Seventeen gatemen at the Lewis and Clark fair grounds were let out Tuesday for "knocking down." The turnstiles register every person that passes through the gates, but it is said that the admission men would often tear two coupons from the commutation tickets, when holders were not observant. These they would drop in the box instead of the 50 cent and 25-cent cash tickets. Most of the employes discharged are school boys, having secured work at the exposition during their vacation.

The post-office department is going after the souvenir postal card fad. Orders have been received to stop all such cards which are offensive to decency and good taste. There are plenty of these good taste. There are plenty of these cards which are not generally regarded as indecent and are no worse than many pictures in illustrated weeklies, but ing suits will not reach their addresses, nor will pictures of red devils accompanied by the legend, "I'm having a devil of a time."

Reports from New York and California indicate partial failure of the crop in those states and the yield in the United States as a whole will be lower than for years. The Oregon growers have things in their to hold their hops." Mr. Krebs estimates the Oregon yield for 1905 at about 85,000 bales, which is a little less than last year's yield.

The postoffice department has made a new ruling on mail matter addressd to patrons on rural routes which will be of great benefit in this country when the reorganization of the system goes into effect this fall. Under the new ruling postmasters are allowed to forward papers as well as mail matter from one office to another where the person addressed is on a rural route. In the many changes from one postoffice to another that will result when the new routes are established it will require several months for the patrons to have their mail properly addressed, and while there will necessarily be delays, mail of every character will finally reach the party to whom it was addressed.

Crop Report.

Light Showers occurred during the fore part of the week in the lower portion of the Willamette valley and in the northern coast counties. Elsewhere throughout the state dry weather prevailed. The temperature in Western Oregon averaged about normal, while the weather east of the Cascades was slightly cooler than usual, especially at night.

The rain somewhat revived vegetation, but as a whole the amounts were too small to do much good, and gardens, corn, potatoes and pastures are suffering for want of moisture.

Grain is about all cut and in the stack. Thrashing continues in all sections. The yields in the Willamette valley continge dissappointing, but in the Columbia and the Grand Ronde valleys the returns are very gratifying. Hops are making seasonal progress, and where spraying was thoroughly done the lice have about disappeared. Corn is earing and filling nicely and a good crop is indicated. Stock continues to lose flesh,

Plums and some varieties of prunes are ripe and being gathered. The yield of most fruits will fall below the average, both in quantity and size. Appearance and pears are small and dropping more and pears are small and plentiful and
