

A Man of Many Parts.
Here is an amusing old handbill printed and circulated in Cumberland, England, early in the nineteenth century:

"I, James Williams, parish clerk, sexton, town crier and bellman, make and sell all sorts of handbills, notices, etc., likewise hair and wig dress, and cut, on the shortest notice. Also—

"N. B.—I keep an evening school, where I teach at reasonable rates, reading, writing, singing and sums.

"N. B.—I plays the hooboy occasionally, if wanted.

"N. B.—My shop is next door, where I bleed, draw teeth and shoe horses, all with greatest skill.

"N. B.—Children taught to dance, if agreeable, at six pence per week, by me, J. Williams, who buy and sell old iron and coals—shoes cleaned and mended.

"N. B.—A hat-and-mud pair of stockings to be cutdressed for, the best in 5, on Shroff Tinsbury. For particulars inquire within, or at the horse shoe and bell, near the church, on either side of the way.

"N. B.—Look over the door for the sign of the 3 pigeons.

"N. B.—I sell good ayre, and sometimes cyder—lodgings for single men."

Our Lost Sense.
One of the greatest discoveries of physiology is that we once had six senses. What the lost sense was no one knows, but that our forefathers possessed it there is no doubt, for the remains of that part of the brain in which it resided are still to be seen in any one of us. These remains are simply a small and now perfectly useless little mass of brain substance called the pituitary body. It consists of two tiny little oval lobes joined together and lying in a little cavity of the skull, strangely named the sella turcica and situated over and behind the nose. It is quite possible that it may have enabled our forefathers to see in the dark before lamps and candles were invented, or it may have placed them in communion with ghosts and fairies, or it may have been an organ that enabled them to go home in a bee line when they lost their way in the primeval forests. On the other hand, it is possible that it was a bad substitute for vision or smell or hearing and died out when the improved sense organ developed.

Mirrors as Detectives.
"It is not solely to please the lady patrons," said an interior decorator, "that mirrors so abound in shops. They serve another and more important purpose. They help detect shoplifters. If you should study the various watchmen in the employ of big retail stores you would find that they don't watch the patrons directly. They look at their reflections in the mirrors. Of course their watching done that way is unpercepted. The shoplifter glances at the watchman, sees that his back is to her and secretes a pair of silk stockings in her shirt waist. The next moment she feels an unfriendly and terrifying tap on her shoulder, and the watchman, who has caught her by the mirror's aid, bids her sternly to accompany him to the office."—New York Press.

Where the Flowers Came From.
"There was a teacher, teaching in a very poor neighborhood," said a New York settlement worker, "who received daily gifts of flowers from one of her pupils, a ragged little boy. The flowers were of all sorts, sometimes costly hothouse blooms, sometimes simple, old-fashioned garden flowers. As a rule they were somewhat faded. One day the boy brought the teacher a great bouquet of mauve orchids. To be sure, they were much wilted, but none the less it could be seen that they had once cost a great deal of money. The puzzled teacher as she took them said: 'Jimmy, where do you get all these flowers that you give me? You don't steal them, I hope?'"

"Oh, no, ma'am," the youngster answered; "father's an ash man."

Patti and the Wasp.
One of Charles Santley's most amusing experiences occurred at Brecon when he assisted Mme. Patti in giving a concert in aid of the local hospital. The prima donna appeared with Mr. Santley in a duet. The vocalists had just recommenced singing when the baritone burst out laughing and left the platform. His companion almost immediately followed, although she attempted to continue. In response to loud cheers Mme. Patti returned and said, "The cause of all this merriment is that a wasp has been trying to get into my mouth, and we could not go on."—London Tit-Bits.

Caught in the Act.
Lady Visitor—I am sorry to see you here, my young friend. You appear to have had a good education.

Convict—Well, madam, I have been through college.

Lady Visitor—Is it possible? Convict—Yes; that's the reason I'm here. They caught me as I was going through—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Caused the First Coolness.
Mr. Newlywed (reading)—Nobody ever yet saw a dead mule. Mrs. Newlywed (who is thinking of something else and not listening)—Don't you think your life insurance premiums are a waste of money, John?

The Nature of the Creature.
"Your cook?"

"Oh, she is so careless that I don't believe she could drop a remark without breaking her word."—Suart Net.

Those who are rash and precipitate seldom enjoy the favor of the gods.—Herodotus.

The grandmothers of the old Dutch Dunkard families of Western Pennsylvania have made and used "Hickory Bark Cough Remedy" and reared their families on it for a hundred years. Now you can buy it of your dealers. Ask for it, and use it, because it is pure; because it will stop your cough; because it is the best cough remedy made to-day. Try it. For sale by the Hillsboro Pharmacy and all dealers everywhere.

To Patrons of the Oregon State Fair.
The Oregon State Board of Agriculture extends to you a most cordial invitation to attend the Blue Ribbon State Fair and to have the free use of its camp grounds, which have been improved by the addition of 200 stalls for the accommodation of teams, the clearing of all underbrush from the grounds, the placing of granite upon the streets, and the installation of septic tanks. The grounds will be electric lighted and carefully guarded by day and by night. None need bring provisions from home, as grocery men will call at your tents and take orders for everything needed. Oats, hay, straw, and wood can be had at reasonable rates of dealers near the grounds. Tents can not be purchased or rented upon an hour's notice. Tent poles for sale near by. There is a record of all who camped upon the grounds in 1906, and if the same location is desired for this year please write at once and the association will endeavor to place you.

Sallowness Transformed to Dusky Beauty
A dark skin becomes fascinating when delicately soft, underpinned with the radiant glow which indicates a healthy, active skin. Robertine keeps the skin refined in quality, keeps pores free from clogging waste and stimulates the tiny capillaries to contribute the color which charms blonde and brunette alike. Robertine is certain protection against tan, sunburn and freckles. If applied before exposure to sun or wind, spreads like an imperceptible sheen of gauze over skin surface, forming a shield stimulating and preserving a delicate, lustrous beauty.
