The Inquisitive Barber.
No doubt many readers have heard of the austere disposition of America's greatest living actor, Richard Mansfield. Perhaps the following conversation, which took place in one of Boston's leading hotels, better illustrates the satirical nature of the player. Entering the barber's shop one morning, he was immediately recognized as Richard Mansfield by the barber.
"Good morning," said the barber affably.
A grunt was the only reply.
"Well, how was things over at the house last night?"
"What house?" answered the actor ironically.
"The Hollis," said the barber.
"What do you mean, sir?"
"Why, are you not Richard Mansfield?" the barber asked.
"Oh, no, indeed," replied Mr. Mansfield. "I just got out of jail this morning."
"What! You're not Richard Mansfield; and you just got out of jail this morning! What for, pray?"
"For assaulting inquisitive barbers," was the response.

Rip's "Village of Falling Water," Palenville, lies at the base of old High Peak, in the Catskills, and from the summit, looking far out over a field of fleecy, cloud-tipped peaks, the gilded dome of the capitol at Albany tenses back the sparkling sunlight which glistens in the silvery Hudson below as though seeking to detain it in its mad onward rush to the pathless sea.

Side by side on the southern border of this forest mountainland, rising over 4,000 feet out of the valley beneath, stand as sturdy, silent sentinels Round Top and High Peak—the latter so graphically described by Cooper's Leatherstocking in "The Pioneers." Halfway up the northern slope of these twin guardians, from the rustic veranda of one of the artistic mountain homes within the confines of the restricted residential districts of Sunset, Santa Cruz and Twilight parks, looking out over thick branching tree tops, nature's color scheme presents a never-changing change. Beginning with early morn, looking eastward through the cove across the valley of the Hudson to where the sun gradually wheels his broad disk up from behind the bold sky-line of the Berkshire Hills of Western Massachusetts, and throughout the midday, when the picturesque play of thick cumulous clouds presents unceasing attraction, as their softening shades silently creep from peak to peak, until, at fading eve, out through the gloom westward appear silhouetted against the sky, massive banks of bluing fires, a dazzling prelude to the mellow afterglow of the declining and as he passes out over the threshold of another day.—Four-Track News.

Mrs. Windfall—Just imagine, Hiram! One of the sailors told me that his boat is now in communication with her sister ship! I wonder what the conversation is about? Mr. Windfall—Humph! Most likely each is asking the other if her cargo is on straight.—Puck.

"I presume, sir," began the young man, timidly, "that you will consider it very presumptuous for a fifty-dollar railroad clerk to apply for your daughter's hand in marriage." "Not at all, my boy," responded Senator Slickguy, kindly. "I dare say your side grafts are quite remunerative."
"Don't you object to your husband's poker playing?" "Goodness, no! I like it. You see he always plays with Mr. Jones, and Mrs. Jones and I are friends. If Mr. Jones wins she takes the money away from him and divides with me. If my husband wins I divide with her."—Cleveland Leader.

What's In a Name?—An Irish soldier in a local regiment during the late war arrived at camp late one night. He was challenged by the usual, "Who goes there? After pondering a few moments, and the challenge being repeated, he answered, "Kitchener." He was immediately knocked down with the butt end of a rifle. While he lay on the ground ruefully rubbing his head, the sentry exclaimed: "Why, it's Kitchener! What did ye say it was Kitchener for?" "Shure," came the answer, "when ye would do this to Kitchener, phwat would ye do to Callaghan?"

EXPLORATIONS OF PIKE.

They Had Political Consequences Not Foreseen in That Time.
General Zebulon Pike's explorations of 1806-1807 had political consequences which neither Pike nor anybody else in his day could foresee, says the review of Reviews. Although he was well treated by the Spaniards, his capture by them intensified the desire of American, especially in the west, to drive Spanish out of Mexico. Written in 1808 and published in 1810, his report pointed out the wealth of Mexico's natural resources, showed the weakness of Spain's hold on that country, and urged her expulsion by an American army if Bonaparte should seize the Spanish throne, which Bonaparte did while Pike was writing, and held it for six years.

Pike's report sent Magee, Kemper, Long, and other adventurers from our side of the line over into Texas and other parts of Mexico. More important still, it incited Moses Austin to get from Ferdinand VII's representatives in 1820 permission to establish a colony of Americans in Texas, which his son, Stephen F. Austin, planted there in 1822. When the Mexicans soon afterward drove Spain out of the territory the race contest with the Americans began, which culminated in Sam Houston's victory over Santa Anna at San Jacinto in 1836, and the establishment of the Texas republic.

By the annexation of Texas in 1845 the United States inherited Texas' boundary dispute with Mexico, and this led to the war of 1846-1848, which, through conquest and purchase, placed the stars and stripes over the present New Mexico, Arizona (except that part below the Gila, which Gadsden bought in 1853), California, Nevada, Utah, and parts of Colorado and Wyoming, and pushed our territory in the southwestward to the Pacific. While the American and Mexican commissioners were fixing up their peace pact at Guadalupe Hidalgo in the opening days of 1848, James W. Wadsworth made his gold discovery in the ravenous fork of Sutter's mill, on the American fork of the Sacramento, which made California knock for admission as a state before the politicians had time to organize it as a territory, incited the search which led to the gold and silver strikes in other parts of the West, and swung the country's center of political gravity far toward the sunset.

Heat Rash or Picky Heat.
Heat Rash or Picky Heat.—This is an inflammation of the sweat glands and appears as small papules or vesicles more or less thickly set, attended by burning or prickling sensations. It appears suddenly and without fever or other general symptoms. The causes are two-fold—digestive disturbances—often very slight—and heat. The treatment and management hinge upon the cause. Too active treatment may do more harm than good. If any medicine is given, it should be acid and lemon juice is one of the best. It should be well diluted with water and given at a time when it will not interfere with the food or milk. If a child is debilitated, pale and thin, tonics may be required before recovery is complete. The food should be of the proper character and its digestion rendered as perfect as possible. If there is constipation, Rochelle salts should be given at the outset.

Hay Fever.
Hay Fever.—The disorder known as hay fever, while not dangerous, is extremely uncomfortable. It resembles a violent catarrh, although it excites the eyes and tear glands rather than the nasal membrane. Some authorities attribute the trouble to hay, others to the pollen of certain flowers—notably the golden rod—a third group to tricky nerves and a fourth to emanations from mice, rabbits or other animals. Owing to the wide diversity of opinion about the cause, there is no uniformity in the methods of treatment. Here are a few of the remedies: Local bleeding, aperients, quinine, tonics, iron, opium, mercury, digitalis, cocaine, menthol, ammonia vapors and sprays, besides medicinal treatment for conjunctivitis, rhinitis and headache. It is doubtful, however, if any lasting results are obtained with these things.

Comfort at Any Cost.
The ways of the newly rich continue to afford amusement, both to those not yet rich and those who have long been so. There is a good story, says Mrs. John Lane, in a recent essay, which is an addition to the general fund of such humor.

A certain magnate was giving a dinner. After the ladies returned to the drawing-room the hostess, tinkling and glittering in a great tufted chair and shivered slightly. A footman went in search of her maid.
"Francoise," said the magnate's lady with languid magnificence, "I feel chilly; bring me another diamond necklace."
"The Best Way." "I was just wondering," said May, shortly after her marriage to December.
"Wondering what?"
"Whether it is easier to break a man's will before or after his death."
"Better do it before and save the lawyer's rakeoff."—Houston Post.

Bookkeeping.
Secretary—Under what head shall I put down the cost of the operation performed on the baroness?
Baron—General repairs.—Translated for Tales from Simplicissimus.

Nearly all Americans are poor talkers. Think it over—do you meet an interesting talker once a month? Are you not bored every hour of the day by poor talkers?

SKIN DISEASES

There is nothing more distressing than an itching, burning skin disease, and upon the return of warm weather those who are afflicted with skin troubles find the symptoms appearing and know that they will be tormented through the hot summer months. The blood is heated with humors and acrid matter, and as they are forced to the surface the skin seems to be on fire. The treatment of skin diseases with external applications is all wrong, because they do not reach the trouble which is in the blood. The most such treatment can be expected to do is, allay the itching and burning and cover up the trouble for awhile, but as soon as it is left off the disease returns.

All food taken into the body contains, in some form, the elements necessary to sustain the different parts. One portion is used for the making of blood, another for muscle, one for bone, still another for fat, and so on. After these different properties are extracted from the food there still remains a portion that is useless, or waste matter, which is intended to be disposed of through the natural channels of bodily waste, the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. At this season of the year, however, these organs become torpid, dull and sluggish, and fail to perform this duty, and these accumulations remain in the system and are absorbed by the blood to ferment and sour, producing burning acids and acrid humors. The blood cannot properly nourish the system while in this impure condition, and begins to throw off these acids through the pores and glands of the skin, producing Acne, Eczema, Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum and skin diseases of every description.

ECZEMA appears usually with a slight redness of the skin, followed by pustules from which there flows a sticky fluid that dries and forms a crust, and the itching is intense. It is generally on the back, breast, arms, legs and face, though other parts of the body may be afflicted. In TETTER the skin dries, cracks and bleeds, and is often very painful. The acid in the blood dries up the natural oils of the skin, causing a dry, feverish, hardened condition and giving it a leathery appearance. ACNE makes its appearance on the face in the form of pimples and black-heads, and is particularly disagreeable because of its unsightly appearance, while PSORIASIS, a scaly disease, comes in patches on different parts of the body. One of the worst forms of skin disease is SALT RHEUM. It discharges a watery fluid, forming sores and producing intense itching. The head and face are the parts usually affected, and sometimes the hair falls out and a mass of sores forms on the scalp.

These and all skin diseases are due to the same cause—burning acids and humors in the blood, and until this vital fluid is cleansed and made pure they will continue. The best treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S., a remedy that is purely vegetable, being made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, and acts directly on the blood with a cleansing, healing effect. It neutralizes the acids and purifies the blood so that the skin, instead of being blistered and burned by the fiery fluids, is nourished by a supply of cooling, healthy blood. It goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of waste or foreign matter, builds up the blood and cures all skin diseases promptly and permanently. S. S. S. does not leave the least particle of the poison for future outbreaks, but entirely rids the blood of the cause for all skin diseases.

S. S. S. tones up the system and regulates the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels so that they will carry off the natural waste and refuse matter through the proper channels, instead of leaving it to be absorbed by the blood. Nothing equals S. S. S. in the treatment of these troubles and for building up the general health. Write for our treatise on skin diseases and any medical advice you wish. We make no charge for either.
