Let every republican in the county stand by his county paper, and the paper will stand loyally by the party every time. We are endeavoring to give you a good paper and invite our subscribers to spend part of the winter evenings in writing us articles of interest on any topic and we shall take pleasure in publishing them. Items of news are always welcome.

A trifling error was made in an item published last week in regard to the building now going up at Scholls. The structure is being built by Lincoln Lodge No. 161, and the upper story will be used by the order as a lodge room and the lower story for store purposes. It will be 26x55 feet with 22 feet posts, with solid brick foundation and when completed will make a handsome and substantial structure. The Odd Fellows of Scholls have worked hard to provide a good home for their order and they naturally feel much elated that their labors have been crowned with success.

Hillsboro Chapter O. E. S. held a very interesting meeting Tuesday evening, at which there were quite a number of visitors. After the regular order of business ice cream and cake was served and a very pleasant hour followed in social conversation. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hughes, W. P., Senator and Mrs. E. W. Haines, Mrs C. W. Miller, W. M., Mrs Georgia Hughes, Mrs. C. W. Roe and Mrs. Ortman, of Forest Grove. Visitors from other Chapters were Mrs. Tollinger of North Yamhill, and Mr. and Mrs. Sholes of a Chapter in Michigan. The Chapter was opened by Mrs J. D. Merryman, assisted by Judge Crandall, acting as Worthy Patron of Tualatin Chapter.

Mrs. L. M. Woodcock, of Portland, who has been waving a small American flag and shouting that she is the friend of "Theodore Rosenfedt" in many places in Oregon, has arrived in Chicago. She made an early call on the political wire-workers in that city and proceeded to tell them all about how to run a campaign. At last accounts she was still talking and the war-horses listening, for they stand in as great awe of Mrs. Woodcock as the people of Wichita do of the notorious Carrie. The court house "gang" told us this morning, on the q. t., that Mayor Cornelius and Attorney Barrett had just received a letter from Mrs. Woodcock, which imparted to them the pleasing information that she hoped to reach Hillsboro before election and tell them a thing or two about running a campaign that they are altogether shy on at this time. So if you should happen to hear of a party going out for a bear hunt, you can bet dollars to doughnuts that the "old girl" is headed this way.

A Mr. Corl, of Corvallis, was in town Wednesday looking up a location for a farmers' feeding stable. Mr. F. M. Heidel showed him over the city, and it is pretty certain that Mr. Corl will locate here. He is a substantial business man and will make a desirable resident.

"The Gentleman From Indiana" comes to a close in this issue of The Independent. It has been a long drawn-out story, but we hope our readers have enjoyed reading it. We intend to fill the space which was occupied by "The Gentleman From Indiana," with news from all over the county and we hope our country readers will help us out by sending in any item of interest. Correspondence is invited on any subject. A few lines from each will help to make a good newspaper, and that is the kind of a newspaper we intend to publish.

Not long since, at Olean, New York, a man sued his neighbor for killing a wandering hen. Damages were put at $2, but the jury refused to give this, because several jurymen insisted that no hen could be worth more than 50 cents. These jurymen will probably be paralyzed when they hear that a poultry-breeder in their state has recently sold nineteen chickens for $3,400, the sixteen hens bringing $1,700, or over $106 apiece. If this does not jar them enough, they may get a "bracer" from the lately announced sale in Indiana of 500 Leghorn hens for $750.

Many farmers in different counties of Oregon are going into the raising of Angora goats, 1,000 of which animals have been purchased in Mexico for shipment to Lane county. The Cottage Grove Leader says: "The silky hair of the goat brings from 40 to 50 cents a pound, and there is a great demand for it by manufacturers. Already more than 6,000,000 pounds of hair is imported annually from the far east. This is an industry which is developing very fast in this country, and there is no good reason why we should not raise all we consume."

Miss Jennie Reasoner is very ill of typhoid fever at her home in North Hillsboro.

Fred Gheen returned Monday from Washington and will again take a position in the store of John Dennis.

J. S. Waggener is here to spend the winter with his son, R. Waggener, having spent the summer with his daughters in Seattle.

Mrs. Robert Imbrie, past grand chief, Miss Clara Imbrie and Mrs. L. A. Long represented Phoenicia Temple at the grand lodge session of Rathbone Sisters at Seaside this week.

The Odd Fellows hold their mortgage burning jubilee tomorrow night at their hall in this city. It is said that our former townsman, Hon D. M. C. Gault, will light the match which will sink into oblivion the last record of indebtedness on the home of the Odd Fellows of Hillsboro.

Last Friday afternoon a special meeting of the Washington County Lewis and Clark club was held at the home of Mrs. C. L. Walker at Forest Grove and was attended from Hillsboro by Mesdames S. B. Huston, C. L. Rollins, W. Redmond, F. J. Bailey, H. T. Bagley, D. W. Bath and Miss Amy Patterson. At this meeting it was decided to arrange for an exhibit for Washington county at the Lewis and Clark exposition in Portland in 1905, provided the county appropriates sufficient money to insure a good exhibition of the products of Washington county. The commissioners at the last meeting of the board appropriated $250 towards this work, and President Jefferson Meyers of the commission has offered to give one-half as much as the board. But the ladies will not undertake to make an exhibit until they have the assurance of enough funds to carry it through successfully, and make one of the best, if not the very best displays of any county in the state. And why should they not take first prize at the 1905 fair? Washington county's resources will compare favorably with those of any county on the Coast, and with the women from all parts of the county seeking for the best to be had, the prospects are that they will have some surprises in store for the visitors when they come to the great exposition next year. At the next meeting of the club, which will be held in Hillsboro October 28th, committees will be appointed and a line of work mapped out. It will take from $750 to $800 to make the exhibit, and it will need the most careful management to make it with that sum. It is rather late to begin a collection for this purpose, and there will be a vast amount of work required to carry the undertaking through successfully. There has been no move made by the Board of Trade or Commercial club of either Forest Grove or Hillsboro to have Washington county represented at the 1905 fair, and if the women do not get the required financial support there will be no exhibit made for this county.

K. P's at Seaside.

Seaside, Or., Oct. 12—Resolutions relating to routine matters and to lodge affairs were introduced at the Knights of Pythias session this forenoon, and action on them, together with routine work occupied most of the time. The session will adjourn this afternoon at 4 o'clock, to meet in 1905 at Portland. A resolution was introduced, making Portland the permanent meeting place, but it was lost.

A resolution was passed making five members constitute a quorum, instead of seven.

HILLSBORO - OREGON

Beaverton Notes.

Regular Correspondent.

The farmers are happy. Old Oregon is herself again.

Dr. Robinson and his cousin, Mr. Woodside met last Saturday for the first time in eighteen years. Their meeting was in every way a pleasant one and was brought about by Mr. Woodside hearing some one mention Dr. Robinson's name, and knowing that he had a cousin by the same name, made inquiries, thus uniting them again. They spent a very pleasant Sunday talking over old times. Mr. Woodside is lately from Illinois, where his father is still living.

Mr. Clemo, the pastor of the M. E. church left here Tuesday morning for Marquam, Ore., where he is stationed for the ensuing year. His family will be missed here, as they had many friends and were good neighbors. A farewell party was given by Mrs. L. Wolfe last Saturday night in honor of Miss Mae and her brother Fred, and an enjoyable time was had.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo McKay lost their baby on the evening of the 11th. Summer complaint was the cause of its death. The little one was buried at the Crescent Grove cemetery.

Along the Rural Route.

Chas. Hess has finished this seasons' threshing and safely housed his new engine and separator in sheds to protect them from the rains of the coming winter. Mr. Hess is hopeful and confidently expects the season of '05 to reimburse him for this years shortage of crops which made threshing not a very remunerative business. In the mean time he has leased the residence and other buildings on the premises belonging to his neighbor, Christ Jungen, and will make his home there as soon as he has completed the well, in the digging of which he is assisted by his brother-in law, the well known proprietor of the Liesman brick yard. Mr. Hess is a newly married man and our best wishes accompany him and his charming bride to their new home. (Here the band plays.)

John Schneider has now fully recovered from the effects of a painful accident he met with a few weeks ago while hauling straw for a neighbor. He was engaged in feeding his horses when they became frightened from the sudden noise caused by a gust of wind slamming a door shut. The horses still attached to the wagon, immediately became frantic and bolted. John, while endeavoring to restrain the plunging animals, was struck square in the chest by the wagon tongue and violently thrown to the ground, when horses and wagon passed over his prostrate body, severely pounding and bruising him. Fortunately the wagon was at that time empty, otherwise his friends and neighbors might never again have looked upon his genial countenance.

That new two-story mansion just across the road from the Helvetia school district is nearing completion. Located on an elevation overlooking the North Plains country from where it can plainly be seen at a distance of five miles, it will make an ideal home for its happy owner. It will be difficult indeed to find a more congenial spot to live than the new dwelling of Abe Jungen, from the veranda of which he enjoys one of the finest panoramas the beautiful scenery of Oregon affords. That part of Oregon's scenery, which he calls his own, is represented by a five-acre vineyard of choicest grapes, located east of his dwelling house; turning north he looks upon his eighty acres of choice farm land, flanked by a beautiful orchard, from which a well-beaten path leads to the cheese house, well stocked with palatable products of his dairy, the old stand by of your true Swiss. At a distance of a stone's throw, just accross the road, is the church and district school. His physical and spiritual wants thus bounteously provided for, Abe can afford to rest and drink cider. (Here the band quits and is clamoring for cider too.)
