A State Scandal.

(The first part of this article will be found on page three.)

Mr. Wilson, and to wash and black the harness and to see that the horses consume regularly a sufficient amount of state hay and oats to keep them in good condition.

During the fall months Mr. Wilson and Mr. Curtiss drove a state team to a wagon owned by Guard Savage on a trip to the Siletz, where they went to examine some timber claims which they and Mrs. James, the superintendent's wife, subsequently jumped.

For reasons that can be disclosed by careful investigation the team used by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Curtiss on this trip ran away and badly smashed the wagon. This wagon was repaired by convicts, and no account of this expense or the absence of these officials was entered against their salaries.

The legislature of 1903 provided that you could "if you deemed it advisable," appoint a matron at the penitentiary. The object of that act was to prevent a possible repetition of the scandal which occurred at the penitentiary last year, by removing the two women convicts entirely from the control of the officers and guards. Miss James, the superintendent's daughter, was appointed matron, but she neither carries the keys to the cells, unlocks or locks the women out of or into their cells, or escorts them from their cells to and from the day room. Practically she simply takes the prisoners for a daily walk and—draws her salary of $40 a month.

Time and space prevent a more extended review of the maladministration existing at the penitentiary. I have not exhausted my complaint, and, in fact, I am but directing your attention to some things of which I presume you have no knowledge. That Mr. James' son was given the profitable and responsible position of guard, although less than seventeen years old; that although he is not now so employed he has free, unguarded egress and ingress to the prison; all of these things and more of a kindred character I presume you know.
