"I do not see why Perry was not arrested," declared Mrs. Snyder last night, "The officers certainly have evidence sufficient to hold him. Rogers, whom I think to have been regular one implicated with Perry in the robbery and murder, I saw but once, and while I think I could identify him, there is of course a possibility of a mistake in such a matter. Who he is I do not know. He is supposed to have come from Kansas City shortly before the robbery. The small interest the bank officials take in causing the arrest of Perry might lead one to suspect that this man Rogers was one of the owners of the bank. "The letter I received saying that the name of this mysterious third man is Ellis and not Rogers, and that the writer can prove his part in the crime, has never been investigated by the Oregon officials to my knowledge. The extent of their interest in it seems to have been to advise R. M. Snyder to keep a lookout one Dollar will The letter was written, apparently, by someone in Portland. My theory is that a woman with whom Rogers, or Ellis, or whatever his name is, had had a quarrel wrote it. I cannot think anyone would write such a letter without having some knowledge of the case. Surely no one would implicate a person in such a serious crime without some foundation. Yes, the letter was evidently written by a woman;
