

Toll Road Decision Reversed.
Salem, Or., April 30.—Justice Eakin today reversed the judgment of Judge H. Burnett, holding that he committed error in sustaining a demurrer in the case of Tillamook county, appellant, against the Wilson River Road company, respondent. The court holds that the relief sought for is forfeiture of the lease; in other words, to cancel the instrument by which defendant holds title so that plaintiff may be restored to his title and possession, and that this belongs exclusively to equitable remedial jurisdiction. The suit was to annul a lease of the Wilson River Toll Road, extending from Gales Creek, Washington county, to some six miles from Tillamook City, between Tillamook county and the road company. The lease was entered into in 1901 for a period of 50 years, providing that the company repair and maintain it and that defendant hold plaintiff harmless from liability by reason of accident. Plaintiff alleged that the county court had not properly advertised for bids in the leasing of the road and that the same is unsafe and dangerous to public travel. The cause is reversed and remanded.

McClure's for May.
The May issue of McClure's Magazine is both important and pleasing. The first article is C. P. Connolly's "The Fight of the Copper Kings," in which are described in a vivid manner the struggle between F. Augustus Heinz and the Amalgamated Copper Company, the picturesque campaign of 1900 and re-election of Clarke to the Senate, and the beginnings of the great battle over the Butte Hill. "The Reminiscences of a Long Life" by Carl Schurz give his personal experiences as a general in the civil war, describe the great leaders and throw new light on many important events of the war. "Chicago As Seen by Hershel" pictures those conditions of life in Chicago that have developed as a natural result of its existent government which George Kibbe Turner described last month in "The City of Chicago." The fifth installment of Mary Baker Eddy's "Eddy" tells of the Mrs. Eddy's residence in Lynn, her first disciples and her first years of comfort and success, and of her third marriage—to Asa Gilbert Eddy.

The readers of fiction will be delighted with the May McClure's for it contains an unusual array of exceedingly good stories. "A Fight in One Round" by Michael Williams is a rugged human document, delineating the heroism and devotion of a prize fighter who quits the ring when he married and manfully fought an unequal battle against poverty and the Great White Plague which attacked his wife. In "The Gentle Robber" by Margaret Sherwood we find an absorbing allegory of certain aspects of modern life shown in the guise of the middle ages. "The Little Widow" by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, is a spirited comedy of her well known mountain community "Zenith." "The Entrance of Ezekiel" by Lucy Pratt is a tale of an amusing black boy who tells "make believe" stories. "The Gate of Seven Hundred Virgins" tells of a resurrected legend and a modern episode of the outfitting of a filibustering expedition with which three "United States" tourists had an adventure. Edward S. Pilsworth gives us in "The Elemental" a story of crude manhood that often exists under the rags and tatters of adversity. "One Way of Peace" by Paul Kester and "The Road at Night" by William Lucius Graves are thoughtful and distinctive poems.

Wonderful Eczema Cure.
"Our little boy had eczema for five years," writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. "Two of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being affected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Electric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at all drug stores. 50c.
Say girls, if your best fellow, or any other fellow, overstates his time when calling on you, spring this on him and if he don't "take a tumble" he is stupid to ever call on you again. Here it is—take any number between one and nine, add one, multiply by nine, cross out left hand figure, add fourteen, add the number you started with and then watch the young man's countenance.—Ex.
