Meeting of the Patrons of the Pacific Coast Condensed Milk Co. at Forest Grove.

Forest Grove, Or., Oct. 13.—The second annual Patron's Meeting of the dairymen sending milk to the Pacific Coast Condensed Milk Company was held here Saturday, and was as much of a success as the first meeting a year ago. There are about 1000 patrons living within a radius of a dozen miles, and nearly all were present, many of them bringing their wives and children. They were the guests of the company, and noonday lunch was served to all in one of the big storage rooms at the condenser. While it was not served with the accessories of silver and china that would mark a banquet, yet it was abundant and varied, and healthy appetites were not marred by absence of style.

After lunch the assemblage was called to order by Superintendent Stuart, who extended a word of welcome and explained the object of the company in calling these annual meetings. It was to make the patrons acquainted with each other and to show them just what the company was doing on its part in building up the business. They were all interested alike in this matter, and all wanted to secure best possible results for their efforts.

Senator Haines was then introduced, who, as a business man of the town, extended a welcome to the patrons of the condenser. He told of the growth of the little city since the factory was located here, nearly doubling in five years. It has also been of great benefit to the farming community. In former times the farmer harvested his crop and received his pay once a year, but now he receives his pay twelve times a year. Then the merchant had to carry the account until the grain crop was sold, but now the farmer has his cash in his pocket and pays cash as he goes.

President Ferrin of Pacific University also gave a word of welcome. He was glad to see here the men and women who were producing the wealth of the country. Never were the whole people so prosperous as now, and the wealth of the nation came from the ground—the farms, the mines and the forests. In 1906, $110,000,000 worth of gold was mined in this country, but the farms yielded seven thousand million dollars' worth of product, and every night when the sun sets on this country it is $10,000,000 richer than the day before, because of the products of the farms. With the abundant prosperity given them they ought to give their sons and daughters the higher educational advantages now required for the new positions in life.

Byron Hunter, from the Agricultural college at Corvallis talked on results of their observations in producing dairy feeds. He believed kale to be the best green feed. If planted early it would be ready to commence on by the last of August, and would continue good until next April. He recommended planting in long narrow strips next to drive ways, so it could be loaded on wagons or sleds without driving over ground in wet weather. Rye and vetch sowed in September would make good feed the following summer, after kale was gone. He also urged farmers to get the bulletins of the State and National Agricultural Departments, which were free, and contained the results of the studies of experts on the various subjects discussed.

A. D. Barber, vice-president of the company, talked at length of their plans and wishes. He said the company and its patrons were partners, and he wanted them to understand fully what they were doing. The company wanted to make money, but it realized that it could do it best by helping the patrons to make money. Then they would furnish more milk, and that was what the company needed to build up its business. The company had recommended breeding up the dairy herds and is aiding it by helping to get better cows and more of them. The Holstein has been found the best dairy cow, and the company is aiding in bringing in many of that breed. He said it was a crime to slaughter heifer calves from good dairy cows. The business at this factory has increased 30 per cent. the past year, and the company wanted it to increase more. The cream is now shipped to Russia, Australia, and recently an order was sent to the Fiji Islands. This wide market enabled the company to pay better prices than it could otherwise. He wanted the farmers to buy more and better cows—cows that would give 40 to 50 pounds of milk per day instead of 15 or 20. He answered many questions about prices and plans and was listened to with great interest.

J. W. Bailey, State Food and Dairy Commissioner, told of the results of his observations in traveling over the state. Counties devoted to grain growing were decreasing in population, but counties engaged in dairying were increasing rapidly. The dairy counties were the prosperous counties, where land was growing in value. He gave an amusing account of a talk he had not long since with James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Wilson would hardly believe that kale was a valuable cow feed, and he refused to believe that it would produce 50 tons per acre. Mr. Bailey told of dairying in Holland, where each acre of land was supporting an average of 3-1-3 cows. He declared that the Willamette valley would do as well. He also indorsed milking machines as a success, and told what he had seen them doing in dairies in this state.

C. A. Malboef, general freight agent of the Southern Pacific, gave some interesting figures on the effect of the dairy on the freights on their line. The two milk condensers in Washington county, one at Forest Grove, the other at Hillsboro, furnish more cars of milk to ship in a year than there are cars of wheat shipped along their entire West Side line from Portland to Corvallis. In 1900 their freight receipts from Washington county were $175,000, this year they will be $1,000,000. No other county in the state has shown such an increase in business as Washington county, and it is today the greatest producing section of the state, judging by the freight furnished the Southern Pacific road.

Superintendent Stuart closed the meeting by thanking the patrons for their large attendance, and inviting them to come again next year.

New Mineral Found in Alaska.

A recent discovery 125 miles below Rampart on the Yukon has aroused intense interest in the North. James Langford, a Rampart pioneer, has found a vein of mineral of the consistency of chalk and of an indigo blue in color. It can be used as ordinary chalk. None of the Alaskan mineralogists can identify it and it is being sent to Seattle for analysis.

There are now in Alaska probably a dozen unidentified specimens of minerals and one of the many benefits to Alaska and Yukon of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, which will be held at Seattle in 1909, will be the assembling and classifying of these now unknown specimens. In many cases the owners of the veins of unidentified minerals believe that they stand a chance of winning great wealth as their find may be some hitherto undiscovered combination. As original research work will go on at the time the exposition is in progress one of the first duties of the savants in charge of this branch will be the identifying of these unknown elements or combinations, and the adapting of them to some commercial purpose.

James J. Hill Discouraged.

That railroad building in the United States has reached its maximum under existing conditions, and that business is growing five times as fast as the mileage, is the latest pessimistic view announced by President Hill of the Great Northern. He says further that there is no money to invest in railways in view of the attitude of the state legislatures and of the national government in passing regulative and restrictive measures.

LYDA'S SAW-MILL BURNED

THOUGHT TO BE THE WORK OF FIREBUGS.

Loss is Said to Be $10,000, With Only $3,000 Insurance—Third Fire Loss in Eight Years.

Forest Grove, Or., Oct. 14.—W. H. Lyda's sawmill, one of the best-equipped plants in the state, located four miles northeast of here, was completely destroyed by fire Sunday night. It was valued at about $10,000, with $3000 insurance. There was no fire in the mill yesterday during the day, and the fire did not start until about 10 o'clock in the night, so the owner is certain that the mill was set on fire. This is the third sawmill Mr. Lyda has lost by fire the past eight years. Three years ago, at the site where the mill burned last night, he lost a mill nearly as valuable, and about eight years ago on Gales Creek, 11 miles northwest of here, he had another one destroyed, together with a large amount of lumber, neither of which were insured.

Frank Rolston, the engineer at the mill, says he burned the fire all out and wet down around the boiler and engine-room Saturday night and left no fire there. No lumber was destroyed.

Dies from Injuries.

Forest Grove, Or., Oct. 15.—Ruel Bisbee, a prominent young farmer living a few miles northwest of town, suffered the loss of an arm that was cut off just below the elbow by a steam wood-saw last week Saturday. The cut was so complete that the arm fell to the ground. He was a son of Martin Bisbee, a large farmer near here, and was aged 39 years. He was born in Page county, Ia., and had lived here over 20 years. He was a graduate of Pacific University, with the degree B. S., in the class of 1896. A wife, a father and mother and a brother, Delbert, survive him. Interment was in the Naylor cemetery Tuesday, under the auspices of Delphas lodge, Knights of Pythias.

Typhoid Fever Arising from Milk.

Dr. Pohl, city health officer for Portland, reports seven cases of typhoid fever that originated between the 7th and 10th of August, traceable to the milk supplied by a milk ranch within the city limits. Investigation showed that the water supply was obtained from the local water works, as well as from a well. The well was promptly closed and so far no recurrence of the disease has been noted. The question of typhoid fever being spread by the use of contaminated milk is a very serious one and one that demands a great deal of attention. Recently the surgeon-general has taken up an investigation of contagious diseases carried by milk, and the state board is also preparing to make investigation along similar lines. About a year ago an epidemic occurred in Hood River, which was promptly eradicated by eliminating the milk supplied by one dairy.

KILLED IN AN EXPLOSION

J. MARTIN KILLED NEAR BEAVERTON.

He Was an Englishman and Had No Relatives in This Country—Body Sent to Portland.

J. Martin, an Englishman aged 24 years, was instantly killed last Monday afternoon by an explosion of dynamite, while working for the Pacific Coast Construction Co., about one-half mile southeast of Beaverton. He with a number of others were blasting out stumps with dynamite, when one stick failed to explode. Martin insisted on going to learn what the trouble was, though repeatedly told not to do so. Just as he was looking at the spot where the dynamite was placed, a terrible explosion occurred and the unfortunate man was killed instantly.

Coroner Brown was summoned and he went to the scene of the accident and after learning all the circumstances, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Martin claimed he was born in London, Eng., and had no friends or relatives in this country. He left absolutely nothing in the shape of papers or valuables. The body was taken in charge by the Pacific Coast Construction Co., and was buried in Portland at their expense.

Prohibition for Tennessee.

The supreme court of Tennessee has affirmed the constitutionality of the Pendleton act, which in effect extends the provisions of prohibition to all but five cities of the state. The same legislation which passed this law abolished the charters of five cities—Knoxville, Bristol, Clarksville, Columbia and Jackson—and reincorporated them under the new law, which prohibits saloons within their borders. The five cities where liquor can be sold after January 1 next are: Memphis, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Nashville and La Follette.

Still Work for Them.

Typewriter girls may find their occupation gone if what is said of a new invention turns out to be true. It is exhibited at the business show, now in progress in Madison Square Garden, New York, and is an automatic typewriter run by compressed air and capable, it is said, of writing from 5000 to 10,000 words an hour and keeping it up for 24 hours at a stretch. This invention is the work of A. McCall, of Columbus.

A lady who ought to know what she is saying, assures us that there is a reaction from the extravagant living that has marked the last few years. "Only the extremely rich can stand the strain," she says, "and even those who can are beginning to ask themselves, 'Is the game worth the candle?' Great profusion at a dinner with extremely rare viands does not necessarily mean that the dinner is going to be more enjoyable than a simpler meal. The same argument applies to many other things, and people are beginning to find it out."

Medford Man Buys Angoras.

Forest Grove, Or., Oct. 14.—Edward Naylor, of this place, a well-known breeder of Angora goats, returned from Medford Monday, where he sold to Daniel Foeller a carload of fine Angora goats. The country in that section is especially adapted for raising this class of stock.

Crescent Theatre.

The theatre management is in receipt of the following report from the National Bureau of Theatrical information, concerning Thorns and Orange Blossoms Company which plays here Saturday, October 19. Usual prices: "The reports we have received on Rowland & Clifford's 'Thorns & Orange Blossoms Co.' are all favorable and indicate that it is a company of 10 people who take their parts creditably. They carry special scenery and the production as a whole has given satisfaction in all the places from which we have received reports. They run from 2000 to 7000 in population. Some of the comments are as follows: 'Company and play good and gave best of satisfaction.' 'A good show which pleased our people.' 'Play gave satisfaction would like to play them for a return date.'"

A special train will run from Banks to Hillsboro on Saturday evening for this attraction.
