

With Apologies.
How dear to my heart are the pants of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents them to view;
Pants that I wore in the deep tangled wildwood
And likewise the grove where the crab-apples grew.
The pockets that bulged with my luncheon for noon;
And also with marbles and fishworms and matches,
And gum drops and kite strings from March until June.
The little patched trousers,
The made-over trousers,
The high-water trousers that fit me to soon.
No pantaloons ever performed greater service
In filling the hearts of us youngsters with joy;
They made the descent from Adolphus to Jervis,
Right down through a family of eight little boys.
Through no fault of mine known to me or to others
I'm the tenderest branch on our big family tree,
And having done service for nine older brothers,
They came down to me slightly bagged at the knee.
The little patched trousers,
The second-hand trousers,
The old family trousers that bagged at the knee.

A subscriber once received a dun through the post office, and it made him mad. He went to see the editor about it, and the editor showed him a few duns of his own—one for paper, one for type, one for fuel and several others. "Now," said the editor, "I didn't get mad when these came because I knew that all I had to do was to ask several reliable gentlemen like you to come and help me out, and then I could settle all of them." When the subscriber saw how it was he relented, paid up, and renewed for another year.—Ex.

The food law is apt to have great and important bearings on the grocery trade. It goes into effect on the first day of January. Adulterated foods are not permitted, unless the label confesses to the adulteration. No harmful substances are permissible. Goods bought prior to January 1 will not be considered in the enforcement of the law immediately. The guarantee is of great importance to the retailer, and we opine that it will be no less important to the manufacturer. Manufacturers who will register their guarantees at Washington, D. C., with the department can thereby place a general guarantee on all their goods. Probably this will be the ultimate method used by manufacturers, although they will not do so for some time, save in a few cases. Many tests will have to be made before the best way is fully chosen.—Oregon Tradesman.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bailey has just completed his report on the dairy industry of the state, covering statistics for the year 1905. The record shows that Oregon is making substantial advancement. There are 287 creameries in the state, which turned out a product of 6,750,000 pounds of butter last year, valued at $1,687,000, an increase of 40 per cent over the previous year. The output of dairy butter is placed at 3,000,000 pounds, valued at $540,000. The state is making a record in the manufacture of cheese, having 124 factories, which turned out a product of 4,000,000 pounds last year, valued at $440,000. Dairying is gaining steadily in the Pacific Northwest, and both Oregon and Washington promise to rank among the leading producers in this important branch in agriculture.

Not the First to Make the Trip.
George H. Hines, assistant secretary of the Oregon Historical Society writes as follows to the Journal:
"I noticed in your paper a day or so since a statement that Mrs. Vilinda E. Houston, a pioneer of 1852, who recently died in one of the hospitals of this city, 'was the first white girl who ever made the trip over the falls of the Cascades.'" Other city papers have referred to this deceased lady as being the "first white child to cross the Cascade mountains. In either case these statements cannot be sustained by the facts. Immigration down the Columbia river and over the Cascade rapids began as early as 1843, and continued for several years, and I personally know a number of pioneer women—then children—who came over in canoes. Immigration over the Barlow road, just south of Mount Hood, began in 1846; but in 1845, a number of families, including children of both sexes, came over the trail, afterwards converted into a wagon road. And before 1842 thousands of pioneers came the same way, among them many children of both sexes. These statements can be amply supported by the records."

A Year of Blood.
The year of 1905 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tackett's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me at death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has proven permanently cured." The Salem Journal says: "Hamlin Smith, member of the Salem Board of Education, has returned from an extended tour of Eastern Oregon, and says that country was hit hard by crop failure the past season. Six bushels of shrivelled wheat to the acre is about the limit in Wasco, Sherman, Gilham and Crook counties. In the latter county some parts have done better than that, but the average on all the dry farming is very low—some almost nothing. Wherever they had water the irrigated lands turned off big crops. We went to Biggs on the O. R. & N., and then 75 miles to Shaniko on the Columbia Southern, then 65 miles by stage and buggy to Prineville. We found crops poor in Wasco, and as near a failure as possible and still have anything in Sherman county. We found better crops in part of Crook county. Irrigated tracts on Trout creek, Hay creek and Crooked river turned off big yields. Taken as a whole the country is at a standstill. They are going to begin seeding now with the shrivelled wheat, believing it will make a crop. The range is gone, except for a little fine grass in the spring. The whole country is barren except where they can get water on it, and that is impossible on the high rolling hills. The Dalles Military Road Road land grant has been the greatest drawback to the country. No one can get title to land, and many of those who opened farms and thought they had title have lost their lands. It is hard to tell what will become of the country. It all depends on the result of the next crop. If the seed catches and the season is favorable, the farmers may pull out. All the country is fit for wheat with dry farming."

Made Happy for Life.
Great happiness came into the home of S. C. Blair, school superintendent, of St. Albans, Vt., when his little daughter was restored from the dread complaint he carries. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' Dance, which yielded to no treatment but grew steadily worse until as a last resort we tried Electric Bitters; and I rejoice to say, three bottles effected a complete cure." Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, female weaknesses, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by all drug stores. Price 50c.
