census and the preceding one was 29.8 percent, or from 11,972 to 14,467. In the three and a third years since the last census the population has grown to 18,000, or 25 per cent gain. Were this rate of increase to keep up 1910 would see 28,000 people here, but as the immigration seems only just to have begun, with the prospect of two electric lines to make this residence region convenient to the metropolis of the Pacific Northwest it seems reasonable to expect even more rapid growth in the next few years.

A German Sunday School convention for the county was held at the Phillips M. E. church Wednesday, Nov. 5. All the addresses were in German except that of Rev. Mr. Robinson, of Hillsboro, president of the county association. Washington County has a large German-speaking population and the Phillips vicinity has six German churches, Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and two Reformed. About 3,000 in the county are foreign born but nearly a half more have been brought up either in the German settlements of some state like Wisconsin where the language of the Fatherland has been transplanted or under similar conditions in this county, so that about one-fourth of the county's population may be classed as German-speaking.
