Oregon is the Beaver State, just remember that.

What this country needs is better roads, and "Good Roads" should be the cry from now on.

Charles V. Galloway, of McMinnville, has announced himself a democratic candidate for congress in the First district. This is the way the congressional situation stands at present in this district: Republican—W. C. Hawley of Salem, S. B. Huston of Hillsboro, and W. L. Toose of Woodburn. Democrat—P. A. Cochran of Woodburn, and C. V. Galloway, of McMinnville.

For the information of a number of our subscribers in this county who formerly lived in Columbia county, Wisconsin, we will state that the town of Fall River now boasts of an up-to-date newspaper. It is published by L. H. Doyle, formerly of the Rio, Wis. Reporter, and if the people of Fall River will back him up he will give them one of the best papers in the county. He is doing it now, and the business men are showing by their patronage that they fully appreciate a good thing. The new paper is called the New Era.

Judge Cleland, of Portland, last Monday rendered a decision, in the suit of Mahlon T. Runyon against Jennie Winstock, William McFarland, Samuel McFarland and George McFarland, children of plaintiff's wife, Sarah J. Runyon, by a former husband, that the separate or individual property of a wife can be transferred by her by deed without the signature of her husband, and thus deprive him of his curtesy in the same after her death. Mrs. Runyon died last March, and prior to her death, deeded all her property away.

Every newspaper man in attendance at the Press Association meeting last week is under obligations to the O. R. & N. and S. P. Ry management for favors granted them, and every mother's son of them, and the women too, have a warm spot in their hearts for R. H. Hall, who is at the head of the advertising department of the allied roads in Oregon. He made the best off-hand speech of the session, told of the beautiful scenery in Oregon, unsurpassed by any in the world, and advised the members of the press to use more space in their columns in telling of the wonderful products of the soil. Mr. Hall is not a great orator, but he is earnest and enthusiastic, confines himself strictly to the truth and is dead in love with Oregon.

No such meetings have ever before been held in Oregon as those of the Development League and the Press Association which occupied Friday and Saturday of last week in Portland. Many instructive and interesting papers were read, and many magnificent speeches were made by men who are devoting their time and energies in telling of what Oregon really is and the great state she is bound to become. We wish we had the room to print all that was said and done at those joint meetings, but that is impossible. The good results will be noticed as the months go by, and thousands upon thousands of people will come to this, the best country on earth, as a result of what was done at those joint meetings.

Newberg Graphic: Hon. S. B. Huston, of Hillsboro, republican candidate for congress, was in town last Monday day getting acquainted with the people. Mr. Huston was born and grew to manhood at New Philadelphia, a little village in Washington county, Indiana, one of the way stations of the "Morgan raid" during the war, and although he was a small boy at the time, he has a very vivid recollection of how his hair stood up at the sight of the "rebel band," when they entered the village, and he can tell a very interesting story in connection with those troublous times. In this county Mr. Huston is quite well known, he stands well with the people and the outlook seems favorable for his carrying the county by a good majority at the primary election. He expressed himself as being quite confident of the final outcome of the three-cornered contest for the nomination.

From now on and forevermore it will be against the interests of this great state of Oregon, when speaking of the country, writing to your friends, or for the newspapers to use the terms "Webfoot," "Mossback," or "Cow Counties." A resolution to this effect was unanimously adopted at a joint meeting of the Oregon Development League and the Oregon Press Association held in Portland last Saturday. It is a fact that the term "Webfoot," as it has been used for years both inside and outside the state has done much to keep people away from Oregon, for some people in the East really believe that this country is so wet that a three years' residence here makes our residences grow web-footed, like a duck. And the word "mossback" means to some of the Easterners that the people of Oregon are so confounded lazy that moss grows on their backs as well as on fences and roofs of dwellings. The fact is that Oregon has less rainfall than any of the Eastern states, while at all seasons of the year, with the exception of that known as the "rainy" season, the weather is really fine, and there is no country in the world more healthful, or where there are better opportunities for a man who is willing to work to make a living and a home. But there is no room in this country for drones or the man who is not willing to spit on his hands and pull with the rest.

Sherwood.

Regular Correspondent. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gacharra, January 11, 1906, a son.

Married, Tuesday January 9, Miss Annie Schroder, sister of Mrs. J. J. Sax to Mr. Frank Creation, of Vancouver, B. C. The Sherwood tin-pan and dynamite contingent paid their respects in the usual manner Monday night but learned to their chagrin that the wedding ceremony did not occur until Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Both the contracting parties are zealous "Dowdies" and were married by a minister of that denomination, who came out from Portland for the special purpose.

A vacancy will shortly occur in the recently elected town council, Jack Morback, one of the elect having decided to lease his property here and engage in business down on the Columbia river soon.

The public roads leading into the town of Sherwood, at the present time of the year have become almost impassible in places, especially the highways to the north, near Langer's. A portion of the road was graveled during the summer, the balance, well, try it and "keep mum."

Wilbur Ashpole, a cattle dealer and nephew of Charles Ashpole of Middleton, arrived here Saturday on a business trip and on a visit to relatives in this locality. His home town is Medford, on the S. P. R. R.

Grover Hagge contemplates the erection of a new dwelling house on his lots in town for renting purposes, as soon as the material can be obtained from the sawmills.

Matt Baker, the hop buyer picked up a number of small lots of hops in this vicinity during the week at correspondingly small prices calculated to discourage the gloomy hop-raiser.

Wellington Eby, a recently married benedict residing in the foothills above Middleton, has erected on his place the neatest, coziest cottage that can be found in the county, and all his own handiwork.

He Wants to Know.

Mr. Jonathan Bourne of Portland, appears to be extremely interested in the direct primary law, and is sending return postal cards and circulars to people in every corner of the state. Mr. Bourne wants everybody to let him know their sentiments in this matter, and he is especially anxious that the people should pledge themselves to him not to vote for any candidate for representative who does not pledge himself to vote for the candidate for United States senator who receives a plurality of the popular vote at the June election. No doubt Mr. Bourne is animated in all this trouble and expenditure by the purest and most unselfish motives. Our recollection of Jonathan goes back to the famous hold up legislature, when his activity cost the State of Oregon over $200,000, and all because Senator Mitchell had refused to make Bourne speaker of the house of representatives.

Mr. Bourne leased the Eldredge block in Salem, and made it the headquarters for the holdup members of the legislature. He kept open house and wine and women were his great cards. It was one of the most disgraceful episodes in Oregon's political history and brought dishonor upon the state's name throughout the country.

Mr. Bourne is a man of great energy and appears to have abundant means. It is well known that he is a candidate for the office of United States senator, and his present apparent interest in the direct primary law is probably for the purpose of getting his name before the voters in a favorable light. So far as respect for the law is concerned it will not be the man who refused to take part in the organization of the legislature to which he was elected. One provision of the primary law is that the candidate will accept and discharge the duties of the office to which he may be elected. Mr. Bourne was elected representative, but he was the head of a conspiracy to nullify the result of the election. All this from personal pique and spite because, as he alleged, a politician failed to keep his word.—Oregonist.

We have read in one of our exchanges that one of Dowie's converts who was owing his local paper $7.00 and who never intended to pay the same, like some of our readers, finally found himself so honest that he could not endure the thought of that old account. So he sent the money and $2.00 interest to the worthy editor. All we have to say about the above story is that that man that can work a miracle like that with his converts ought to have a cushioned front seat in the Kingdom of Heaven.

A Washington, D. C., dispatch of the 17th says that Congressman Hermann was in his seat Tuesday and voted for the first time, and voted with the majority on the Philippine tariff bill. He introduced a bill providing for the granting of pensions to certain members of the life saving service and their widows and children. He also introduced a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote. Hermann is not disturbed by an indictment or two, and proposes to let congress know that he is not a dead duck yet.
