The following let- ter to Mrs. H. V. Gates will be read with interest: Aruppukottal, South India, April 8, 1901. My Dear Mrs. Gates: Thanks for your letter and the kind offer of the Missionary society of Hillsboro Congregational church to support a little girl in our school. I have selected for you "Gmana-santherl," whose name means "wisdom and beauty." She is about 9 years of age and though not specially beautiful, she has a sweet little face which is a true index of her charac- ter. All the other children love her and when the stood up and asked to join the Junior Chris- tian Endeavor Society, the other children did not wait for the usual questions to be asked, but with one accord said, "Oh, she can join; there is no hindrance whatever." In the last Scripture examination she received 80 marks in 100, while no other child in her class had more than 69. Yet she is not at all a forward child, but shy and retiring. She comes with a number of other girls for their afternoon sawing lesson on our verands. The last hour of the school day is spent by the girls in sewing. I wish you might hear these girls in singing their evening hymns. This Tamil music is not bad when you get used to it, and I much prefer their Tamil lyrics to our own hymns, as sung by the natives. They like to sing our music and there are so many Tamil songs put to English music, but they sing their own tunes much better. Your little girl will be with us for two or three years more, after which she will pass into the higher school for young women in Madra. I can hardly explain to you what s change form of the years in our boarding school make in they rulish, to get the fail effect of the transfor- wation.
