The decision on the change in the assessment plan of the A. O. U. W. was continued last evening when the grand lodge, in session at Portland, adjourned for the day. It takes a two-thirds vote of the delegates present to make the change, and there is a determined fight against it. Today will probably settle the matter, when an adjournment will be taken. The corner stone of the new $10,000 church to be built by the Congregational society of Forest Grove, was put in position Wednesday. Postmaster Moore of Greenville, reports a twelve pound girl arrived at his house yesterday morning. That seems to be a clear violation of postal regulations. Packages to be transported through the mails are limited to four pounds.—Forest Grove Time. If we remember correctly the post-office regulations say nothing about the transportation of females. And even if they do, President Roosevelt will fix it all right with the postmaster general.

The Fraternal Temple for the Lewis and Clark Fair became an assured reality yesterday when the A. O. U. W., in grand lodge assembled at Portland, gave $1000 toward it, and the Degree of Honor, the women's auxiliary, gave $300. That was the very first actual money that has been appropriated towards the building, and the officers of the Fraternal building association are elated over their success in securing the appropriation. They got all they asked for, and it was voted unanimously.

An agent for the company who is advertising in a number of towns in this state to give a free trip and $100 in cash to the most popular lady, was in this city and made arrangements with several business firms to buy tickets that will issue coupons, and when 60,000 of these coupons have been issued the fortunate winner is promised a trip to the St. Louis exposition.

Wednesday evening an individual who had carried too long at the "fountain of cheer" was run in by Officer Atkinson because he was too drunk to talk or sit down without rolling over. Yesterday he had his trial before Justice Bagley and was sentenced to jail. His only fear seemed to be that he would get his name in the newspaper. It is said of him that he is very seldom in a condition where an officer's assistance is necessary, and for that reason we shall refrain from making his name public.

Here's a "fish story" from West Virginia: "Mrs. Tom Sykes had a flaxen haired girl of 8. The girl had been in the habit of putting her finger in her mouth, and to break her of it the mother hit on the plan of rubbing molasses on the child's lips. Acting on a friend's advice, Mrs. Sykes procured a redeye fish and rubbed the fish across the girl's lips. In some manner the fish slipped out of the woman's hands and into the child's throat. Before the doctor could reach the scene the little girl had strangled."

The fusillade of firearms, the booming of dynamite and the thumping of tin pans and other articles suggestive of noise which kept the people of North Hillsboro awake until a late hour Wednesday night, was not caused by an engagement of the Japs and Russians on Oregon soil, but was only a demonstration to appraise a new married couple that the boys were in need of refreshments. It is said that the groom had given them a "key" and a quantity of cigars in the evening and he did not look for a visitation, but it came just the same. In the morning the garden showed hard usage and the owner is justly indignant and may recourse to the law. Another charivari party made things lively a night or two previous, in that part of town but no damage is reported.

Hunter of this city delegates to the Oregon State Promotion League, which will hold its initial meeting in Portland August 2nd and 3rd. While in Portland Saturday the editor of The Independent chanced to meet Capt. Merryman, and under the shadow of his protecting wing was escorted to the United States custom house and shown over that huge hive of industry. From the engine room to the roof everything is kept as neat as wax, a place for everything and everything in its place. The offices are richly furnished and the desks, which at that hour were unoccupied, showed that order was a principal feature in the great business conducted in that building, said to be the best arranged, most convenient and comfortable in the United States. In the receiving room, where merchandise shipped to this country is opened and examined, only a small quantity was on hand, though Capt. Merryman informed us that another twenty-four hours might find every inch of space occupied. The room occupied by Capt. Edwards was a special attraction to us, containing as it does relics from all parts of the world. It would be hard to enumerate the many articles the captain has placed on exhibition for the entertainment of visitors. Birds, fish, animals, weapons of ancient and modern make, and everyone with a history more or less dark and some humorous; boats, shells, fish, curious and strange; articles from the frozen north and others from the burning south; in fact something of interest from almost every part of the globe. The collection is not only rare but very valuable and of deep interest to all who visit the custom house. Capt. Merryman, who occupies a desk in the building, has our thanks for a pleasant hour spent in Uncle Sam's custom house at Portland.

Death of Mrs. Pruyn. On Friday last Mrs. Arville M. Pruyn died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. V. Gates, of a paralytic stroke, which attacked her on July 4. Mrs. Pruyn has made her home with Mrs. Gates since 1892 and had many friends in this vicinity. She was born in Loraine, Jefferson county, New York November 22, 1824, and in 1850 married Ebenezer Batcheller, who died a few years later. In 1857 she was again married to Abram Pruyn. She came to Oregon in 1892 and has since that time made her home here. Three children survive her, Mrs. H. J. Stephens of Wellington, Kan., W. E. Pruyn of Heppner, and Mrs. H. V. Gates of this city, a daughter by the first husband. Her son, W. E. Pruyn was here to attend the funeral.

Cornelius. Regular Correspondent. C. C. Hancock left for Yaquina Monday where he has caused to be constructed a veritable "Cottage by the Sea." The family will follow next week, when they will, figuratively speaking, sit under their own vine and fig tree, and breathe in the breezes of the "Briny Deep" to their hearts' content. Claude McCurdy, son of A. McCurdy, of this city, met with a painful accident last week by falling from the porch of Mrs. Mattie's new store building, and striking on a piece of scantling, cutting a gash in his leg and injuring the knee pan. Fortunately Dr. F. Ernest, who lives next door, was soon on the ground and took a few stitches in the wound and bound it up in good shape. At last accounts the boy was doing well.

Mrs. A. U. McNutt, of Portland, who has been visiting for several days at R. W. McNutt's, of this city, returned to Portland Monday evening. M. H. Handerson brought his engine down from the quarry, north of Forest Grove, where it has furnished the power for crushing rocks for the roads.

Judge J. R. McBride Dead. Judge J. R. McBride, brother of Judge T. A. McBride, who has been holding court in this city this week and until the news of his brother's death reached him, died suddenly at noon Tuesday in his rooms at the Nicholas hotel, Spokane. The cause of his death is given as heart failure. The circuit court here adjourned until next Monday.

The Markets. The Market Reporter of this morning says: The welcome rains last week did more good to the hops than to any other crop in the Willamette Valley. They insured a yield fully equal to last year's. The hot dry weather following is all that could be desired, as the clean healthy condition of the vines show. Still many progressive growers are spraying, as they take no chances. The market is very dull for spot goods and futures. The 20-cent contract made in Marion County a few days ago represents the top of the market for this kind of business, but the effect of it is somewhat offset by the offering of 500 bales of 1904 under this figure, which finds no takers. An increased demand for eggs and lighter receipts forced the price up a cent during the week. Poultry stamped on excessive arrivals, and chickens of all kinds, ducks and geese are on the down grade. Rushing business is being done by fruit and vegetable jobbers. Watermelons and cantaloupes are moving freely under the influence of the hot weather, which has also caused firmness in lemons. Peaches are abundant, Apricots are in temporary over-supply, and as they are down to bottom prices, will probably be largely bought for canning purposes. No changes were made in the staple grocery list during the week, beyond a ten-cent advance in fruit-sugar. A 3-cent advance is noted in linseed oil. A firm hog market is reported at the Portland Union Stockyards. Cattle are weak and lower, and sheep are steady. In dressed meats value is depressed and some of the arrivals are not worth more than half the value of their hides. Pork is in good demand for medium and small. A few slight changes were made in prices of hams and dry salt meats.
