ARE LOOKING TOWARD OREGON

WRITE TO SOME OF THEM.

T. B. Wilcox of the Oregon Development League Says People Are Coming by Thousands.

The following from T. B. Wilcox president of the Oregon Development League, appeared in the Oregonian of Saturday last, and proves that thousands of Eastern people are looking toward Oregon. Again we request our readers to write to some of the persons named below who are asking for information about this state. Tell them all about Washington county and Hillsboro, the county seat. If each subscriber to this paper will write only one letter it will be the means of doing much good:

"Never at any time since the great initial meeting held at the Marquam Grand Theater August 2 and 3, 1904, when thoroughly representative men from all portions of the state were present, has the Oregon Development League been so active as at present. Thousands of inquiries are being received from all sections of the United States and a large majority of these are from farmers, as is evidenced by the fact that they get their mail through the rural free delivery, and, what is still more convincing, the tenor of the letters themselves—they are devoted almost entirely to general farming, dairying, horticulture and stock raising.

"Inquiries are coming relative to the largest of lands, the possibilities of irrigation in Oregon are being sought, while many desire to buy improved farms on account of advantageous change of climate.

"During the present week 2150 has been spent in postage and from work already laid out for the next few weeks in January the postage bill will reach $300.

"The most gratifying, however, of all news comes from many of the sixty-three organizations which compose the Oregon Development League and to whom the name and address of every inquirer is being forwarded.

"Dr. M. E. Ellis, president of the Albany Commercial Club, advises that his county literature is going to every address. Similar information comes from H. L. Bann, president of the Junction City Development League; President Henry S. Thielens, of the Salem Commercial Club; the Irrigation Fruit Company, through President Miles and Secretary Kicker, gives a similar report; Judge Thomas F. Ryan, secretary of the Oregon City Board of Trade, is personally conducting the correspondence. Hood River is being heard from, and the same is true of Dayton, Corvallis, Klamath Falls, Coos Bay, Eugene and many others.

"This literature giving facts about Oregon is going to the farmers at a time when they will have a chance to read it. Repeatedly more than half the states in the Union have been represented in the mail in a single delivery. In the work of the central office at Portland it has been necessary to add during the present great rush three additional people.

"Letters about Oregon describing the state in general and going into details about our principal resources have appeared in hundreds of the best country weeklies of the United States, papers which are thoroughly read in the homes of just such families as we want to add to the population of Oregon.

"I would just like to urge the people of this state, through their commercial and industrial organizations, to double up their work during the month of January, for it is at that time of the year when the delightful climate of Oregon furnishes such a splendid comparison with the other sections of the Middle West and northern portions of the United States."

E. B. TONGUE WINS AGAIN

WITH OREGON KID.

Finished the Six-Mile Course in the Very Fast Time of Nineteen Minutes.

In one of the fastest races given by the Portland Hunt club in many a day, E. B. Tongue on Oregon Kid won the second of the paper chases this morning. Mr. Tongue was the winner of the chase Thanksgiving day, when he won by a neck in a hard drive in 25 minutes. This morning six minutes were clipped from the November time, the race being completed over the six-mile course in 19 minutes.

The course raced over this morning was laid out by Mrs. F. G. Bufum and James Nichol, and the excellent time made is due in great part to the judgment used by the latter in selecting the route. Right jumps were included in the course.

The racers were started by T. S. McGath and the time is considered remarkable in view of the muddy course and heavy going. The judge at the finish was E. R. Eldridge. The chase started at 10:35 o'clock and was completed at 11:14. A large number of spectators were present to cheer the winner, who was followed closely by J. C. Muebe on Barnato and J. W. Chapman, who finished third on Call Boy.

The riders numbered an even dozen and with their mounts included Dr. Drake on Top Box, Frank Robertson on Wallace L. F. O. Downing on Tom, T. T. Stran on Antipoke, J. W. Chapman on Call Boy, J. C. Muebe on Barnato, Dr. Wood on Byphurnus, R. H. Jenkins on Mowitz, W. M. Davis on Spiny, Frank Wilder on Qua T. E. B. Tongue on Oregon Kid and F. W. Leadbetter on Rockefeller.—Telegram, Jan. 1.

Popped Corn and Nut Candy.
Take a tablespoonful of butter, three of water and one cupful of maple sugar; boil until it is ready to candy, and then add three quarts of nicely popped corn. Stir briskly until the mixture is evenly distributed over the corn. Keep up the stirring until it cools, when each kernel will be separately coated. Close and undivided attention may be necessary to the success of this kind of candy. Nuts are delicious prepared by this method.

Baltimore Sweet Potato Pie.
Peel and cut in quarter-inch slices a quart of sweet potatoes. Cook until tender with one pint very strong ginger tea, a general cup butter, three cups of sugar and plenty of lemon peel. Stew gently so that the slices will not break. Line a deep pie plate with a rather thick crust, fill with the potatoes and their sirup to within an inch of the top, then cover with a crust with a cross cut in the center. Turn back each corner of the crust and bake with a moderate heat until the pastry is done. Ten minutes before serving pour through the hole in the top a wine sauce made by creaming together one cup butter, two cups sugar and the juice of a lemon beaten in a little at a time. Set the mixture over boiling water and beat in gradually one cup sweet wine. Stir vigorously to prevent the butter separating from the rest of the ingredients.

Upon the occasion of her rooth birthday, Mrs. Osler, wife of the celebrated Dr. Osler, gave to each of her ninety-six descendants a spoon—a large size to the first generation an intermediate size for the second generation and a wee spoon for the little ones of the third generation. The handle is a Cornish cross with the motto, "One and all." Above the date is the name "Ellen Tree Osler."

It has long been known that people who live together for a long time, if congenial, grow to look alike, but it has remained for a London writing expert to discover that husband and wife not only grow to look alike but after awhile they begin to write the same hand. So let the man beware whose wife writes the long Italian hand that covers half a page, because it may be only a question of time until he will be doing the same thing.

Letter to Mother in Ohio.

From the Portland Telegram.

There is a prisoner serving a six months' sentence at Kelley Butte who should have been a jokewriter instead of a petty thief. Had he applied himself to literature rather than to sleight-of-hand trick, he would no doubt have become a rival of Mark Twain and Mr. Dooley.

Letters written by prisoners at the Butte are, like epistles penned by the inmates of other jails, read before being sent out. This action is taken by the guards to prevent any plotting or the giving of information that might tend to aid uncaptured criminal to escape.

The other day, when one of the rockbreakers handed Chief Guard Briggs a letter to mail, Briggs had to stop several times to laugh. The prisoner was sentenced by Municipal Judge Cameron to serve six months at Kelley Butte. He signed the name of Brown to the letter, but gave the Judge a different cognomen, Briggs asked and got permission to copy the epistle. It follows.

Kelly Villa, Portland, Ore.
Dear Mama: I am sorry I did not inform you of coming on the Pacific Coast, but it was business that brought me out here. I shall return at my earliest convenience, which may be in May or June, or as soon as I get through with my work.

The firm I am with has a large number of men at work and are doing a heavy business. I think that in the course of a few months' hard work I can make the "bit" and have everything come out satisfactory. Just at present everything seems to be running in hard luck and my work is unpleasant and confining, but I hope to make good out here.

The syndicate I am operating for is the largest and strongest of the kind in the West, and I would not like to see it lose, for it means several thousand dollars for my backers, who are C. H. Marsh, of New York; Count Royal, of British Columbia; Prince Eugene, of Chicago; Chief Justice A. S. Briggs, of Kelly Butte; Judge Cameron and Judge Webster, of Portland.

Judge Webster and Judge Cameron are heavily interested in this syndicate, and are its local managers. They insist that no stone be left unturned, as it were. This latter fact is making a great deal of unnecessary work, as it seems to me. But I am in such a position at present that I do not feel it my duty to dictate.

If any telegrams come for me, hold them until I write you again, which will be soon. Give regards to all and love to my wife, and keep some for yourself. Tell my wife not to worry. I have always tried to impress that upon her mind. Tell her I am still with the syndicate and expect to stay with it for some time, as it is a strong one.

Don't answer until I write again.
Yours with love,
E. T. D. Brown.

The letter was addressed to Mrs. Brown, who resides in a little Ohio town. She will perhaps show her neighbors and friends the letter from her boy out in Oregon, and all will be glad to know that he has secured such a good position with a big syndicate out West.

FRANK BAKER IS DEAD

WAS TAKEN ILL ON CHRISTMAS

Bright's Disease With Complications Was the Cause of Death—Well Known Politician.

Frank C. Baker, former State Printer, ex-chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and prominent politician, died Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock at his residence, Glisan and Twenty-fourth streets, Portland. He had been suffering from abscess of the inner ear, which was complicated by other ailments, and during the past week his heart action was bad. Dr. Clarence Nichols, who had been attending the patient, applied stimulants all day Tuesday, but in the night Mr. Baker grew worse and died a few minutes after the physician arrived.

For twenty years Mr. Baker had been in the politics of the state. He served two terms as state printer and since his incumbency directed several political campaigns. He retired last year as chairman of the state organization. He was always a republican and when the party in Multnomah county split into factions, he allied himself with the Mitchell wing. Up to within a few months ago he was an applicant for United States Collector of Customs.

Since his retirement he has resided in Portland, engaging in the commission business. He made a fortune from the state printing office and invested it to advantage, so that he leaves a large estate. Mr. Baker's judgment on politics was noted throughout Oregon, since at every election he laid heavy wagers on the result and rarely was mistaken in the outcome. He was the son of W. W. Baker, formerly state food commissioner and publisher of the Rural Spirit, on which paper deceased worked for many years.

Mr. Baker was one of the best-known printers in the state and was instrumental in organizing the first typographical union in Oregon. His policy was to pay the highest wages to his employees in the state printing office and he recognized that it was through the loyal support of his fellow journeymen at the case that he was originally elected and placed on the road to wealth and prominence.

Mr. Baker was born in Washington county in 1854. His parents emigrated to Oregon in 1853, remaining in Portland until 1865. In the latter year they moved to La Grande, Union county, where at the age of 14, Frank began his printing career with E. S. McComas, on the Mountain Sentinel. After receiving his card as journeyman printer he went to Baker City, where he worked on the Herald, under Dr.

Heroine's Long Delayed Reward.

(Chicago Inter Ocean.)

Upon the publication of Mrs. Eva Emery Dye's graphic narrative of the expedition of Lewis and Clark to the Pacific Coast the Inter-Ocean editorially directed attention to the services of Sacajewea, the heroine of that famous exploration, and suggested that she should be enrolled among the nation's notable women. It was further suggested that the women of the country should erect a statue to the Indian woman at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, the starting point of the expedition of 1804.

It now appears that the suggestion of the Inter-Ocean has been taken up in far away Oregon. Portland is to hold in 1905 a Lewis and Clark Centennial in celebration of the Centenary of the first crossing of the continent. The women of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and the Dakotas have taken up the project of erecting a memorial to Sacajewea suitable to the occasion. It is proposed to erect a statue to cost about $6000. It has been thought fitting that the sculptor should be a woman and a Westerner, and Miss Alice Cooper, of Colorado, has been suggested.

Readers who are familiar with that great American classic, the Journal of Lewis and Clark, or who have enjoyed "The Conquest," will remember Sacajewea and her services to the explorers. Lewis and Clark found her in their winter camp among the Mandans. She was a captive Shoshone girl of 16, and the slave wife of a French half-breed interpreter. She would have died in childbirth had it not been for the aid of the explorers. In the spring she and husband and baby went West with the party.

When the explorers had abandoned their canoes and were approaching the Gates of the Mountains they stood face to face with failure, because of the lack of horses. It was Sacajewea who pacified the Shoshones, obtained horses, and smoothed the way through the Flatheads and the Nez Perces. Passing over her many services during the winter spent at the mouth of the Columbia, it was Sacajewea who guided the party on the return trip. She seemed to have the instinct of the homing pigeon, and time and again found the way out of the wilderness.

Sacajewea understood the importance of the expedition, and was in earnest for its success as were its leaders. Her services were great, if she was not the salvation of Lewis and Clark. Yet, when and where she died is not known, and no stone marks her resting place.

The importance of the expedition of Lewis and Clark is brought strikingly to the mind by the fact that the wilderness through which Sacajewea guided them two years ago is now thickly studded with flourishing cities that propose to erect a statue to their guide.

The above is re-published for the information of quite a number of Eastern friends who have written to this office asking for the history of Sacajewea.—Ed.
